SENATE DEMOCRATS DECIDE ON A FIGHT TO OUST CUMMINS

They Also Threaten the Old Guard's Hold by Demands for Committee Places.

REPUBLICAN SPLIT WIDENS

Leaders Now Propose to Assign Magnus Johnson and Shipstead as Democrats.

GRAHAM IN HOUSE BARGAIN

He Withdraws as Floor Leader Candidate, Obtaining Concessions for Farm Bloc.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The dilemma of the Administration Republicans in the Senate was intensified today when Democratic leaders let it be known that they will move next week to proceed with the election of a President of that body, regardless of any action which Senator Cummins, who is being urged by his colleagues to vacate the position, takes. At the same time, a second storm appeared to be brewing, due to the reluctance of the Old Guard to give the Democrats increased membership on the Foreign Relations, Finance and Interstate Commerce Committees, before which will come the most important questions facing the new Congress.

The situation has been still further muddied owing to an eleventh-hour move on the part of the Republicans to assign Magnus Johnson and Shipstead, the Farmer-Labor Party Senators, to committees as Democrats and not as members of their own party. It appears that all efforts by the Old Guard to line up the Minnesotans on the side of the Administration have failed, and, this being so, they sought to bequeath them to the minority party.

The Democrats within the next twenty-four hours are expected to serve notice on the Administration forces that, having failed in their efforts to "kidnap" the newcomers from Minnesota, they can now make the best of a bad job.

Radicals Sealed With Regulars.

The charge that the Old Guard sought to entice Mr. Shipstead and his colleague into the Administration camp, say the Democrats, cannot be denied. They point to the fact that when the Senate convenes on Monday the seating arrangement will be topheavy on the Republican side. In the last Congress, when the Republicans had an unwieldy majority that was at one time as high as twenty-four and never under twenty-two, the desks were forty-eight on both sides, and Republicans who could not be accommodated on the majority side had desks on the minority side of the aisle.

In the new Senate, when the Old Guard found itself unable to command a majority, it gave orders to seat all the radicals, including Magnus Johnson and Shipstead, on the Republican side. This left only forty-three desks on the minority reservation and increased those on the Republican side to fifty-three. Under this arrangement the radicals were mixed with stand-patters and semi-radicals in such fashion as at least to make everybody look "regular." But something happened. Magnus Johnson and Shipstead would not stay hitched, and the result is they now find themselves in camp with the Old Guard, but labeled for committee purposes as Democrats.

The Cummins situation remains exactly where it was yesterday. Senator Cummins is standing pat and, unless he changes his mind before Monday, will refuse to resign either as President of the Senate or Chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce. The Administration forces, realising that the veteran from Iowa has the whip hand, are apparently ready to concede their defeat so far as the regular party organization is concerned.

The danger therefore to organization control is now on the Democratic side and in the ranks of the radical-progressives, for if these two elements unite, Administration control of the Senate will automatically end. The combination could not only dictate the committee assignments but would also be able to elect the President of the Senate.

That the Democrats will not easily enter such an alliance is certain. As a matter of fact, they want the Republicans to organize the Senate and take the full responsibility for what is going to happen in that chamber between now and election day next November. This arrangement apparently is to be had only on one condition, and that is increased Democratic strength and a corresponding decrease in Republican membership on all important committees.

Republicans Fear Tie Votes.

The Old Guard is willing to accept this proposal, except in the cases of the committees on finance, foreign relations and interstate commerce, the ones on which the Democrats are most anxious to increase their personnel. If they accede to the Democratic demand, the republicans argue, it will mean a tie in the Finance Committee. Under the new arrangement the line-up would be nine to seven with La Follette listed as one of the Republican nine. As La Follette usually votes with the Democrats in this committee, the Administration contends that instead of nine to seven it would in fact be an eight to eight committee.

The Democrats say that this may be true but La Follette, they add, was elected as a Republican and has always called himself one. If the Republicans

White House Kennels Filled; Coolidge Closes the Lists

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The White House kennels are full and President Coolidge has closed the lists.

Marshall Sheppey of Toledo, who gave Laddie Boy to President Harding, called at the White House today. During a break in their discussion of politics, Mr. Sheppey remarked to Mr. Coolidge:

"Mr. President, you seem to be long on dogs."

The President replied with an emphatic affirmative, adding that "the lists are now closed."

Three dogs complete the canine section of the White House menagerie—Paul Pry, the rechristened Airedale, formerly known as Laddie Buck; Peter Pan, the wire-haired terrier, and Island White Oshkosh, the white collie whose recent arrival filled the last remaining place in the dog-house.

USES TARIFF TO AID DRY ENFORCEMENT

Daugherty Reports Convictions Under It in Detroit and Savannah Smuggling Cases.

WILL EXTEND OPERATION

Attorney General Sees Improvement in Conditions Since Governors Met Coolidge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—"I think I can safely and to my own satisfaction and in all sincerity say to the American people that the enforcement of the prohibition laws, so far as the Department of Justice has jurisdiction, is steadily advancing and that there is becoming more and more respect for these laws because of the concerted forces we have been enabled to enlist and apply against those who would attempt to defy these laws," was the statement made by Attorney General Daugherty immediately after his return to Washington today.

He laid particular stress on the results obtained in enforcing to the limit the provisions of the Tariff act against smuggling to prevent the movement of liquor into the United States, either across the Canadian and Mexican borders or by boat along the American coast line.

He said he had used this act so successfully in New York, Vermont, Washington and California that it was now being re-employed and its provisions vigorously followed to prevent the importation of liquor across the border from Canada, especially near Detroit. The act was also used in the cases just tried at Savannah which resulted in convictions in one of the important cases of liquor smuggling.

"Since the Tariff act defines liquor as merchandise," Mr. Daugherty said, "the provisions of the act apply very clearly to the importation of liquor on which the duty provided for in the act before prohibition became the national policy has not been paid, and those who smuggle liquor across the border have been guilty of a double crime against the United States. They have violated the Volstead act and also the Tariff act providing for the revenues of the United States, and may be prosecuted under either or both of these laws."

Several important cases of this kind had just been completed at Detroit, Mr. Daugherty added, and those convicted had received the extreme penalty.

"County and State officials of Michigan have been co-operating very intelligently with the Federal agencies under the Department of Justice," Mr. Daugherty continued, "and the result has been that if we could not get these border bootleggers under one charge we got them on another. The results in this way have been particularly marked since the recent conference of Governors called by President Coolidge."

He referred to a report just made by Mrs. Mabel W. Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General in charge of prohibition charges, in which were given in detail statistics showing the successful operation of the injunctive, or "padlock," feature of the Prohibition law.

"Nothing had such a telling effect on prohibition law violators in Detroit as jail sentences," the Attorney General went on. "Several injunctions have been made permanent against breweries, among these the National Company of Saginaw, Mich., and the Auto City Brewing Company. In June of this year thirty-nine petitions for injunctions were filed at Detroit, and since that time many more have been filed and still other cases are being prepared for filing. Of those filed in June, eleven of the defendants have been cited for contempt of court for violating the temporary injunction and are now serving their sentences."

Injunction suits were also being

COOLIDGE'S PARDON FOR CRAIG EXPECTED WITHIN A FEW DAYS

Daugherty Sees President for Fifteen Minutes Regarding Plea by Copeland.

MAYER ASKED TO COMMENT

Department of Justice Will Not Act Until It Hears From Him and Hayward.

CRAIG URGED TO GO TO JAIL

Gompers Declares He Can Do Great Public Service by Refusing Any Clemency.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. — Attorney General Daugherty was called to the White House this afternoon to discuss with President Coolidge the application made by Senator Copeland of New York for a Presidential pardon for Controller Charles L. Craig of New York City. Mr. Daugherty was with the President for about fifteen minutes. Afterward he said that he would make a study of the case as quickly as the affairs of his department permitted and that a recommendation probably would be made within the next two or three days.

The Attorney General took some of the documents dealing with the Craig case to the White House, but, it is understood, he did not go into the details of the case with the President. Mr. Daugherty said he had formed no opinion as yet, as he had been away from the city and had not had an opportunity to consult with the department officials, who have already started a review of the facts.

Whether the President had the power legally to grant a pardon in a civil case, such as that in which the Controller of New York is involved, was one of the points which Mr. Daugherty said had not yet been finally determined. At least, he said, he was not prepared to offer an opinion until he had had an opportunity to go into the matter thoroughly.

The general opinion here tonight, however, is that a recommendation in the case will be made to the President by the Attorney General on Friday or Saturday and that if such a recommendation as is now believed probable, is favorable, a pardon will be granted by the President immediately. It may require a little more time, but the inclination of the Department of Justice is to clean up the matter as quickly as possible. The point was made today, however, that the department could scarcely be expected to put aside all other work simply because an argument had taken place in New York.

Ask Mayer for Opinion.

The Department of Justice has asked Judge Mayer, who sentenced Controller Craig to sixty days imprisonment for contempt, and Federal District Attorney Hayward for any comment or recommendation they may wish to make, and no decision will be reached or recommendation made until this has been obtained.

While an examination of the record of the case may be necessary before a final decision is reached, it is understood that much of this work already has been done by Mr. Daugherty's assistants and that they are prepared to make a comprehensive report to him.

Reports that Controller Craig might be arrested and placed in jail within the next day or two if there was delay in granting a pardon were not given much weight here. If the President receives a favorable recommendation from the Attorney General and decides to grant a pardon, it is believed here that this action will come before any steps are taken actually to put Mr. Craig in jail.

The Department of Justice is basing its activities on the application made in behalf of Mr. Craig by Senator Copeland. Mr. Daugherty said he did not know whether other applications had been made.

Gompers Telegraphs to Craig.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, sent a telegram to Controller Craig this afternoon urging him to stand pat, stop the efforts being made to secure a pardon for him and go to jail. The telegram read:

Charles L. Craig, City Controller, Municipal Building, New York City.

Circumstances have made you the national outstanding figure for a principle for which the people for generations have contended. If you maintain your position without flinching you will perform a greater public service than has been given any man in many a year. Why not appeal to your real friends and repudiate your pretended friends and stop their efforts to secure a pardon for you? With others I met a similar situation and followed that course, resulting in some relief.

SAMUEL GOMPERS.

Mr. Gompers's telegram is understood to refer to his sentence for contempt of

Coolidge to Talk by Radio on Harding Dec. 10; Message to Congress Also to Be Broadcast

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—President Coolidge, following the example set by Woodrow Wilson on Armistice Day eve, will broadcast a radio eulogy of President Harding from the White House on the evening of Dec. 10.

Special apparatus will be set up on the White House lawn so that the President's remarks, made in his study, can be transmitted to the local broadcasting station WCAP. The speech will start promtly at 8:30 o'clock Eastern Standard Time and is expected to continue ten minutes.

The President has agreed to make this speech in connection with a nation-wide appeal to be made by the Harding Memorial Association, an organization composed of the late President's friends, which plans to build a suitable memorial to his memory at Marion, Ohio.

The Bell Telephone system, in handling the arrangements, will first broadcast through the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, from whose offices it will be relayed by long-distance wires to New York and Providence. Negotiations are rapidly nearing completion for relays to Chicago, St. Louis, Dallas and other points in the West and Southwest. With the entire system functioning, it is said, every radio enthusiast possessing a one-tube set will be able to "listen in."

President Coolidge's decision to broadcast his speech follows closely upon a proposal put before him by the National Broadcasters' Association that he conserve his health and at the same time reach a greater number of people by making all possible speeches, particularly those in the coming campaign, over the radio.

C. Bascom Slemp, the President's secretary, in replying, assured the broadcasters that their suggestion would be acted upon at the earliest possible moment.

The address which Mr. Coolidge will make to Congress next week also will be broadcast by radio from the chamber of the House of Representatives, as were several of the addresses of President Harding.

POLITICAL CONVICTS MAY BE FREED SOON

Coolidge Names Ex-Secretary Baker, Gen. Harbord and Bishop Brent as Inquiry Board.

SESSION HELD IN BUFFALO

Cases of Many I. W. W.'s Convicted in the West Are Among Those Affected.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—President Coolidge has appointed a special commission of three, consisting of Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War; Bishop Charles H. Brent of the Episcopal Diocese of Buffalo, and Major Gen. James G. Harbord, former Deputy Chief of Staff, to investigate the question of releasing the political prisoners held in the Federal prisons at Leavenworth and Atlanta. In some circles this action is interpreted as a step toward speedy release of the prisoners.

The appointment was made about two weeks ago, but was not made public, it is explained, because it was felt that the commission could proceed better with its task if not hampered with undue publicity and the countless petitions which might result. A meeting of members of the commission in Bishop Brent's office in Buffalo, details of which were withheld, resulted in today's White House announcement.

The political prisoners in Leavenworth include seven involved in the Chicago I. W. W. case who declined to accept the conditional commutations offered by President Harding; two involved in the Wichita I. W. W. case, who also declined the conditions offered by Mr. Harding; nineteen involved in the Sacramento I. W. W. case, to whom no commutations have been offered, and one involved in the same case who declined commutation conditional on deportation. There are two political prisoners in the Atlanta penitentiary.

The Joint Amnesty Committee made public today a hitherto confidential report on private interviews which Mrs. Abbe Scott Baker had on July 13 and 20 last with Judge Frank H. Rudkin of San Francisco, who presided at the trial of the Sacramento I. W. W. case, as follows:

"Judge Rudkin promised that the next time the Department of Justice asked him for a recommendation he would recommend immediate and unconditional release of the Federal prisoners sentenced by him at Sacramento, January, 1919.

"Judge Rudkin dictated this statement to Mrs. Baker, July 20:

"'Under the decision of the Seventh and Eighth Circuit Courts in the Chicago and Wichita cases, no case was made at Sacramento under counts I. and II. (the only counts which charged destruction of property); the testimony did not sustain these charges, and there is no shadow of doubt that had the evidence gone to the Appellate Court counts I. and II. would have been thrown out.

"'Prejudicial evidence was admitted under counts I. and II., and this evidence and these counts were taken into consideration in imposing sentences upon the defendants. If this case had been tried after the decisions of the Seventh and Eighth Circuit Courts these defendants would have been entitled to an instructed verdict of "not guilty."

"'If the defendants had been tried solely on counts III. and IV. a different case would have been presented and much of the testimony actually received would have been excluded.'

Declares Cases Similar.

"These, Judge Rudkin said, were his controlling reasons and the ones upon which he would base his recommendations to the Department of Justice.

"Judge Rudkin said, further, that so far as he is advised there is no essential difference in the character of the testimony at Sacramento and that at Chicago and Wichita.

"He said that the state of public opinion was such at the time of the Sacramento trial that an indictment was tantamount to a conviction. He said also that, according to his recollection, there was no appreciable difference in the individual degree of guilt or innocence of the Sacramento men now in prison, and, therefore in his opinion, there could be no reasonable basis for discrimination in dealing with their cases.

"Judge Rudkin said that the decision of the Appellate Courts having established that such acts as were alleged under counts I and II do not constitute the offenses charged, and the maximum sentence under count III having long since been served, every lawyer must agree the defendants are now in prison solely under count IV.' This count is based on emergency war-time legislation which restricts freedom of speech. Judge Rudkin feels that for the violation of this emergency statute, not in force since the armistice, the defendants have now been more than sufficiently punished, and he gave repeated assurances that he might be relied upon to recommend their release."

Commission Meets in Secret.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Former Secretary Baker, General Harbord and Bishop Brent, President Coolidge's commission, were in conference here yesterday, it became known today. The session was held behind closed doors in Bishop Brent's office.

The commission met again in Bishop Brent's office this afternoon. Bishop Brent and his colleagues declined to indicate how long the conference would continue. Nothing will be made public until a report is made to the President.

YOUNG ACTRESS WED TO BUFFALO BANKER

Jane Miller, Leading Woman in "The Devil's Disciple," Becomes Mrs. J. L. Clawson.

HIS SON IS THE BEST MAN

Short Courtship Had Its Origin in Bridegroom's Collection of Rare Books.

In a romance that had its origin a month ago in a collection of old books, Miss Emma H. Miller, a young actress, until recently leading woman for Basil Sydney in "The Devil's Disciple," was married in this city yesterday to John Lewis Clawson, merchant and banker of Buffalo. The bridegroom is Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Clawson & Wilson Company, New York, Buffalo and Cleveland, and of the Marine Trust Company of Buffalo. His collection of Elizabethan literary treasures is one of the finest in existence.

The only witness of the marriage was the bridegroom's son, H. Phelps Clawson, war aviator and poet, who was his father's best man. It was a large portrait of the poet-aviator that the bride held as she stood beside her husband in their suite at the Ritz-Carlton after the wedding. Proudly pointing to the picture she exclaimed:

"Isn't he splendid! And just think, I am the mother of a thirty-year-old son."

The bridegroom is a man of distinguished appearance, which is heightened by his gray hair. Mr. Clawson's first wife was Frances Collier Phelps, whom he married in Binghamton, N. Y., in 1890.

The couple began their honeymoon in a vault choked with the literary treasures at the Rosenbach Company, 273 Madison Avenue. Dr. A. W. S. Rosenbach, through whom Mr. Clawson purchased most of his rare books, manuscripts and autographs, was in charge of their trip to the book shop.

Tell of Their Romance.

In their suite at the hotel the bride and bridegroom pieced together the story of their brief romance. They explained that she was known on the stage as "Jane" Miller. She is the daughter of William James Miller, who was Treasurer of Mississippi under Governor James A. Vardaman, and who will become Receiver of Taxes of the State of Mississippi on Jan. 1.

Miss Miller was educated in the Belle Haven School in her native State. She made her social début at the Louisiana Club in New Orleans. Later she came to New York to prepare for the stage under J. W. Parson Price. Her first appearance was in "Too Many Cooks," with Frank Craven.

She was playing opposite Basil Sydney when George Bernard Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple" went on tour. Mr. Sydney is interested in rare books. When his company set out for Buffalo several weeks ago his friend Mitchell Kennerley, gave him a letter of introduction to Mr. Clawson. Unknown to Mr. Sydney, Miss Miller also had a letter of introduction to Mr. Clawson from a friend of Mr. Clawson's. Mr. Clawson, informed that the English actor would present a letter, did not wait for Mr. Sydney to look him up. He visited the theatre and it chanced that he met first the leading woman instead of the leading man.

Mr. Clawson admitted yesterday that it was a case of love at first sight. Miss Miller agreed to his explanation. But later Mr. Sydney met Mr. Clawson and had an opportunity to browse among Mr. Clawson's books. The collection also was placed at the disposal of the leading woman. They were otherwise entertained by Mr. Clawson at his home.

When "The Devil's Disciple" moved to Montreal, Mr. Clawson went along, too. He followed the company through Canada and was with them when they played in London, Ont., Saturday two weeks ago. It was there that he persuaded Miss Miller to leave the company for another visit to his home in Buffalo.

The bride-to-be was a guest there until last Monday, when she came to New York City, to be followed immediately by Mr. Clawson. Soon after her arrival Mr. Clawson met the Rev. Samuel G. Trexler, an old friend. He told Dr. Trexler that he was to marry Miss Miller, and Dr. Trexler consented to perform the ceremony. They were married yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at the home of Dr. Trexler, 16 East Forty-eighth Street.

Has Life Contract.

Soon after her marriage the bride received a telegram from the manager of "The Devil's Disciple," now in Detroit. It was a request that she rejoin the company. The bride in reply sent this message:

"Impossible. I have just signed a con-

EVIL PLAYS START A CHURCH INQUIRY BY BISHOP MANNING

WON'T NAME PRODUCTIONS

Will Announce Procedure When His Social Service Commission Returns Findings.

"PLAY JURY" TO FUNCTION

License Commissioner Now Agrees to Consult That Body "in Certain Instances."

Bishop William T. Manning yesterday requested the Social Service Commission of the Protestant Episcopal Church of this diocese to begin an immediate investigation of certain plays being presented in theatres in this city. Bishop Manning said last night that his request did not refer to the stage in this city in general, but he declined to disclose what plays or how many would be investigated.

"My action was based on certain statements made to me alleging the terrible character of certain plays from the moral point of view," Bishop Manning said. "On these representations I requested the Social Service Commission of the diocese, through its Executive Secretary, the Rev. Dr. Charles K. Gilbert, to begin an investigation of the matter and report to me on their finds as soon as possible."

"If the Social Service Commission sustains the complaints against the plays in its report to you, what action are you likely to take?" Bishop Manning was asked.

"I shall not anticipate the action of the Social Service Commission in the matter," he replied. "It will be time enough to take that under consideration when the report is received."

"Do you care to say that the five plays recently complained of to the Commissioner of Licenses were included among those mentioned in the statements to you?" he was asked.

Declines to Name Plays Now.

"No, I shall not discuss the identity of the plays I had in mind, nor their number," he said.

Earlier in the day Dr. Gilbert issued a statement in which he announced that the "conditions of the New York stage" had been brought to the attention of the Social Service Commission, and that Bishop Manning had requested an immediate investigation of the conditions, with the additional request that their findings be sent to him.

The action of Bishop Manning in requesting an immediate investigation of the plays about which he had received complaints follows the announcement of the names of the 150 members of the play jury panel which was formed last Winter by representatives of theatrical interests, civic organizations and the public. It was understood that Bishop Manning had not considered the formation of this play jury in ordering the Social Service Commission of his Church to begin an immediate investigation of complaints.

Dean Hughell E. W. Fosbroke of the General Episcopal Theological Seminary is the Chairman of the Social Service Commission. He said last evening that he had not been informed of the Bishop's request, but supposed that Dr. Gilbert, the Secretary of the commission, would get in touch with him on the matter this morning.

"We are to have a regular monthly meeting of the Social Service Commission on Monday," Dean Fosbroke said. "Of course, while I am in the dark about the Bishop's request at this moment, I can say that whatever he requests of the commission will be done immediately. It is the principal function of the commission to aid him in matters of this kind."

Play Jury to Be Consulted.

Commissioner of Licenses August W. Glatzmayer announced two days ago that, although he had not received responsible complaints about objectionable plays, he would co-operate with the play jury in certain instances and where any complaint of an objectionable play was received by him in the future was sustained by his investigation he would take such a case directly to the Grand Jury.

He had previously indicated that he would act on all such complaints without consideration of the play jury, which was formed to aid in the elimination of bad features from any play complained of. Theatrical managers had agreed that if the elimination did not

Watson's Hat Still on Head, But Is Pictured in the Ring

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Senator Watson of Indiana may or may not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for President—he won't say—but news photographers at the White House today got more than a dozen pictures, both stills and movies, which will show him throwing his hat into the ring.

Senator Watson had a short conference with President Coolidge, the first since he returned to Washington and since he made his announcement that he was considering entrance into the Republican Presidential race. When he left he was as silent as before regarding the prospects of his candidacy.

But while the conference was on, an energetic photographer had drawn a large white circle on the pavement outside the White House offices and had taken many photographs of it. It then had been erased.

When Senator Watson came out he was persuaded to pose just to one side of where the circle had been and hold in his hand his big black fedora.

"Throw your hat down," asked one, and the Senator did so, landing it where the ring would show up when the pictures of it and those of Mr. Watson were pieced together.

Mr. Watson laughingly declared it "a frame-up," when he was told later what had happened.

"My hat isn't in the ring," he said. "It is still on my head."

SEPARATISTS SPLIT; MATTHES IS OUSTED

Active Head Is Overthrown by Secretary, Rosenbaum, and Coblenz Force.

DORTEN MEN IN CONTROL

They Deny Matthes's Story of a Military Coup and Say Movement Will Go On.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUESSELDORF, Nov. 28.—Joseph Matthes, chief of the "Rhineland Republic," announced today that he had dissolved the Separatist Government at Coblenz. He is back at Duesseldorf, where he told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent he intended "to start the movement afresh along better lines, freed from compromising elements which had done so much to discredit it." And as an afterthought Herr Matthes added: "Still, you cannot very well make a revolution in evening clothes and kid gloves."

Official intimation of the dissolution of the republican government was dispatched last night to the High Commissioner of the Interallied High Commission, M. Tirard, Matthes said, in the following terms:

"As hitherto President of the Cabinet of the provisional Government of the Rhineland Republic, which you recognized as a de facto power wherever it was effectively established, I have the honor to inform you of the following:

"Referring you to official protocols of the Cabinet sessions sent you at the time of establishing my legal position in the Government, I hereby declare to be dissolved the provisional Government of the Rhineland Republic at Coblenz, which was recognized by you. Within the last few days several members of the Cabinet have resigned. This refers to Herr von Metzen, Foreign Minister, who resigned on Monday, and Herr Marx of Trier, who resigned a few days earlier.] A fortnight ago the Cabinet split into two sections, both issuing independent orders. [This refers to the quarrel between Herr Matthes and Dr. Dorten regarding action in the Palatinate.]

"In addition to this military the commanders who a fortnight ago were dismissed by Dr. Dorten and myself attempted to institute a military dictatorship. Chief among these preparing the military coup is my dismissed General Secretary of State, Rosenbaum, who since has been proved to have been Prussian spy. The military dictatorship, which appears to be provided liberally with funds, today overthrew the Cabinet, which declared itself to be utterly powerless to resist.

"This as well as the fact that the provisional Government was composed partly of incompetent and partly of dishonest people causes me to take the above step."

The document, which is dated Coblenz, Nov. 27, is signed Matthes, hitherto Chief of the Executive.

Of the events which preceded yesterday's coup as well as the coup itself Herr Matthes gave THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent the following version:

For some time past bands of men calling themselves Separatists, under

BANK MURDER PLOT HATCHED BY GUNMEN IN DEN IN THE BRONX

ASTOUNDING CONFESSIONS

The Fatal Hold-Up Was Worked Out on Paper and Rehearsed for Days.

OTHER CRIMES LAID TO BAND

One Prisoner Identified as Bandit Who Shot to Death an Upper Manhattan Druggist.

The police yesterday drew from the city's underworld seven men on whom detectives pinned more or less important parts in a hold-up plot which terminated Nov. 14 in the slaying of William S. Barlow and William H. McLaughlin and the theft of $43,607 of West End Bank funds, which they were carrying.

Three more men remain to be seized. The police were confident last night they would apprehend them shortly. With their capture, said Headquarters, the crime in which the two bank men were shot to death without warning, will have been solved. Thus far, ten are under arrest in the case. They and the three still at large, according to the police, made up a gang which committed numerous other murders and robberies in recent months.

Into yesterday's skein of events were woven incidents of double-dealing among the alleged criminals; cheating each other of the proceeds of their crime; "squealing" by disgruntled members of the gang; plotting to raid the West End Bank itself and steal $750,000 of its funds, and confessions in a Bronx house at which the hold-up in which the messengers were killed at the B. M. T. station at New Utrecht Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, were rehearsed repeatedly.

The band made its plans with precision, but that precision did not omit mistakes which eventually led to the round-up of most of its members. Detectives who appreciated the cleverness of certain details of the conspiracy were at the same time amazed at the stupidity with which some of these details were carried out.

Diamonds Make Full Confessions.

Barlow Morris Diamond and his younger brother, Joseph G. Diamond, made yesterday what they insisted were full and frank confessions. They admitted full complicity in the plot. They admitted everything up to the point of the slayings. Here they balked, shielding themselves with the assertions they were not at the elevated station stairway and that the actual murders were committed by three men now at large.

It was because of their final statement of the night before, made at Police Headquarters in Manhattan, that the police were able at 2:45 o'clock yesterday morning to arrest for murder and robbery Joseph's chum of the Stuyvesant Evening High School, Anthony Pantano, 22 years old, of 3,738 Bay Parkway, six blocks from the West End Bank.

Detectives Charles Eason, James Dowdell and Edward Fitzsimmons arrested him as he was entering his home, where his mother lay ill. At first professing innocence and indignation, eventually he implicated himself and was held for arraignment this morning in Flatbush Court on charges of murder in the first degree and robbery.

Shortly before last midnight Pantano confessed to District Attorney Dodd that a year ago, when a clerk in the West End Bank, he conceived the idea that by a raid on that institution a gang could obtain half a million dollars. He said that the thought preyed on him constantly, and that he persisted in plans of robbery until his lines terminated in the tragedies of Nov. 14.

"I'm to blame," he cried, breaking down after an all-day inquisition. "I don't know what got into me. It must have been the devil. I figured that between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon the place could be raided. I'm glad now I got it off my chest. I kept figuring on it after I got out of the bank and kept at it until the hold-up."

First Said He Had Been Coerced.

Previously, throughout the day, he had maintained that he had been forced into the conspiracy and had nothing to do with the actual performance of the plot.

On further information supplied yesterday morning by the Diamond brothers, Captain of Detectives Henry Duane and Detectives Sulze and Carey raided a bungalow at 2,712 Williamsbridge Road, the Bronx. Here they arrested these men:

Michael Messano, 22, of 145 Sullivan Street, a pugilist, known to fight followers as "Lights" Messano. This man is a drug addict. He was convicted Oct. 9, 1920, for possessing narcotics and was arrested Sept. 25 last for selling drugs. He offered the detectives $3,000 to release him, the police said. He was identified in the Rogues' Gallery under dramatic circumstances as a murderer in another case. He was held as a material witness in the West End Bank shootings.

Edward Capobianco, 23, of 5,816 Thirteenth Avenue, Brooklyn. He has served a term in Elmira for burglary and was sent to the penitentiary for disorderly conduct. He was held as a material witness.

Nicholas Lucciano, 21, of 432 West Broadway, known as "Chock" because of a scar on one side of his face. He has been out on $2,500 bail on the charge of stealing an automobile, a Cadillac, belonging to Harry Briederbach of 454 Riverside Drive. The machine was stolen Sept. 26 from in front

Italy's Conscience Clear, Says Schanzer, Even if She Does Not Pay Debt to Us

ROME, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—"There is nothing on Italy's conscience, should we not pay America our debts," said Signor Schanzer, former Foreign Minister and Minister of Finance, to the Associated Press correspondent in discussing an article which he wrote for Echi e Commenti advocating cancellation of the debts. "We contributed in blood; America in money. Ours was a contribution which could not be counted in money.

"If America should make us a present of our debts and withdraw her accounts against us, she would leave nothing for which we would have regret, and we would not lose our self-respect, for our contribution has been dearly paid for in human sacrifice, not to be calculated in dollars."

Signor Schanzer cited Major Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, Professor Seligman and William G. McAdoo in support of his contentions. He referred to Mr. McAdoo's report in 1919, in which the latter said the war would be prolonged if America did not make a money loan.

Relatives Mix Babes of Mother and Daughter; None Can Tell Which Is Uncle, Which Nephew

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MADRID, Nov. 28.—In the village of Coruma a mother and daughter both gave birth to sons at the same hour. While a mob of relatives packed the parlor two doctors rushed out announcing "It's a boy!"

The grandfather appeared carrying his newborn son and his grandson one in each arm. The gesticulating relatives swarmed around. The babies were passed around from one to another to be kissed and caressed. Hearty toasts were drunk to the babies' health.

After half an hour there was a sudden silence. "Which boy is which?" asked one relative. An investigation revealed that the babies had been mixed up. Both looked alike. Both looked like the two mothers. None of the relatives could distinguish one from the other. Neither could the doctors, nor the nurses.

Finally it was decided to choose blindly and to baptize the babies two hours apart. The priest baptized the first, but when the second appeared he protested, and filed a complaint before the courts.

The babies will never know their true relationship. They will not know who is the grandmother, who is the mother, or who is the sister. The nephew may be his own uncle. An amazing number of tangled relationships is possible. And when the babies get married the tangle will be still greater.

Further complications are expected when the husband of the daughter returns from Argentina, where he is on business, and finds the mix-up. He will not know whether he is greeting his son or his brother-in-law.

One Out of the Tombs Only Two Days.

Angelo Farini, 29, of 2,712 Williamsbridge Road, the Bronx. When arrested he had been out of the Tombs only two days, having been held there for driving an automobile without a license. His brother, Joseph, was killed in a holdup in Norfolk, Va. This prisoner was held as a material witness.

Vincenzo Lanni, 31, and Orazio Casceretta, 30, boarders at the Williamsbridge Road house. They were released as not knowing anything about the crime.

The raid netted a stolen Hudson touring car, in the pockets of which were found the visiting cards of Barlow Diamond.

While the men eventually held from among those captured in the Bronx raid were being led into the Rogues' Gallery to be photographed, Detective Edward Mullins was escorting a man into the gallery to examine photographs in hope of identifying the slayer of Jacob Bankoff, a druggist at 200 Nagle Avenue, Inwood. Bankoff and his clerk, Clement De Vries, were in the store the night of Nov. 15, the eve of the Brooklyn crime, when a hold-up man demanded the contents of the cash register. Bankoff refused. He was shot in the stomach and died the next evening in Jewish Memorial Hospital.

The slayer compelled, at pistol point, a taxicab driver to drive him down the Harlem Speedway. A motorcycle policeman pursued to give the driver a summons for speeding. The passenger thought he was being pursued because of the shooting. He jumped into a clump of bushes and exchanged shots with the motorcycle man and other policemen, eventually escaping in the brush along the Harlem River.

As De Vries was entering the Rogues' Gallery to examine photographs he suddenly gripped Detective Mullins's arm and whispered, "That's the man," pointing to Mezzano. "Are you sure?" gasped the detective. "I'll make sure," asserted De Vries. He stepped close to Mezzano, scrutinized him carefully, then placed a finger on the prisoner's chest and said, "You are the man who killed the boss." Mezzano burst into tears. He was accused on the records of the Bankoff shooting and held as a material witness in the bank case.

County Judge Bernard W. Voss held court in District Attorney Dodd's office at 11:30 o'clock last night and remanded to Queens County Jail, so that they might be separated from the Diamond brothers, who were in Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, Lucciano, Capabianco and Farini. They were held in $50,000 bail each as material witnesses.

Chief Blame Put on Barlow Diamond.

While the stories by the Diamond brothers and Pantano were at variance, the police pointed out that both Joseph Diamond and Pantano placed much of the blame for the plot on Barlow M. Diamond.

Joseph Diamond said that Pantano, who had been a messenger for the West End Bank and for the Irving National-Columbia Trust Company, to which the robbery victims were going when shot, approached him a month before the crime, saying that having worked for the first bank as recently as Sept. 23, and having previously been employed by the other institution, he knew enough about their money transfer methods to help in a hold-up of William S. Barlow and McLaughlin.

Joseph Diamond said, according to District Attorney Dodd of Kings County:

"Tony Pantano two or three months ago told me that he had drawn up plans on paper for a raid on the West End Bank. He said he had worked it all out nights at home and figured that seven men could hold up the bank and get its $220,000 in cash and $400,000 in bonds. He said that William S. Germaine, the cashier, had at his foot an alarm signal, but, he said, he had figured out a way of crippling this mechanism. I put it up to my brother, and he put it up to the gang. The gunmen in the gang ridiculed the idea. They said it was too dangerous. About a month before the elevated station holdup Tony came to me again and proposed we hold up the messengers. He said we would get at least $2,000, and he wanted 10 per cent. of the swag. I put it up to my brother, and we agreed to give Tony 10 per cent."

Barlow M. Diamond told the same story, placing the origin of the plot at Tony's door. The latter, however, insisted that some weeks before the crime the Diamond brothers threatened him with pistols, demanding that because of his knowledge of both banks he aid them in the hold-up of McLaughlin and William S. Barlow.

Tony said he refused to take part in the hold-up. The Diamond brothers refuted his story and added that Tony had assured them: "There won't be any shooting. The two guys will be bumped with a blackjack and that's all—no rough stuff." Tony said that at one conference the Diamonds put a pistol at his head and said, "a bum steer and you die!"

Robbery Planned on Paper.

Whatever the truth as regards the origin of the plot, all involved admitted that there were numerous conferences for a month preceding the crime at the Bronx bungalow. One conference was held at the Diamond box factory. At these conferences plans were carefully discussed and, on paper, diagrams were laid out and decided upon. These diagrammatic details eventually were carried out in large part. The Diamonds said they assigned Tony to find out what the best date would be.

On Nov. 10, two days before the robbery, a final conference was held at which all were present, including the three actual slayers now at large, Capabianco, however, spent most of the time on the porch and did not hear the entire discussion. Joseph Diamond insisted he, too, was on the porch most of the time. At this conference, said the police, Tony reported that in a few days the West End Bank probably would acquire an armored motor vehicle. It was decided to move immediately. A final rehearsal was held and each member was assigned to a specific task.

To help carry out the plan, the Diamonds previously had stolen two Cadillac sedans, both of which figured prominently in the crime. The first, belonging to Louis Altschul of 1,700 Topping Avenue, the Bronx, was stolen the night of Oct. 28 and driven to the Prompt Garage, at Lexington Avenue and Twenty-third Street, across the street from the Fifth National Bank, in which Barlow Diamond deposited funds in a safe deposit box three hours after the crime. The second car, belonging to Jacob Monsky of 2,665 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, was stolen the night of Nov. 5. This was driven to the same garage of Mrs. Ida Lapinsky at 2,145 Twenty-first Street, Bensonhurst. The Diamonds also had a Ford sedan.

The final conference, said the police, assigned the actual slaying to two of the men now at large. The third man now being sought was to be chauffeur of the murder car. These three and the Diamond brothers were at the scene of the crime, the others remaining away.

On the morning of Nov. 14 Joseph Diamond took the Monsky Cadillac from the Lapinsky garage. In helping back out the car Barlow Diamond left fingerprints on the doors, which eventually helped in his capture because of his police record. Joseph said he drove this Cadillac to the elevated station and turned it over to the three slayers.

Barlow Diamond a Block Away.

Meanwhile, Barlow Diamond, in the Ford, had taken up his post a block from the station. After giving the Cadillac to the three confederates Joseph walked to his brother's car and was instructed, for alibi purposes, to go immediately to the Diamond Box Company's plant, at 315 East Twenty-second Street, Manhattan. Joseph obeyed, arriving there, according to Leonard D. Sachs, the sales manager, at 11 o'clock, and remaining the entire day. One witness has told the police he shook hands with Joseph below the elevated station half an hour before the shooting. Another has testified he saw Joseph shoot William S. Barlow at the top of the stairway.

Joseph, however, insisted he did none of the actual shooting. Barlow Diamond said that when the messengers left their train the two slayers ran up the stairs, the chauffeur following them. The messengers were shot, the money was taken and the three assailants jumped into the Cadillac sedan.

Barlow Diamond, lookout in the Ford a block away, jumped into line behind them, three powerful employes of the Blythebourne branch of the Post Office, near the scene of the shootings, followed in their own Ford. Thus, Barlow Diamond was able to give the impression that he was a crook-catcher intent on fearless pursuit of the slayers, at the same time keeping his machine between the fugitives and the postal employes. The latter, believing Barlow Diamond's car to have a better chance of success, dropped out of the chase.

A rendezvous at the Lapinsky garage had been agreed upon. On the way, however, the Cadillac almost ran down a machine driven by Louis Steel, a negro, in making a sharp turn at Sixty-seventh Street and Nineteenth Avenue, two blocks from the garage. At the same time the Cadillac almost ran into a mixer of concrete on a stretch of torn up pavement at that corner. The police said yesterday that three men then leaned from the car, instead of two, as originally had been reported. These three men walked to the Lapinsky garage. Meanwhile, Barlow Diamond in his Ford had proceeded to the garage.

There, he said yesterday, he received $9,300 in a single packet of bills. He said this was all he received and that his brother got nothing. District Attorney Dodd indicated his disbelief in view of the facts that $9,000 were found in a Cleveland vault yesterday, $2,200 was taken from Barlow Diamond on his arrest last Sunday, large deposits were made by him in the seven days following the crime, several thousand dollars in debts of the Diamond Box Company were paid off in the same period, and the brothers, though previously without money, were able to entertain lavishly, in Philadelphia, Miss Joyce Normand and Miss Dorthy Bates, chorus girls, whose information helped in the capture of Barlow Diamond.

Slayers Fail to Meet Barlow.

Barlow Diamond said the three slayers promised to meet him at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at a furnished room occupied by the brothers and Sachs at 142 East Twenty-seventh Street. There, he said, they were to split up the proceeds. But the three men never met him, then or thereafter. His anger at this double-dealing induced him to give their names and to tell what he said was "the truth of the conspiracy."

He made several ineffectual efforts to find them at the Bronx bungalow, and gave it up as a futile task. He said that in another day the newspapers were stating that the police had traced the ownership of the Ford plates found on the Cadillac abandoned at the uptown street. These plates were traced to "Samuel Josephs," a fictitious name assumed by Joseph Diamond in getting the license for automobile-stealing purposes and bootlegging. What alarmed and sickened Barlow Diamond was the discovery by the police that the address given by "Samuel Josephs" had been found by detectives to be a house owned by Mrs. Dora Diamond, mother of the Diamond brothers. He decided then, Nov. 16, he said, to leave, and went to Philadelphia.

There Joseph met him. Barlow said he made numerous trips to New York, and communicated with William Fried, an employe of the box company, about the sudden affluence of the company after the robbery, the company immediately thereafter making several large deposits and paying several large bills.

Detectives Thomas Martin and Stephen Donohue, who had arrested Barlow Diamond in Philadelphia, last night telephoned they had taken $9,000 from a safe deposit box of the Cleveland Trust Company rented, according to an officer of the bank, by Diamond and a man the prisoner described to the bank as "Mr. Schwartz," a business acquaintance. The trust company at first had declined to permit opening of the box, declaring the credentials of the New York detectives did not comply with the bank's rule. However, at the request of the bank, a telegraphic plea for opening of the box was sent by District Attorney Dodd and the institution finally complied.

Statement Made by Pantano.

District Attorney Dodd last night made public this report of Pantano's statement to him:

"For thirteen months, from June, 1920, to June, 1921, inclusive, I worked at the Irving Bank on New Utrecht Avenue. Then, from Dec. 26, 1922, to May 23, 1923, I worked in the West End Bank, after which I left to go into business with my father. Last Summer I met Joe Diamond, an old school chum of mine, and he questioned me about the method used to transfer money between banks. He was curious to know all the details. I told him that was inside dope and I couldn't give it out. I didn't take him seriously then. He didn't press me very hard for the information, and I forgot all about it.

"Then, last month, I met Joe again at the West End Bank and he asked me again about the transportation of money between banks. He said: 'Have you a car?' I said I had and that it was standing outside the bank. 'We went out together and he looked it over. 'This car would carry a lot of stuff,' he said, 'do you want to sell it?' I said sure I did, and we rode together in it over to his factory on East Twenty-second Street, Manhattan.

"We stopped there for a few minutes and when he came out we went up to Williamsbridge Road, where we went to a low, brick house. There we met a number of other fellows and pretty soon Barlow Diamond came in. We all talked for a while about the transfer of money from banks and finally one of the strangers drew a revolver, pushed me up against the wall and, putting the gun against me, said: 'Now you know all about it, the transfer of this money. Give us the right steer and we'll fix you up. If you give us a bum steer, we'll kill you.'

"Then one of the Diamond boys, I don't know which one, said to me: 'They're bad men, Tony, and you'd better tell them all you know. Then I told them about the transfer of payrolls from the bank, but I didn't tell them the truth. Later they kept asking me if I was sure I had given them the right dope.

"Two days before the hold-up a couple of the men whom I met in the house met me in an automobile outside the West Side Bank and made me get in the car with them. We drove to the Diamond factory in Manhattan, where we met Barlow. Barlow said to me: 'These fellows are dope fiends and bad men and you'd better deal right with them.'

Finally Told Them of Messengers.

"Then I told them about the money carried by Barlow and McLaughlin. I didn't take any part in the holdup or have anything to do with it. I was that day working with my father in his olive oil store in Carmine Street, Manhattan. After the hold I saw Willie Fried and he told me to keep my mouth shut."

Captain George Busby of the Bath Beach detectives, said yesterday: "I am convinced we have succeeded in breaking up one of the worst gangs of stick-up men that has ever preyed on the city. The deeper we get into this thing the more members of the gang are involved. At first we thought only three were concerned. Now we know there were many."

Inspector John D. Coughlin said he expected the early arrest of the three men still at large and that with their capture the case would be ready for the Grand Jury. He praised the work done by Sergeant James Reilly and by Joseph Tobin and William Hunt, fingerprint experts.

In the Homicide Court yesterday, Magistrate Cobb held Mezzano without bail for examination next Wednesday on the charge of murdering Bankoff.

"Bless the police!" Mrs. Catherine Barlow of 2,139 Eighty-sixth Street, Bensonhurst, Brooklyn, widow of one of the slain bank messengers, exclaimed when she learned last night of the confessions said to have been obtained from the prisoners.

"I have been ill ever since that awful day when my husband was murdered," Mrs. Barlow said, "but the news of the arrest of these men has braced me up considerably. I shall rest more comfortably now, knowing that the guilty ones are not to go unpunished."

CLERK SENT TO SING SING.

Convicted of Theft of $15,000 From His Employers.

Joseph E. Byington, 28 years old, who has a wife and two children at 360 East Thirty-second Street, Brooklyn, was sent to Sing Sing yesterday for from fifteen to thirty months when he pleaded guilty to the theft of $15,000 from his former employers. His relatives offered to make restitution if sentence was suspended, but an attorney for the firm, Arkell & Douglas, dealers in farm and garden implements at 73 Pearl Street, rejected the offer, saying that the firm was willing to stand the loss if Byington were sent to prison as a warning to other dishonest employes.

Byington, who had been employed by the firm for the last six years, received a salary of $35 a week. Several months ago the firm learned that he was living beyond his means and was lavishly loaning money to relatives and friends. They investigated and discovered that the man had been stealing on an average of $300 a week for a year. Byington confessed when he was arrested, and said that he lost part of the money in bucket shops. He added that a salesman for another firm induced him to steal the money and asserted that he split fifty-fifty with him.

Tells of $4,500 Weehawken Hold-Up

The police of Weehawken, N. J., are investigating a report made yesterday by Jacob Walden of Brooklyn that he had been held up and robbed of $4,500 in cash and a $1,200 diamond ring last Monday.

HAMMOND FITS A TALE TO COAL SETTLEMENT

Illustrates Pinchot's Wage Increase Offer by a Friend's Sale of a Mining Claim.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—John Hays Hammond, erstwhile Chairman of the United States Coal Commission, dropped in at the White House today for a call on C. Bascom Slemp, the President's Secretary.

As he left the Executive Offices, Mr. Hammond stopped in the corridor to chat with newspaper men who had been with him during the last coal strike. The talk drifted to the Pinchot settlement, and some one suggested that the miners must been agreeably surprised when the Pennsylvania Governor offered a 10 per cent. wage increase as the major solution, while the workers generally had been expecting 5 per cent. as the best offer.

"Yes," said Mr. Hammond, "a surprise somewhat similar to that experienced by a friend of mine, an old California prospector, who was approached by a London engineer.

"'Gene,' he said, 'I think we will buy your claim. What do you want for it?'

"'Well,' said my friend, 'I think ten thousand is a fair price,' and the London man agreed.

"Imagine my friend's surprise when he got the check—for £10,000, and not dollars, as he thought he had been stipulating. He didn't lose much time getting to the bank, and neither did the miners at Harrisburg."

ENGINEERS BACK TAX CUT.

Raymond L. Moore Would Exempt Ex-Service Men for Five Years.

Prompt resumption of a country-wide construction program in the industrial and railroad fields is not possible until public confidence is restored by a reduction of Federal taxes such as that proposed by the Secretary of the Treasury, according to Charles W. Leavitt, President of the American Institute of Consulting Engineers, Inc., who advised President Coolidge by letter yesterday of the organization's support of the Mellon plan.

As one interested in both the tax and bonus questions, Raymond L. Moore of Raymond L. Moore & Co., Inc., 276 Fifth Avenue, has written to Secretary Mellon suggesting that in addition to the proposed income tax reductions all World War veterans whose net income is less than $10,000 be exempted from paying any income tax for five years. According to Mr. Raymond, this would be "an ideal way for the nation to honor its veterans, and every veteran so honored would naturally appreciate it accordingly." His letter says:

"This plan would compensate a man who gave up a high-salaried position as well as a man who gave up a low-salaried position, as in most cases the earning power was not lessened by the war; that is, the men who suffered the largest income loss by joining the service of their country will, providing their earning power is unchanged, benefit mostly by the elimination of tax for ex-service men. The men who did not give up such lucrative positions will benefit in a proportionate way, as the earning power of the great majority of service men, if changed, is greater than when they left to go into the service, and they will benefit on a pro rata basis by the amount of income tax from which they will be exempted."

BALM FOR TAXPAYERS.

Dress Manufacturers Told of Provision to Equalize Burden.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 28.—A "relief valve" in the income tax law was pointed out by J. Austin Smith, industrial engineer of New York City, in an address before the closing session of the annual convention of the Associated Dress Industries of America here today.

"In writing the income tax laws," said Smith, "Congress foresaw that some of you, because of unusual and exceptional conditions affecting your capital and income, would pay much higher taxes than others. Therefore it inserted a clause to the effect that if one taxpayer pays a tax of 60 per cent. of the income and can show that this is due to exceptional conditions regarding capital and income, the tax will be reduced to the average tax paid by other representative competitive concerns.

"It is absolutely essential, in order for a taxpayer to come within the purview of these relief sections, to show that two distinct conditions are present:

"First, that abnormal conditions affect either its income or capital, or both; second, that its tax is very high."

A resolution endorsing the proposed tax reduction plan of Secretary Mellon was adopted unanimously.

COPELAND OPPOSES A CURB ON JUDGES

Senator, Back From Making Plea for Craig, Says Public Opinion Is Enough.

LABOR FAVORS INQUIRY

Central Council Asks Congress to Act and Recommends Election of Judges.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, coming to New York from Washington yesterday, said that he felt very hopeful that President Coolidge would grant his request for a pardon for Mr. Craig, but said that he opposed the suggested plans for diminishing the power of the courts as the result of the Craig case.

According to Senator Copeland, he based his appeal to the President for clemency on the ground of a reasonable doubt of the Controller's guilt, and stated in his application that the merits of the case had never been reviewed by a court other than Judge Mayer, who imposed the sentence.

"I pointed out," said Senator Copeland, "that the Supreme Court had indeed found against Mr. Craig on a matter of legal procedure, but that it had not been able to act on the merits of the proposition. Thus the only recourse left to the Controller was executive clemency."

Ridiculing the idea that the President would not act without a personal appeal from Mr. Craig, Senator Copeland continued:

"Why should the President have to have an application for pardon from the Controller himself? Would you or any one let the Controller go to jail simply because he declined to ask for clemency? I made the application formally, as the Controller's friend and as a former associate of his in the government of New York City. I did it after I had discussed the case with President Coolidge and as a matter of record so that the President could have something definite before him."

According to Mr. Copeland, he described the situation in detail to the President, setting forth the importance of the Controller in the administration of the city affairs, and emphasizing the hardships which might accrue to the city by the imprisonment of its financial head.

Expects Pardon Will Be Granted.

Told that some of Controller Craig's friends expected a pardon to arrive within forty-eight hours, or some time tomorrow, Senator Copeland replied:

"I am afraid the wish is father to the thought. I don't think any pardon will be here by then. I expect that the President will consult the Attorney General and that he will act in due time after that."

"Do you think the President will pardon Mr. Craig?"

"I certainly hope so and I also expect that it will," Senator Copeland replied.

Senator Copeland was then asked for his attitude toward the proposal to ask Congress for legislation limiting the power of Federal Judges. Representatives Hamilton Fish Jr. and F. H. LaGuardia of New York and Representative Frederick N. Zihlman have already come out in favor of this proposal.

"I am opposed to any kind of legislation that has to do with changing the powers of the courts," Mr. Copeland said. "It has taken us 134 years to build up our judiciary system to its present state. There is enough power in public sentiment to handle any miscarriage of justice, without attempting to devise new legislation that might hamper the courts. I am opposed to any attack on the judiciary. I think that we can get along as we are as long as we have an enlightened public opinion.

"How many times has an act of Congress been set aside by the courts? In the whole history of the United States Supreme Court this has happened just thirty-nine times. How many cases in the Supreme Court have been settled by five to four decisions? This has happened only nine times.

"In the whole history of the United States Supreme Court I have heard of only two other cases similar to Mr. Craig's. One was in the McKinley Administration and the other, I think, in the Fillmore Administration. Each was promptly rectified by Executive clemency. Now comes the Craig case, and I believe it will be settled in the same way. I feel hopeful that the President will grant a pardon, as long as we have an enlightened public opinion no court and no public official is likely to go wrong without a being caught in the meshes."

Asked for his position on the investigation of Federal receiverships as proposed by Samuel Untermyer, Senator Copeland said that he had not had time to give this suggestion enough consideration to warrant expressing an opinion. "I would be very slow in upsetting a method that had been established during the years," he said.

Mills Silent on Views.

Representative Ogden L. Mills, when asked yesterday for his position on the proposed legislation for limiting the power of Judges, said:

"I have not seen any formal plan for such legislation and until I know more about the proposition I prefer not to say anything about it. I think there has been altogether too much loose talk about it already."

Questioned about Representative Fish's statement in favor of such legislation, Mr. Mills replied: "Well, Mr. Fish is not a lawyer and he is not thoroughly conversant with the procedure of the courts. This is a matter which requires thorough study and understanding of the law and court procedure."

Joseph M. Price of 305 Broadway, who organized the Mitchel and Curran fusion campaigns, issued a statement yesterday saying that too much sympathy had been wasted on Craig and that the Controller had brought the conviction and sentence upon himself by his sort of contempt for contempt of court. Mr. Price related in detail the history of the case in 1919 when Craig was fined by Justice Manning for a bond issue over a restraining order of the Court. Mr. Price's statement read:

"It seems that a great amount of unnecessary sympathy is being wasted upon the Controller. The Controller is no babe in arms' at the law, nor is his very astute counsel whom he employed in Mayor Hylan's contempt case. They knew perfectly well what they were doing when they brought the case before the courts on habeas corpus proceedings instead of having the case tried on its merits.

"The contempt case to which I refer, was the one resulting from an action brought by William Jay Schieffelin against the Controller and other members of the Board of Estimate, to enjoin the issuance of $4,000,000 of the City corporate stock, as unauthorized by the law. A restraining order was issued by the court in that action, which the Controller ignored.

"After examining voluminous affidavits for and against the motion to punish the Controller for contempt, Mr. Justice Manning of the New York Supreme Court, now sitting in the Appellate Division, Second Department, rendered an opinion condemning the Controller.

"On Dec. 8, 1919, Controller Craig appeared in court and refused to retract, whereupon the court fined Mr. Craig $250 per day. From this fine Mr. Craig appealed to the Appellate Division, which affirmed the ruling of Justice Manning, and when Mr. Craig endeavored to appeal to the Court of Appeals, that court dismissed his appeal. Mr. Craig there after said the fine, after an order to commit him to jail for failure to do so had been submitted to the court.

Manning Criticizes Craig.

"In the opinion rendered by Justice Manning, as reported in The New York Law Journal of Dec. 1, 1923, the Justice made some very scathing remarks upon the conduct of the Controller. He stated that notwithstanding the 'significant fact that the restraining order in question had been served upon the Controller personally, nowhere in his statement does it appear he in anywise recognised the order.' He states elsewhere that the Controller's 'reasoning is fallacious and he excuse a puerile one.' In another part of the opinion Justice Manning remarks 'why the Controller failed in his bounden duty is nowhere satisfactorily explained.' In addition, he states that the Controller 'is also a lawyer of standing at the Bar and 'if any one should be held in strict accountability and be expected to render due obedience to injunctions and orders of our courts, the Controller is that man.' 'That he was lamentably remiss in the discharge of his sworn duty.' Justice Manning's opinion stated that the Controller was 'guilty of a constructive or civil contempt, and must be punished in some measure unless he purges himself of the charge.'

"Controller Craig has felt himself to be above the courts, unless he appeals to them, which he frequently does, to further his own interests.

"Sixty days in jail for the Controller of the City of New York may work considerable hardship and inconvenience to the city, and the sentence should probably be modified if possible, but if it is not, the Controller has brought this thing upon himself, which as shown above is not his only conviction for contempt of court."

Gustavus A. Rogers of Jenks & Rogers, attorneys, of 67 Wall Street, said yesterday that it would be a great misfortune if the misunderstanding out of the Craig case were allowed to destroy confidence in the courts, "especially at a time when distemper is rife and unrest and general dissatisfaction are so acute.

"I am much concerned with the matter," said Mr. Rogers, "as a citizen and a lawyer, finding in my daily meeting with people, particularly laymen, great misconception as to what it is all about, and in the minds of some that Mr. Craig is a very much abused man, who because of highly technical objections to the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court has been or is about to be unjustly deprived of his liberty; in short, that his fate is martyrdom."

Recommends Appeal Now.

Mr. Rogers suggested that as Mr. Craig's procedure in taking the case to the Supreme Court without an ruling from Judge Mayer's decision has proved erroneous and that the Controller should now take an appeal on the merits of the case. He said he did not believe there was no way to take such an appeal at this time, "especially if the Judge who made the order and the United States Attorney are willing that there should be a hearing on the merits."

"If Mr. Craig is not satisfied that he has had a fair review of his case because the merits may not have been fully inquired into," he went on, "then it would seem to me that since he himself selected the procedure by which, in the first instance, he would test the validity of Judge Mayer's order, that his application should be, if not for clemency, which he says in the newspapers he does not want, for an order setting up a record in which the entire matter could be sent to the Appellate Court for adjudication on the merits.

"There are other methods which are open to him. The Court which committed him for contempt may, for good cause, order his discharge. It may be (I do not know) that the dissenting opinions of Mr. Justices Holmes and Brandeis may, upon re-argument, either convince the Judge that his order is too broad, or perhaps that it should not stand. Again, there may be no other remedy, it would seem to me that mandamus might lie since, as you know so well, this extraordinary writ will issue when the applicant has a clear right and there is no other specific or adequate remedy; and, finally, there is the power in the President to pardon him. There can be no doubt as to this. It is stated in 9 Cyc. at page 61:

"'Since a contempt of Court is an offense against the State and not against the Judge personally, an order of the Judge inflicting punishment for contempt is within the range of the pardoning prerogatives vested in the executive.' (In this case the President.)

"No one sympathizes more than I do with any public official who finds himself in the position in which Controller Craig is. A term of imprisonment for performance of a duty according to a man's conscience is not a pleasant anticipation, but in the last analysis, whether he has or has not transcended or violated the law is for the courts and not for him to decide.

"The proper thing to do, therefore, is if it can be done, to have the court of last resort pass squarely on the merits. If it be found by the courts that he was wrong, it is the duty of every citizen to uphold the court. If he has done no wrong, then the Supreme Court can be relied upon to see that he is not unjustly punished. But let us all join in the sincere effort to preserve the confidence of the public in the judiciary as an institution: if its methods of judicial administration are to be changed let us go about it coolly and calmly at a time when we can do it dispassionately."

Mr. Rogers said that if his views of proper procedure could be followed it would take the case out of President Coolidge's hands and thus relieve the President of another burden added to his heavy duties at a time when Congress is ready to convene and important world affairs are awaiting immediate attention." He added that his law partner, former Justice Almet F. Jenks of the Appellate Division, concurred in his views.

Inquiry by Congress Asked.

John P. Coughlin, Executive Secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Council, yesterday made public resolutions on the Craig case adopted by the council. The resolutions demand a Congressional inquiry into the contempt proceedings; a conference of the Congressmen of the metropolitan district to decide upon a policy in case impeachment proceedings against Judge Mayer should be instituted; an application to the American Federation of Labor to fight summary trial and imprisonment, and amendment of State and Federal laws to require the election of all Judges.

The council in a preamble to its resolutions said that Controller Craig was convicted for contempt of court for an expression of his candid opinion of a situation developing out of the tangled traction conditions in New York City.

"Such traction situation," it said, "has been dragged through the economic and political life of this city for eighteen years, it being charged that the whole system of traction has been so prostituted by the selfish individual as to have caused a general breakdown in the rolling stock, to the end that overcrowding is apparent and the service to the general public is of such a nature as to be precarious, this being exemplified by the disastrous wrecks on the elevated structures, short-circuiting in the subway structures, and noisy, inefficient, antiquated service on the so-called surface lines."

It is also alleged in the preamble that "there has been a tendency among Federal Judges in recent years to usurp powers not apparently granted to them by the Federal Constitution and its subsequent amendments, as is exemplified by the conviction of a newspaper editor in one of the Southern States recently and several personal expressions of certain District Judges in the various jurisdictions of the District Courts of the United States."

"The appointment of Federal Judges," it continues, "is such that sometimes it is difficult and the personal equation at the time of appointment is difficult to analyze, permitting some pompous, self-important individual, whose weakness in this direction may not be apparent until possessed of this despotic power."

The Complete Resolution.

The resolution itself reads as follows:

"Resolved, That the Central Trade and Labor Council of Greater New York and vicinity, in the interest of free government and a perpetuation of the principles of Washington, Jefferson and other founders of freedom, petition Congress, first, to inquire into the causes leading up to the events that force a respectable American citizen, serving in the second highest financial position in civil life in the world, to be incarcerated for sixty days in a county jail; and be it further

"Resolved, That should it be determined that impeachment proceedings are necessary the representatives of this district institute such proceedings, first, by calling a meeting of the seventeen Congressmen in the metropolitan district agreeing on a policy of such impeachment; and be further

"Resolved, That the Central Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York and vicinity take counsel with the officers of the American Federation of Labor to have the laws so amended as to remove such summary trial and imprisonment from the hands of any single individual, holding to the principle that where an individual or individuals may have been presumed in civil or criminal contempt of court by violation of a right of injunction, so called, issued in time of strikes or otherwise, they be accorded the privilege of a trial by jury; and be it further

"Resolved, That our Federal and State laws be so amended as to require the election of Judges by the people, whether that Judge be created in the Supreme Court of the United States or in the petit courts of the municipality commonly understood as the police courts."

Controller Charles L. Craig announced yesterday the appointment of Charles F. Kerrigan as Deputy Controller to succeed the late Henry Smith. Mr. Kerrigan has been Secretary of the Department of Finance since Jan. 1, 1918. He was one of the Controller's appointees whose proposed salary increase was cut out of next year's budget just before the final budget was adopted by the Board of Estimate.

As Secretary to the Finance Department Mr. Kerrigan's salary was $7,000 a year. This was increased to $9,000 in the budget, but only $7,500 was allowed. As Deputy Controller he will now receive $10,000 a year. Mr. Kerrigan lives at 87 Lenox Road, Brooklyn. He took the oath of office yesterday before Surrogate James F. Foley.

LABOR TO FIGHT FOR CRAIG.

State Federation to Bring Bill Curbing Judges Up in Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Organized labor in New York State will endeavor to strike legislatively at the sentencing of Controller Craig of New York City for contempt of court, it was announced tonight. A bill is to be introduced at the coming session of the Legislature to prohibit what the New York State Federation of Labor terms a "direct invasion of the Bill of Rights and of the National and State Constitutions."

There will be a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Federation in Albany, Tuesday Dec. 11, for the purpose of mapping out legislation for the coming session. The delegates will be in session for two days, and the presiding officer will be James M. Holland, President of the Federation.

John J. O'Hanlon, Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Federation, said today that action would be taken regarding prerogatives of Judges who sentenced for contempt of court, as in the case of sentencing Craig.

Mr. O'Hanlon said that organized labor had been subjected to practically the same sentence as the result of the granting of injunctions in strikes.

"An injunction granted in an industrial dispute," he declared, "is directed at every member of a union, whether he is directly involved in a strike or not. For a technical violation of the injunction they are liable to contempt and imprisonment without a trial by jury.

"We shall prepare a bill to prevent the issuance of an injunction of this character until after the trial of the cases in the proper courts. We hope in this manner to limit the power of Judges to sentence for contempt. We have in mind the sentencing of Controller Craig, but also feel that organized labor has suffered under the injunction granting power of Judges."

Other bills which Mr. O'Hanlon said would be presented to the law-makers for their consideration when the session of 1924 began would be:

A measure for the creation of a State insurance fund to write insurance for workmen's compensation.

A bill to provide minimum wage boards for employed women and children.

A bill to provide forty-eight hours a week for women and minors.

While there will be other measures prepared for legislative consideration, Mr. O'Hanlon added, the above would be regarded as of paramount importance to organized labor. The anti-injunction bill would be made stronger than any similar measure which had been endorsed by organized labor, he said.

ROTHSCHILD'S ESTATE IS PUT AT £2,250,000

Will Provides for the Destruction of All His Papers and Maps on Insects in Britain.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Nathaniel Charles Rothschild, second son of the first Lord Rothschild, left a fortune estimated at £2,250,000. This means that the estate will pay death duties of about £915,000.

Mr. Rothschild left instructions for the destruction of his papers and maps concerning the distribution of insects in the British Isles, but not of papers concerning insect distribution in other lands. He directed that certain entomological publications should carry advertisements announcing that his executors, by his direction, "burned unopened, all letters, books, maps and papers in his possession, directly or indirectly giving the localities of British lepidopters received by him from his various entomological friends and acquaintances."

He bequeathed £500 and property producing £12,000 per year to his wife, sums producing £8,000 yearly to each of his children and the residue to his son, Nathaniel.

Mr. Rothschild left to the British Museum his collection of drawings of British butterflies, to the National History Museum 100 specimens of lepidopterous moths he had bred, and his collection of irises to his wife subject to selections by Kew Gardens and other institutions.

He left £10,000 to the British Museum to pay the salary of a custodian of his collection of fleas and other parasitic insects.

SEAL DOOM OF OLD LINER.

Tug to Take the Minnesota to Hamburg—Will Be Broken Up.

The Minnesota, the largest freighter under the American flag, which has been lying for more than a year at Clifton, S. I., will leave shortly in tow of a Dutch seagoing tug for Hamburg, to be broken up.

The Minnesota and her sister ship, the Dakota, were built in 1904 at Groton, Conn., for the late J. J. Hill, to carry passengers and mail from Seattle to Japan and China. The Dakota was lost on a reef in May, 1906, near Nagasaki, Japan, and her sister ship was laid up as she did not pay to operate.

When America entered the war the Minnesota was operated by the International Mercantile Marine as a transport. She brought down frequently drifting for days, and it was often said that German submarines used to come to the surface and take a look at the monster freighter but were afraid that she was a mystery ship and did not venture within reach of her guns.

Among other things the Minnesota brought 35,000 barrels of wine from California to New York, the largest amount ever carried on one ship.

court by Supreme Court Justice Wright of the District of Columbia in 1911. Mr. Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, all officials of the American Federation of Labor, were charged by Justice Wright with violation of his injunction against certain conspiracy against the Buck's Stove and Range Company. Mr. Gompers was also charged with criticizing the injunction as improper.

The United States Supreme Court dismissed the contempt proceedings in 1914 as outlawed by the statute of limitations and seemed to imply that the sentence of the lower court had been imposed in a spirit of vengeance. Justice Wright resigned the same year, after impeachment charges alleging favoritism in the conduct of his judicial office had been preferred by a subcommittee of the House of Representatives. The impeachment charges were dropped.

LAGUARDIA ATTACKS RULES OF CONGRESS

Declares Progressives' Chief Purpose Is to Insure Majority Control.

PRAISES MEN OF THE WEST

Predicts an Eastern "Stampede to the Progressive Bandwagon" in Coming Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Assailing the present rules of the House of Representatives as demanding reform as much as in the days when Joseph G. Cannon was Speaker, Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York issued tonight the first of the individual statements expected from the Radical-Progressive group. The statement indicated strongly that the Nelson faction will insist on their plan that bills must be released from committee pigeon holes to the floor when two-thirds of the members so request.

The note that the Progressives hope will bring the Western agriculturists into harmony and understanding with Eastern industry was echoed again by Mr. LaGuardia, who declared he saw "a great stampede to the Progressive bandwagon" just before the 1924 elections. Mr. LaGuardia has been one of the eighteen men counseling with Representative John M. Nelson for three days on the Radical-Progressive platform.

"The Progressive movement is not the result of the ambitions of any one man, nor is it a movement artificially created," said Mr. LaGuardia. "The Progressive movement is simply the inevitable result of economic and political conditions throughout the country.

Insists on Majority Rule.

"The one dominant purpose of the Progressive movement in Congress is to make possible government and legislation by the majority. It must be clear to every one that a majority in Congress represents always a majority of the country. Heretofore, owing to control in both parties by a small group representing or, at least, better understanding the desires and aims of the special interests, those interests have been able to control Congress. This control has been possible, and was used by both parties, by means of inflexible rules which permitted committees, or the all-powerful Rules Committee, to steer legislation according to their own particular desires.

"In a body of 435 members under the existing rules all that is necessary is to have a majority of 21 members on each of four of the major committees to thereby censor or dictate what that legislation shall be released from the committees to the chosen representatives of the American people for deliberation in the House.

"A bill introduced, referred to a committee, and, if the bill happens to be progressive in character, or tends to disturb the arrangements of any special interest, it is simply kept in committee, although a large majority of the House may be ready to vote for it.

VATICAN MAINTAINS BREACH WITH ITALY

Repudiates Reports of Agreement Started in Connection With Alfonso's Visit.

HOLDS TO ALL ITS DEMANDS

Spanish King, Sailing for Home, Predicts Closer Ties of Latin Nations.

ROME, Nov. 28.—The Osservatore Romano, the official organ of the Vatican, in a two-column editorial today, takes issue with those newspapers which seized the occasion of King Alfonso's visit to the Vatican to declare that the breach between the Vatican and the Italian State had been healed. Not only is this not so, says the Osservatore, but all the causes which led to the breach more than fifty years ago still exist today, and the Vatican has no intention of withdrawing from its position.

To prove how fantastic were the suppositions made by many newspapers, the Osservatore quotes the original text of the bull with which Pope Benedict XV. three years ago removed the ban against Catholic sovereigns visiting the King of Italy. In that bull it was clearly stated that the Vatican's attitude must not be interpreted as "tacit renunciation of the sacred rights of the Holy See." The bull, according to the Osservatore Romano, said that Pope Benedict XV. renewed the protest made on several occasions by his predecessors and asked, again with even greater insistence that an end be put to the "abnormal condition" in which the head of the Church found himself.

The Osservatore ends with these words:

"It is not generous to use as a weapon against the Vatican the concession made in interest of all peoples and especially of the Italian people. The wound which was opened on Sept. 20, 1870, cannot be healed with hot compresses. That wound is still open and will remain open so long as means are not taken to give the Holy See complete independence and liberty and to make it obvious to the whole world that it really does enjoy that independence and liberty."

This document is characteristic of the policy of the Vatican, which, though drawing nearer to the Italian State by almost imperceptible steps, remains firm in its demand that its status be so fixed that it shall be obvious to the world that the Vatican is not a mere adjunct of the Italian Government machine. It is on this rock that all attempts so far at reconciliation between the Vatican and Italy have been wrecked.

NAPLES, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria, accompanied by their entourage, left Italy this evening on their return to Spain. An Italian squadron accompanied the Spanish battleship Jaime, on which the royal party is making the trip, far out to sea, where it fired a farewell salute and returned to port.

Prior to his departure King Alfonso addressed a message to the Italian people. In it he said that he already had expressed to the King of Italy, the Government and the Italian authorities his own and the Queen's sincere gratitude for the unforgetable welcome they had received during their visit, adding: "But at the moment of leaving the blessed land of Italy I wish to express my profound gratitude to the whole of the Italian people in order to assure them that the memory of this event will remain in our minds as among the happiest of our lives."

Reviewing the main events of the Royal visit, Alfonso's message continued:

"We traveled through about one-third of Italy and have been enabled to admire the order and discipline everywhere obtaining. We have seen all classes of society participate in demonstrations in our honor, priests rubbing shoulders with Fascisti and soldiers, aristocrats and commoners side by side. This pleased us very much, seeming to prove that the whole soul of the nation is indeed at one with that of the King and his Government.

Predicts Helpful Results.

"It was evident to the Queen and myself that the Italian nation wished not only to honor its invited guests and the head of a friendly State, but to give expression of something more—the call of kinship which across the centuries may have become faint, but which is now upholding its claims. I am especially grateful for the kindness the Italian press, whose valued assistance must be relied upon to continue the work of close and solid union between Italy and Spain.

"I have the profound conviction and the firm hope that the events of the last few days will echo to the furthest confines of the Latin world and be productive in the near future of definite results to the advantage of both Italy and of Spain.

"With mingled feelings of gratitude and affection the Queen and I leave this noble country, of which we feel ourselves to be citizens. We tender the warmest greetings and thanks and the best of wishes for the well-being of the whole of the Italian people."

Report Latins May Quit League.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—A dispatch to the Matin from Madrid says it has been learned from an excellent source that one of the subjects broached in the course of the diplomatic conversations during the visit of King Alfonso to Italy was the formation of a Latin bloc, and that one consequence of this policy, which is said already to be in the way of realization, might be the withdrawal of Italy and Spain, as well as a certain number of South American republics, from the League of Nations.

The correspondent adds that the frequently postponed visit of King Alfonso to South America will take place in the Spring, according to rumors.

SPAIN TO BUY MUNITIONS.

Makes an Agreement to Obtain Aircraft From Italy.

ROME, Nov. 28.—General Primo Rivera, President of the Spanish Military Directorate, is quoted by the newspaper Mattino of Naples as having said, in the course of an interview:

"My Government will turn its attention to the production of war material as soon as possible, also to the reorganisation of private industry, so as to be able to transfer it into war industry, should the necessity arise.

"We plan soon to organize a powerful military aviation force, and we have made an agreement with the Italian Government to this effect, as Italy constructs excellent aircraft.

"We need many Italian-finished products and Italy needs raw materials. We could supply her chiefly with coal and iron, which she lacks. I think the best combination for both countries would be for Italian vessels to arrive at Spanish ports laden with Italian goods and return laden with Spanish goods. These material links usually cement the most solid friendships."

In addition to Spain, Poland also is negotiating with Italy for a supply of military motors and airplanes.

Business Men of Mindanao and Sulu Urge Separation From Manila Government.

ZAMBOANGO, Mindanao Province, P. I., Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—The American Chamber of Commerce of Mindanao and Sulu today cabled to President Coolidge, asking for his immediate consideration of the proposal for separation of the islands of Mindanao, Sulu and Palawan from the Philippine Government as an unorganized territory under the American flag.

MANILLA, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—Governor Santos of Lanao Province, on the island of Mindanao, advising constabulary headquarters here of the killing of four Moro outlaws at Bayan, declared the encounter occurred in the market place of the hamlet, after Dato (Chief) Pauduk, a Moro, had made a seditious speech inciting his hearers to fight the authorities.

According to Governor Santos, Pauduk had been swearing other Moro chieftains on the Koran to espouse his cause, and already has gathered many men under him.

Two datos at Tarak have hoisted the red flag, Moro symbol of unrest, their object being, in the opinion of Governor Santos, "to bluff the Government, and thus gain prominence among the Moros," who are numerous in Lanao Province.

No casualties occurred among the Constabulary in the encounter at Bayan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Arrangements have been made for representatives of the Philippine independence movement to confer with Secretary Weeks and President Coolidge on Dec. 14.

Isauro Gabaldon, one of the two resident commissioners, is expected in Washington in a few days. Commissioner Guevara, colleague of Gabaldon, has been in the capital for about two months. The other members of the commission are to arrive at Seattle Dec. 7.

There was much discussion in official circles today as to what action, if any, Congress might take if the Philippine Legislature, pursuant to its policy of non-co-operation with Gov. Gen. Wood, persists in passing bills over a veto.

Two remedies thus far have been suggested. The first is that the Philippines be given the status of a territory, which would, of course, supercede the whole organic act, while the second would involve changing the organic law to read that all measures "must have the approval of the Governor General."

TEN TALKS IN A DAY BY LLOYD GEORGE

Ex-Premier Completes the First Lap of His Whirlwind Tour Through Lancashire.

BALDWIN VS. ADAM SMITH

He Tells His Glasgow Hearers He Is Closer to Great Free Trader Than Their M. P.'s.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The election campaign, now in full swing, is producing such a flood of oratory that even the largest papers can find space for only a fraction of it. Anyway, most of the speeches have now become repetitions of arguments for and against protection or free trade, brightened with occasional new points and rejoinders—sometimes witty and sometimes merely abusive—to political opponents.

Ex-Premier Lloyd George today swept like a whirlwind through a considerable part of Lancashire and yet had breath enough to deliver ten speeches. He traveled in a special saloon car attached to a local train, and everywhere he received a warm welcome. Wherever the train stopped the station platforms were densely packed with people who crowded into empty trucks on the sidings, occupied locomotives and even climbed to the roofs of buildings.

At Accrington he left the train and addressed about 10,000 people in the public square. His audience at Preston numbered some 2,000. At Bolton the station approaches were thronged and Mr. Lloyd George had difficulty in reaching his car. In the square he addressed a crowd estimated at 30,000, using an amplifier which he held in his hand. From Bolton he motored in a blinding snowstorm to Oldham, where he delivered tonight his tenth and final speech of the day at the Empire Theatre, which was filled with nearly 5,000 people. In addition, amplifiers carried his speech to a packed audience in the King's Theatre and to thousands standing in the street.

Tomorrow the ex-Premier will start on a similar tour through other parts of Lancashire.

Arctic "the Only Protectionist Sea."

In his speeches today Mr. Lloyd George declared that owing to free trade other countries had no chance with Britain in competition in neutral markets. There was only one reason for this success, and that was that free trade enabled Britain to buy material for her industries in the cheapest markets. As long as that continued her position would be absolutely secure. In competition, on the welfare of peace, sea power won in the end. There was only one protectionist sea he knew of, and that was the Arctic Ocean: Eskimos, polar bears and seals lived exclusively on home industries.

The United States could not keep out British goods; the Americans would have to put up a roof over their country to do so, and then British goods would come down the chimney.

Baldwin in Adam Smith's City.

Premier Baldwin, speaking in Glasgow tonight, said that some of his audience might think it demanded considerable temerity to come to the city of Adam Smith to advocate a departure from the fiscal practice of which he, more than any other individual, had laid the foundation; and yet that was his business. He might claim that he was far closer to Adam Smith than the great majority of representatives in Parliament, sent from Glasgow twelve months ago. Bismarck used tariffs to weld the German Empire together, and after the Franco-Prussian War he used the protective system to build up the economic position of the empire. Bismarck's example spread over Europe from that day to the eve of the World War.

Not only were conditions in Europe profoundly disturbed and profoundly unstable, but even if they were tranquil the English people would still find themselves barred beyond what they were before the war by the rising tariffs of Continental countries.

He regarded the present outlook for England's unemployed, manufacturers and men, as disastrous, and because he looked still more apprehensively to the future he was forced to ask authority to make a radical change in Britain's fiscal system.

Discusses British Shipping.

Mr. Baldwin then examined the position of the British shipping industry, saying:

"Since 1914 the British Empire tonnage has increased, mainly owing to the Dominions, by 5 per cent., but during that time every maritime power, with the exception, easily understood, of Greece and Germany, has seen a far greater proportionate increase. The seagoing tonnage of America has mounted up from under 2,000,000 to over 12,000,000 tons, or 572 per cent. Japan 107 per cent., Italy 95, Holland 83, France 77, and so forth.

"Leave on one side the abnormal increase of America, for which there are special reasons, although a considerable amount of that is running on world trade today. Let us set aside the reduction in German tonnage because of the abnormal situation there, and even then you will find that, while British tonnage has increased only by 5 per cent., tonnage under other flags has increased no less than 43 per cent."

After pointing out that Britain had less than one-half of the oil-driven tonnage possessed by America, Mr. Baldwin looked at the shipping problem from another angle.

"British shipping," he said, "is not only suffering from restriction of world trade, it is feeling the effect—and this is a very serious thing—of restrictions deliberately applied by foreign powers for the benefit of their own national interests. When in the middle of the last century we threw open our ports to the shipping of all flags practically all the leading maritime powers proclaimed the futility of discrimination and welcomed the proposal to abandon it; but of recent years and since the war the spirit of nationalism has crept into the shipping world, and I could give you instances of numerous acts by foreign Governments whose sole aim has been to limit in whole or in part specified trade to national shippers, to exclusion of our shipping—British ships, which in most instances have been pioneers in these very trades. This is going on at the very time that our ports are open to the ships of all flags.

Cities American Subsidy Bill.

"The United States Subsidy bill of 1920 provided for preferential railway rates on goods carried in American ships, reductions from income tax for American shippers equal to 5 per cent. of the freight paid on goods carried in American ships, and restriction to United States ships of half the emigrants. That bill passed Congress, although its provisions have not yet in fact been put in force. We had a subsidy bill of last year in America which threatened us with serious discrimination and was supported by the whole weight of President Harding's Administration in Congress.

"It is highly significant testimony to the tendency in foreign countries today, a tendency which, I confess, fills me with apprehension. I could quote analogous instances from the shipping policy of France, Italy, Rumania, Turkey, Chili and Peru. This discrimination in favor of national tonnage, if carried to its logical conclusion, must lead to chaos, and the matter is so serious that it was brought before the representatives of the Dominions at the recent Economic Conference, when discussions took place as to the best method in which the unity of the Empire might make itself felt if it became necessary to fight against an attack of that kind. We cannot be content with passive resistance in face of such a situation."

Says His Policy Will Benefit Canada.

Addressing an overflow meeting later and discussing his policy, Mr. Baldwin said:

"I do not say that this policy is going to bring the millennium, but I do say not only that it is the only policy for the country but it is the only policy that actually can be employed to fight unemployment and which in my belief will help our people. All through it keeps alive the most vital need for us, and that is the idea of preference within the Empire. We shall be able to have substantial preferences; it might not be much use at present to Australia or Africa, but it will be of use to Canada. It means—at least, I hope and believe that it means—that Canadian manufacturers will be able to increase in that country as against the United States manufacturers, which would lead to what is necessary there—increase in population.

"Our people must emigrate. To a certain extent our skilled men are going into protected countries. I want to see them go under the flag. It can be done, and at a time when the whole tendency of the world is to contract markets by handing a seat at the Tangier conference; then she claimed the right of direct participation in the economic agreements concluded in the Ruhr and was told she might participate in the ultimate decisions. In those agreements already reached, she will get her legitimate share of the coal shipments.

Italy, he continues, has offered to Switzerland as a free port the Township of Vado on the west side of the Gulf of Genoa, seems in addition to wish to offer Switzerland support in her controversy with France over the free zone of Upper Savoy. Such pinpricks, the writer concludes, take a broader aspect when viewed in the light of Madrid and Rome newspaper articles on the subject of the Italo-Spanish understanding. The Rome newspapers, M. Sauerwein points out, speak openly of Italian supremacy and the elimination of French power in the Mediterranean.

The Petit Parisien says that London and Paris have reached an agreement on most of the points involved in the Tangier question, but that Madrid is hesitating. This attitude on the part of Spain, the newspaper observes, seems to have been accentuated since the interviews between Primo de Rivera and Mussolini in Rome.

Tribute to Alexander Hamilton.

"They started under the genius of a great man of Scottish family, Alexander Hamilton, who devised the fiscal system of that great country. He was the first to devise a fiscal system of free trade within an area safeguarding all their home market. It was the foundation, and it laid the development and made the prosperity of that country which is now in many ways the richest and most prosperous country on the face of the earth. We want a little of that prosperity for our own people, and we are going to try and get it."

Viscount Grey was another statesman to bring in America as an illustration in support of his arguments. Speaking at Portsmouth he said America was a prosperous country because it was a continent with free trade inside its frontiers; yet, although it grew cotton, its cotton goods exports were only £26,000,000 a year compared to England's £181,000,000. The United States exported only £36,000,000 worth of iron and steel to Britain's £61,000,000 worth. He did not believe Britain could keep up these figures unless she kept an open market.

If tariffs would enable Britain to get tariffs abroad lowered, how was it that the United States, a protectionist country, had to meet as high tariffs abroad as Britain had? If this country put on tariffs it would lead to tariff race and make tariffs higher than ever. Protection, which after all only affected 10 per cent. of the unemployed, was not going to cure unemployment; it was more like a pill to cure an earthquake

LONDON, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—Election canvassers in Great Britain have found that a woman can keep a secret after all. They are complaining that, while it always has been and still is possible to draw from the men some idea of how they are to vote, rarely is easy and in most cases is impossible to drag this secret from the women; consequently, the canvassers cannot frame anything like a close estimate of the result of the polling on Dec. 6.

The women voters, the observers say, listen readily to the candidates and are fond of asking questions, but they are far more reserved than the men in expressing their own opinions and show no inclination to pledge themselves to support any party.

Commenting on this feature of the electoral campaign, The Daily Mail says that woman, as a newcomer in politics, is less susceptible to party ties and traditions, and that it matters her view is more concerned with the domestic and bread-and-butter side of things than is the men's.

Labor's latest prominent recruit is E. F. Wise, who was Mr. Lloyd George's chief adviser at the Genoa conference, and is the British representative on the permanent committee of the Interallied Supreme Economical Council. Mr. Wise is addressing many labor meetings.

SEPARATISTS SPLIT, MATTHES IS OUSTED

leaders using military titles, Captains and Colonels of the Separatist army, appeared in the Rhineland pillaging and looting. One of these even used the high-sounding title "Chief Technical Instructor of the General Staff." It was found these men were known neither on the lists of Matthes or Dorten adherents. The bands therefore were dissolved by joint order of Dorten and Matthes. But several of these leaders—whom Matthes insinuated are ex-Prussian officers—got in close touch with the Separatist chief Commander Hector Mertz. Under the latter's influence and at the instigation of Herr Rosenbaum—formerly official press representative of the Separatist Government—these elements yesterday seized the power, imprisoning members of the Cabinet at Separatist headquarters in the Coblenz Schloss.

"When I arrived there a little after 6 o'clock yesterday morning," said Herr Matthes, "I found men with carbines guarding the exits and passages inside the building. No attempt was made to molest me. I went to my office. Presently Mertz burst into the room. Taking a carbine standing beside me I laid it across my knees and asked, 'What's the matter'? 'Oh, nothing,' replied Mertz, leaving the room.

"Presently members of the Government came and told me the military chiefs had seized power. 'What are you going to do'? I asked. 'What can one do? They have arms, we have not. We can only hand over power to them.'

"'Then you are merely incompetents and cowards,' I replied. 'The only thing left to do is to dissolve the Government and wash my hands of the whole business.' And that is what was done."

Herr Matthes's opponents, of course, give a very different version. They know nothing at all about a military coup. Matthes, they say, owing to his authoritative attitude, rendered all Government impossible. Therefore they asked him to resign. This was refused, so yesterday they expelled him from the Cabinet.

As for Herr Rosenbaum he was dismissed by Matthes and now is employed as Secretary by Doctor Dorten. The Rhineland Republic, which Herr Matthes declared was ended, according to his opponents, now is really going to commence. But I think if a Rhineland Republic really becomes an actual fact it will not be that of the Separatists.

There may be a continuation of seizures of town halls and Government buildings here and there throughout the Rhineland and by the remains of Herr Matthes's "Rheinschutz" troops, but the movement is finished and finally discredited by the utter failure to establish actual executive power in the country. In order to achieve a success movement it would have to be enforced by arms, but in a country occupied by foreign powers that is impossible.

DUESSELDORF, Nov. 28 (Associated Press.)—Matthes's story of dissolving the Provisional Cabinet because of the attitude of the military section is contradicted by the adherents of Dr. Dorten, who declare that in reality Matthes was expelled from the Separatist ranks because he refused to carry out majority decisions of the Cabinet.

The Dortenites explain that the officious and dictatorial methods of Matthes became so distasteful to his colleagues that the Cabinet by a majority vote some days ago decided to limit his authority to the Bonn districts, but Matthes refused to be pushed into a back seat. The Dortenites, accordingly, handed Matthes an ultimatum yesterday to quit or be placed under arrest by the Government guard, which sided with them. Just as the ultimatum was about to expire, Matthes fled to Dusseldorf.

His story about a military coup and a letter to M. Tirard, President of the Rhineland Commission, according to the Dortenites, was purely imaginary. They declare that the Provisional Government continues to work in complete agreement with Dr. Dorten, and Rosenbaum, whom Matthes branded as a Prussian spy.

M. Tirard has announced officially that he received no letter from Joseph Matthes and if he did would take no notice of it.

Matthes, after giving his story to the world, disappeared, and attempts to find him and get his views of the Dortenite version of his flight from Coblenz have failed.

Dorten Thought to be in Control.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The London Times correspondent at Cologne reports that the opposition faction headed by Dr. Dorten is supposed to be back of the ousting of Joseph Matthes at Coblenz.

"It is known," says The London Times dispatch, "that Dorten, who latterly has been very busy organising Separatist movements in the Palatinate, arrived at Coblenz a few days ago and declared the ranks of the party must be cleansed and Matthes removed. Presumably Dorten has stepped into his shoes. There is good reason to suppose the coup d'état was carried through with the knowledge of the French, who had realised Matthes was discredited and were anxious to make the movement look more respectable."

"There have been several cases during the last fortnight in which particularly unruly gangs of Separatists in individual towns have been suppressed and disarmed by the French. This has coincided with marked progress in negotiations between Tirard and the constitutional representatives of the Rhineland, who have been brought to realize that they will be forced to accept "independence" whether they like it or not and are preparing to make the best of it. Disarming of the individual gangs of Separatists has helped the French to maintain their pretence of neutrality.

"Last night's revolution may be the first step toward making the Rhineland Republic something which is respectable and intelligent people will not regard as a comedy. It is curious that although Matthes was ejected at 6 o'clock last night and was by 11 o'clock this morning already telling his tale in French headquarters at Dusseldorf, British representatives on the Rhineland Commission at Coblenz knew nothing of the whole affair at 6 o'clock this evening. This is significant of the share which Great Britain is allowed to take in affairs of the Rhineland."

New Autonomy Move Expected.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—The fall of the Matthes Government has come as no surprise to the French, for even the most eager supporters of the separate Rhineland movement had begun to see that he and his Cabinet never would be able to win control and respect. But information in French possession indicates that a new Separatist movement will immediately spring out of the failures of the old. It will be led by Mayor Adenauer of Cologne and a banker, Herr Hagen. Both are men of solid repute and position.

Two weeks ago they had an interview with the then Chancellor Stresemann at Berlin and it was practically decided that the movement for autonomy of the Rhineland within the Reich should be launched at the first favorable moment.

This decision was one of the contributing factors in Stresemann's fall though it was not revealed at the time. It was part of his policy to leave the Rhineland in strong local hands and the Ruhr to look after itself in French hands while he reorganised the rest of Germany.

With Adenauer and Hagen the Chancellor decided that for a time at least the sacrifice should be made of the Rhineland and they were charged with bringing the movement begun by Matthes and Dorten to an end and starting another in conformity with Berlin's policy and within the Constitution of Weimar.

Here it is believed that this decision has, in spite of the fall of Stresemann, largely contributed to the ruin of Matthes, and there will now be started an autonomous movement well led and well supported. From France there probably will be no opposition. It is realized that even though an autonomous State under control of Berlin may not be an ideal solution, it is the best practical one.

SEIZE ARMS FROM REDS.

German Police Get 24 Machine Guns, 4,000 Revolvers and 500 Rifles

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—An object lesson of the Communist activities in Germany was provided in the Prussian Diet today when a table was covered with rifles, revolvers and machine guns by order of the Minister of the Interior Severing as proof of the Communists' preparations for armed revolt.

The Communist Deputies had protested vigorously against the arrest yesterday by the Communist woman, Deputy Rosi Wolffstein. In reply Herr Severing said yesterday's demonstrations were carried out by order of the Moscow Executive Committee and constituted a rehearsal of the proposed general outbreak.

He also announced that twenty-four machine guns, 4,000 revolvers and 500 rifles had been confiscated from the Communists since Nov. 15.

12,000 RETURN TO WORK.

French Sign an Agreement With Mannesmann Company.

COLOGNE, Nov. 28.—The first important result of the Ruhr coal agreement was the contract signed today at Düsseldorf between the Mannesmann concern and the French Mines and Factories Commission covering both coal mines and metal works. As a result of this, 40 per cent. of the work people in the Mannesmann coal pits and foundries will return to work tomorrow. This represents about 12,000 men.

Provisionally the old working hours will be continued. The re-engaged men all have been selected from those with families and dependents, but there is great bitterness among the remainder that they have not all been allowed to return to work.

Details have reached Cologne of serious fighting which took place last Saturday between Separatists and the population of Düren. An organized attack was made by a crowd of work people, largely unemployed, on the prison where Separatists kept their prisoners and as two Separatist headquarters. The buildings were captured and prisoners released. But then the armed Separatists retaliated. There was fierce fighting in which ten Separatists and six townspeople are said to have been killed and a large number wounded on both sides.

BRITISH ARE FIRM FOR ARMS CONTROL

Statements in the Paris Press on Attitude Toward Germany Are Denied.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—In regard to statements in the Paris press as to instructions sent to General Bingham, the British representative on the Interallied Military Control Commission in Berlin, it is stated in official circles in London that the instructions which have been sent to the General are in exact accordance with the decisions reached by the Ambassadors Conference on Nov. 21. After a rather critical discussion a unanimous note was handed to the German Chargé d'Affaires in Paris informing him that the allied Governments reserved to themselves absolute freedom to resume "operations of military control" in Germany "preserving full latitude in deciding what are the operations whose execution appear to them for the time being realizable and necessary."

This last phrase was understood to be a concession to the view strongly held by the British Government and pressed by Lord Crewe that inspections should not for at present be carried out in districts where the presence of French and Belgian officers would be likely to provoke incidents. Instructions in this sense have, accordingly, been sent to General Bingham.

At the same time it is emphasized that the British Government realized explicitly the importance of the disarmament question—which is of far more serious character than the recent return of the former Crown Prince to Germany—and intend to allow no misunderstanding of their attitude, which is that the treaty stipulations must be complied with and necessary investigations carried out.

Prepare for Test on Ruhr.

LONDON, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—England's relationship with France on the reparation issue will be put to another severe test on Friday when Sir John Bradbury presents his Government's views on the Düsseldorf agreement and the intention of France and Belgium to retain part of the Ruhr payments and deliveries for their own occupational accounts. Whether the truce recently arrived at between the London and Paris Governments in the Council of Ambassadors will weather future storms depends largely upon the results of Friday's meeting.

British political observers hold that the Düsseldorf agreement, which was signed between the Franco-Belgian authorities and the German industrialists, means something more than reparation payments and deliveries. They see in it a move toward the economic separation of the Ruhr and Rhineland from the rest of Germany, with those two areas having a relationship to the Central Government something like an American State does to the Washington Government or a British Dominion to the British Empire.

These observers declare that the French, realising that political separatism has failed, are concentrating on the industrial secession of the Ruhr and Rhineland from Berlin. England views this latest move with entire disapproval, and it is regarded as only one of many indications that the two countries are getting further apart every day on the question of how to deal with Germany.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—The visit to London of Sir John Bradbury, British delegate on the Reparation Commission, is explained today by the Temps in an editorial article as being connected with preparations for an attack on the commission, the plans for which, it says, a number of experts are working on under the "inspiration" of the British Foreign Secretary, Marquis Curzon.

The Temps predicts that the attack will turn upon the question of the Franco-Belgian right under the Treaty of Versailles to occupy the Ruhr, and that the commission will be invited to interpret the article of the treaty upon which this right is based by the occupying powers. The article represents the British as arguing that a correct interpretation will establish that no such right exists.

SAYS GERMANY FACES PLAIN BANKRUPTCY

Dr. Gothein Tells Reichstag Foreign Loan Under Allied Supervision Is the Sole Hope.

BERLIN, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—Germany is immediately confronted with a plain case of a state of bankruptcy and will no longer be able to meet her public payrolls, in the opinion of Dr. Georg Gothein, Democratic Reichstag leader, who today vigorously upbraided the Socialists and German Nationalists for having needlessly precipitated a parliamentary crisis.

Dr. Gothein declared Germany's only salvation in the present situation would be in the form of a foreign loan under Allied supervision, similar to that applied in the case of Austria.

Sixteen and one-half million trillions of marks in new paper currency were floated by the Reichsbank in the first week of November, during which period its holdings of discounted Treasury bills, private checks and drafts increased by twenty-six and one-half million trillions. The current return was the first reported this month, a circumstance which was the subject of comment on today's dull and listless Boerse.

Dr. Schacht, the newly appointed Commissioner of Currency, hopes to have the entire issue of the rentenmark ready for distribution by the middle of next month. He declares that the scarcity of the new money is wholly due to the fact that the printers are in arrears in their deliveries and that the initial output was placed at the disposal of the Government to enable it to dispense with discounting Treasury bills.

The widespread impression that the main cause of the food scarcity in Germany is that the farmers are refusing to sell their crops, preferring to hold them for increased prices, is wholly unfounded, declared the Food Minister, Count Kanitz, to the Associated Press correspondent today.

"The farmers are willing to sell, indeed they must sell, because they need money to carry on—to pay wages and taxes," he said. "Difficulties abound, all of which have their root in the main difficulty of providing means of payment. The same troubles affect trade generally. Traders cannot restock simply because they haven't money. Business is impossible except on a small scale because the currency loses value between the time of its receipt and the time of its reinvestment in more stock.

"Another popular illusion is the idea that because this year's harvest is better than last year's imports can wait until the home stocks are exhausted. Seeing that the harvest is not nearly sufficient to feed the population and is very unequal in different parts of the country, there is need for considerable supplies from abroad. That Germany is unable to pay in foreign currency is a matter which is plain for all the world to see. I can only express the fervent hope that some agreement may be arrived at with other countries whereby Germany can obtain long-term credits in respect to the country's urgent need for cereals and fats."

RUHR MODIFICATION SET FOR NEXT MONTH

Belgium Favors Such Action, but Has Not Reached an Agreement With France.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 28.—Statements have appeared to the effect that modification is about to be made in the character of the Franco-Belgian military occupation of the Ruhr. These statements are premature, for the Paris and Brussels Cabinets have not yet discussed the subject, although they have repeatedly declared that, with the cessation of passive resistance in the Ruhr, the régime in force in January last that of "invisible occupation" would be reverted to.

It is considered here that the agreement come to between the Ruhr industrialists and the Franco-Belgian authorities is of a nature to justify a modification of the régime and a resumption of negotiations with the Government of the Reich, with a view to a general settlement of the reparation question.

Before any change is made in the occupation, Paris and Brussels wish to be convinced of the good-will of the industrialists and workers of the Ruhr. Nevertheless, it appears probable a gradual modification of the occupation will begin next month. This would be in accordance with the declaration of the Belgian Government on Jan. 11 last on the subject of the dispatch of the mission into the Ruhr.

The British Government has not yet communicated with the Belgian Government on the subject of the Ruhr settlement. The question is a delicate one, and it is thought here that an agreement may be reached which will respect the guarantees which France and Belgium intend to take for repayment of their occupation costs in the Ruhr.

FRANCE HAMPERED BY ITALY.

French Writer Points to Series of Obstacles Being Raised.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—Jules Sauerwein, foreign editor of the Matin, expresses in today's issue the conviction that Great Britain and Italy are going to raise more and more obstacles in the path of France. He says he has no doubt but that the British members of the military control commission in Berlin have received instructions which mean simply the suppression of control altogether.

Italy, M. Sauerwein asserts, is proceeding differently. She began by de-

Buying for Festive Boards Is Unusually Heavy as Price of Turkeys Breaks.

PROVIDE FOR CITY'S POOR

Charitable Societies Organize Numerous Dinners for the Needy.

Exceptionally heavy purchasing yesterday indicated that New York's table today will be laid with plenty, turkeys having slipped from their high-price perch and the "fixings" being in the market in abundance.

Following their custom, the city's charity organizations will take care of the poor, and in all of the churches services will be held, many pastors stressing the plight of Europe. Departing from its practice, however, the Charity Organization Society will not give Thanksgiving baskets this year, each applicant receiving money with which to buy the spread.

The wholesale turkey market registered prices of from 65 cents a pound to 38 cents a pound, while New Jersey prices were about the same. Philadelphia, with a price range of from 50 to 30 cents, showed the lowest prices.

About 2,000 persons are expected to be guests of the St. Andrew's One-Cent Coffee Stands Society at 31 West Eighth Street. Dinner is to be served from 11 o'clock until 6 o'clock. It will mark the society's thirty-seventh Thanksgiving Day.

Cares For 2,000 Families.

"The Charity Organization Society," said an announcement, "has nearly 2,000 families under its care this Thanksgiving time and out of its specially raised Thanksgiving fund is planning for their welfare. To the ones it knows best the organization is giving an allowance so the family may have the joy of buying and planning its dinner, adapted to its tastes and customs. Many friends have helped and some of them are sending flowers from their greenhouses to bring beauty as well as plenty to the tables of those whom misfortune has hurt. The plans have been under way for weeks in the organization's ten districts."

The Prison Association of New York, 135 East Fifteenth Street, will provide baskets for the families of men in prison. Plans were made to care for 239 children and 108 mothers. Each basket will contain a pound of beef per person and fifteen other articles.

The Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, 105 East Twenty-second Street, will provide dinners for many of the families under care of its Relief Bureau. Officials of the association said its Thanksgiving plans had materialized through the efforts of pupils at Wadleigh High School, the Community Church Sunday School of Mountain Lakes, N. J., the Horace Mann School and Miss Spence's Day School. A special dinner was served last night to the seventy old persons who work in the organization's Old Men's Toy Shop and Women's Work Rooms.

Three Shows For Welfare Island.

E. F. Albee will take the B. F. Keith Troubadors to Welfare Island this morning and three shows will be run simultaneously from 10 A. M. until 12:30 P. M. It will be the twenty-seventh entertainment for the prisoners, the Thanksgiving Day show having been originated by the late Percy G. Williams. About 100 actors and actresses will donate their services. In the list will be Nora Bayes, Pat Rooney and Marion Bent. Three orchestras from Keith theatres will furnish the music.

The day will be observed in the rooms of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, 2 East 105th Street, for the 170 boy and girl wards of the society. The program will start at 10 o'clock with a song and a celebration and then the feast will be served. The arrangements will be in charge of Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson and Mrs. Cornelius Vlers.

Turkey will be on the menu at the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital, Amsterdam Avenue and Sixty-first Street, said John R. Howard, Superintendent. The holiday feast, which will be served at noon, will be enjoyed by about 500 children and mothers, the staff of nurses and the hospital employes. The menu will consist of soup, turkey, sweet potatoes, cranberries and ice cream. The favors will be small "turkeys" stuffed with candy.

A spread and program has been arranged for the disabled veterans of the World War who are patients in the United States Veterans' Hospital 81, Kingsbridge Road and Sedgwick Avenue, the Bronx.

Smith to Attend Memorial Mass.

A memorial mass will be celebrated at St. James's Church, James Street and New Bowery, at 10 o'clock, in memory of the seventy-six young men of the district who fell in the war. Governor Smith, a member of the parish, is expected to attend.

Many Thanksgiving celebrations were held yesterday, among them a dinner out of doors. This unique affair was held on the roof of the Vanderbilt clinic, Amsterdam Avenue and Sixtieth Street, for the members of the Vanderbilt Day Camp.

The Volunteers of America distributed from their branches throughout the city dinners for 2,500 persons, as well as shoes and clothing. Most of the gifts were sent from the District Headquarters at 271 Lenox Avenue under the direction of Major J. Dowell. There was a steady stream of applicants from 9 o'clock in the morning until nightfall. Among those in line were four blind women, each with several children. All those in line had been investigated by agents of the organization. The total of shoes distributed was 1,200 pairs.

A "pigs knuckle and sauerkraut" dinner, followed by a dance, was held last night by New York Lodge 1, the Elks, at their home, 108-116 West Forty-third Street. Three hundred cripples, all working at well-paid jobs, met at the Institute for Crippled and Disabled Men, 245 East Twenty-third Street, and had a Thanksgiving Day party yesterday. The institute gives vocational training to the maimed.

The annual Thanksgiving Eve dance of the Marquette Club was held in the Rose Room of the Hotel Plaza. A Thanksgiving dance by Reville Post 127, American Legion, was held at the 103th Field Artillery Armory, 171 Clermont Field Artillery Armory, 171 Clermont the official A. E. F. motion picture, was shown before the dance.

AMERICANS IN PARIS OBSERVE THANKSGIVING

Herrick in Speech Hopes Spring and Summer of Peace Will Follow Winter.

PARIS, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—Two hundred Americans sat down tonight to a Thanksgiving dinner under the auspices of the American Club in Paris. They had as guests several distinguished Frenchmen, including Marshals Foch, Joffre and Franchet d'Esperey, Generals Gourand and Tauffleb, Mgr. Baudrillart, rector of the Catholic Institute in Paris; M. Lalou, President of the Paris Municipal Council, and Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris. It was the first time the Archbishop had been a guest at a Thanksgiving dinner. He delivered an address which brought an ovation. Ambassador Herrick also spoke. M. P. Petzotte was the toastmaster.

Mr. Herrick traced the history of Thanksgiving Day and showed how the idea of celebrating it had been carried on for years.

"The worse the year, the more the need for such a day," the Ambassador declared, adding that the day had become almost one more for expressing hope than for declaring satisfaction with the blessings vouchsafed.

The Ambassador recalled the Thanksgiving dinner of 1914, after a Summer "lean in human happiness and a Fall full of terror," and said: "Yet the forebodings of the morrow failed to prevent the giving of thanks."

"And our hopes came true," said the Ambassador. "Let us remember those days when we falter now. If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind? We have seen the Winter of war. Perhaps this is the Winter of peace. But one was followed by its Spring and the other will surely see its Summer."

Cardinal Dubois said he hoped for a continued close union between the United States and France.

"Ever present in our minds," said the Cardinal, "is your legitimate horror of war. Your aversion to indiscriminate intervention in the affairs of others long kept you far from the theatre of European hostilities; but you had faith in the distinction between the just and the unjust, and when the cause of justice appeared to you to be threatened you swore to defend it, not through fear of a danger to be warded off, but in order that you might take your share in the triumph of a noble cause.

"The ocean separates us, but history unites us—the history of yesterday and that of today. May the history of tomorrow unite us still further! Long live France! Long live the United States of America!"

HUGE PUMPKIN PIE FOR PRESIDENT'S TABLE

Admiring Chef Sends a Thanksgiving Gift Measuring 2½ Feet in Diameter.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—President Coolidge will observe Thanksgiving Day in strict accord with his Thanksgiving proclamaton, in which he called upon the American people to gather "in their homes and their usual places of worship" to give expression to their thankfulness.

The Chief Executive and Mrs. Coolidge will attend Thanksgiving services at the First Congregational Church, of which they are members, and then will have dinner with a few personal friends as guests. As in the early days when Mr. Coolidge's Puritan ancestors founded the Thanksgiving Day custom, turkey will be the chief item of the Thanksgiving dinner menu.

The turkey to be served will be one purchased by the President and Mrs. Coolidge who decided not to accept any turkeys from friends, who usually almost flood the White House with turkeys at this time of the year.

The bar was not put up against pies, however, and an admiring Washington chef tonight sent to the White House a pumpkin pie two and one-half feet in diameter. The chef notified the President he would have sent a larger pie had he been able to find a larger oven in which to bake one.

CHURCH SERVICES TODAY.

Several of the Thanksgiving Sermons to Be Broadcast Over Radio.

Special Thanksgiving services will be held in New York's churches and synagogues today. In several instances there will be union services of Protestant churches.

Bishop William T. Manning will preach the sermon at 11 o'clock in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and then will go to St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Lawrence Street, Manhattanville, where he will make an address at the centennial celebration of that parish.

A Thanksgiving mass will be offered at 9 o'clock in St. Patrick's Cathedral. The celebrant will be the Rev. Robert E. Woods. The preacher will be Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of the cathedral. At 10:30 o'clock there will be the annual mass of requiem for members of the Catholic Benevolent Legion who have died during the year. The preacher will be Mgr. John P. Chidwick, pastor of St. Agnes's Church.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson will preach at a union service of Methodist congregations in the Metropolitan Methodist Temple, Seventh Avenue, near Fourteenth Street. The Rev. Dr. Milo H. THE BRONX IS THANKFUL.

Board of Trade Head Outlines Its Reasons for Celebration.

Five hundred members of the Bronx Board of Trade were told why they should feel thankful at a Thanksgiving luncheon held yesterday in the Concourse Plaza, Grand Concourse and 161st Street, the Bronx. Some of the things for which the Board of Trade should be thankful, as outlined by President Albert Goldman who acted as toastmaster, were: the Bronx is the home of the world's champion baseball club; a Municipal Market is under construction; the finest high schools in the city are now building in the borough; the Bronx has the largest, finest and best kept park system in the city, and has the world's largest armory, which will house the biggest automobile show ever known in January.

Mr. Goldman also included in his list "that we are about to get a $1,500,000 appropriation for the Bronx Post Office and are soon to have our $2,250,000 Municipal Hospital."

Harvey Goes to Peacham for Holiday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—George Harvey, Ambassador to Great Britain, who has been a guest at the White House for a week, left today for Peacham, Vt., to spend Thanksgiving with the folks of his native town. The trip will bring realization of the hope he expressed several months ago in London when he said he wanted to clean up the slate of matters before the embassy so as to eat Thanksgiving dinner in Peacham.

and walk out in the early morning to the groves of cinnamon trees? Long before you get there you know that you are near without being told, by the delicious perfume in the air.

Pick up a piece of the bark and crush it in your hand and breathe in the odor of your small handful of sweetness and you will never forget it.

Exquisite Lamps of world-famed Lenox China

Table lamps which are really Lenox china vases in many exquisite shapes and sizes and in the softest, most elusive, most delicate of pastel tints, have joined the fine collection of lamps in the Lamp Store.

Classic shapes, new shapes, nearly all slender, tuned to the mood of a really exquisite room, these lamps have been mounted with the finest, gilt-finished bronze. And, as if that were not enough, the most artistic maker of lamp-shades in New York has created from chiffons and silks cobweb-fine shades, each of which is a perfect work of art, carrying out in finest detail the spirit and atmosphere of the lamp.

The lamps are $25 to $70, shades $16 to $150.

HOUSE IMMIGRATION FIGHT IS STARTING

Representatives From Big Cities Seek to Raise Committee From 15 to 21 Members.

CHAIRMAN OPPOSES THEM

Present Restrictionist Majority Might Be Overcome If the New Places Are Created.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Advocates of the liberalization of the immigration laws, most of them from the larger cities, are moving to obtain the enlargement of the House Committee on Immigration from fifteen to twenty-one members, according to reports heard at the Capitol today. The move is opposed by Representative Albert Johnson of Washington, Chairman of the Committee, who said today that in his opinion the problem of immigration restriction was one of the dominant issues before Congress.

As the situation now shapes up, ten of the fifteen members of the Immigration Committee of the last Congress will be members of the committee in the forthcoming Congress, the other five having been defeated in the last election. Of the ten hold-overs, there are six Republicans and three Democrats, who are counted as "restrictionists" and one other Democrat, Sabath, of Illinois.

The Republican restrictionists are Chairman Johnson and Representatives Taylor of Tennessee, Vaile of Colorado, White of Kansas, Cable of Ohio and Free of California. The Democratic restrictionists are Ranker of California, Box of Texas and Wilson of Louisiana. Mr. Wilson is more definitely classified as a "rational restrictionist."

If the Immigration Committee remains at fifteen, there will be five new members appointed, and thus those on the committee who favor a policy of restriction, will hold a majority in the committee of at least 9 to 6, even if all of the new appointees are in favor of liberalization.

On the other hand if the committee is enlarged there will be eleven new members to be appointed, creating a situation where it would be possible to override the present control and change the restriction sentiment.

As the story went today the move to bring about enlargement of the committee was being engineered by Representatives from the larger cities, where the problem was a serious one because of the big foreign population. The hope was, it was said, to get representation on the committee for centres of population like Boston, New York, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago where the pressure for liberalization of the restriction laws is strong. Representative Carew, Democrat, New York, was one of those mentioned as being an advocate of the enlargement of the committee. The movement was said to involve both Republican and Democratic leaders in New York and other large cities.

COOLIDGE TO FILL OFFICES.

Completes Message to Congress and Takes Up Recess Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—President Coolidge, having completed work on his message to Congress, turned his attention today to filling the vacancies in Federal offices which have occurred during the recess of Congress and which in about 200 cases were taken care of through recess appointments by President Harding. Mr. Coolidge has made less than half a dozen recess appointments in the four months he has been President. All recess appointments must be submitted to the Senate for confirmation.

Senator Curtis of Kansas reported to the President today the name of Edward Hackney of Wellington, Kan., a Democrat and former member of the Kansas Public Utilities Commission, for appointment on the Interstate Commerce Commission, on which several vacancies will occur next month through expiration of the terms of sitting members.

The nomination of Burt L. Haney of Portland, Ore., to be a member of the Shipping Board was urged by Senator McNary of Oregon. Mr. Haney is serving under a recess appointment made by President Harding.

Mayor Kiel of St. Louis renewed his recommendation for appointment of Vital W. Garasche to be additional Judge for the Eastern District of Missouri.

President Coolidge put the finishing touches on his message today and the document was sent to the printer. The message is comparatively brief, White House attaches declaring it to be shorter than the average of those sent to Congress by Presidents Wilson and Harding.

The President has told visitors that he framed the message with a view to presenting explicit recommendations rather than arguments and disquisitions.

Refuses to Indict Parading Poet.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The Federal Grand Jury refused today to indict John Martinowski, Latvian poet, on a charge of criminal libel because he paraded around the White House last Summer with a painted sign denouncing the Department of Justice and Government officials for alleged injustice to him. The poet is said to have lost his savings after trying to have his poems set to music with an alleged music publishing house.

SENATE DEMOCRATS DECIDE ON A FIGHT

want to brand him as a Democrat and thereby jeopardize whatever strength they have left in Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas, it is a Republican and not a Democratic affair, say the minority leaders.

In the Committee on Interstate Commerce the situation is exactly the same. Under the arrangement demanded by the Democrats there would be nine Republicans and seven Democrats and the Republican nine would include La Follette. It would not be quite so serious as to the Foreign Relations Committee, for La Follette is not a member of that committee, neither are any of his radical followers. Nevertheless the readjustment would lessen the" stranglehold which the "irreconcilables" now have on that committee.

The situation in the Senate, viewed as a whole, is therefore verging on the chaotic tonight so far as organization is concerned. Strenuous efforts will be made before Monday to effect a compromise. In the meantime the La Follette group is marking time. It has the balance of power, knows it and is ready to exercise its power. Republicans are hopeful that President Coolidge will be able to deliver his message on Wednesday, but they are not offering any odds that he will appear on that day.

GRAHAM QUITS HOUSE FIGHT.

Backs Longworth for Leader, but Wins Farm Bloc Terms.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Representative William J. Graham of Illinois who has been actively campaigning against Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio for the floor leadership of the House of Representatives, withdrew from the race this afternoon, leaving the field free to Mr. Longworth.

The withdrawal was made on the condition that three of the vacancies on the Steering Committee should go to Representatives of the Middle West and other Western agricultural districts. As the group which supported Mr. Graham for the floor leadership already has a representative on the Steering Committee in Representative Anderson of Minnesota, the addition of three more members of the same view will give it a majority on the committee of seven.

As soon as Mr. Graham's announcement was made, Old Line Republican House leaders took the position that there would be no particular difficulty in effecting a House organization when Congress meets next week, now that the Graham group had returned to the regular fold. The radical-progressive group, of which Representative Nelson of Wisconsin is the outstanding head, laughed at this suggestion, and reiterated that they still held enough votes to disrupt any attempt to organize.

The three Steering Committee vacancies for the agricultural group will be supplied by a member from Illinois, presumably Mr. Graham; a member from the Pacific Coast, presumably Mr. Sinnott of Oregon, and a member from the farming region in the centre of the country, perhaps Mr. Dickinson of Iowa or Mr. Tincher of Kansas. There is another vacancy, not insisted upon by the agricultural representatives, and it is understood that Representative Magee of Syracuse, N. Y., has been selected for this position.

Representatives Anderson of Minnesota, Sanders of Indiana and Darrow of Pennsylvania are holdovers members of the Steering Committee, and it is believed that they will be returned. Mr. Longworth, as floor leader, will be ex officio Chairman of the committee.

Graham's Formal Withdrawal.

The statement by Mr. Graham announcing his withdrawal reads:

"Approximately ninety Republican members of the House have expressed their intention of supporting me for the position of floor leader. Some are noncommittal. If all elected members were present at the conference, it would require 113 to elect.

"Those who have been kind enough to support me have, I believe, had in mind the desirability for an organization that would adequately represent the rank and file of the Republican Party throughout the entire country, and it seemed to those who generously supported that my candidacy aimed in that direction.

"As it has become evident to me that I will not have votes enough to elect, I have decided in the interests of my party's unity, and good feeling, to withdraw from the contest. I believe by so doing I can better contribute to the enactment of progressive legislation, which is the principal concern of the men with whom I have been co-operating in this contest.

"In doing this I have had no desire for personal honors, nor am I seeking any other office or position except membership on the committee of which I have been heretofore a member, the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. But whatever may be my personal wishes, I consider it vitally important that the preponderating influence on the Steering Committee of the Republican majority be composed of members who represent the great agricultural country of the Middle West and West.

"The legislative program of the House of Representatives is determined by the steering committee of the majority, composed of seven members. If a majority of this committee are members who have at heart the welfare of the agricultural interests of the country, and if the majority of this committee is fairly representative of the Middle West and Western portions of the country, then I believe an organization of the House, with Mr. Gillett as Speaker and Mr. Longworth as floor leader, will be representative of the varied interests of the whole country.

"I have no other concern than this, but I and those who have co-operated with me, believe that this is of supreme importance, and it is for this we have been making our contest.

"I am withdrawing under an express understanding and agreement that this recognition upon the Steering Committee will be granted, and that the majority of the Steering Committee, during the Sixty-eighth Congress, will be composed of representatives of agricultural constituencies and men who have at heart the interests of agriculture generally, as well as all other interests of the country."

Longworth Predicts Harmony.

Mr. Longworth commented on the Graham statement, that it was "very pleasant news." He continued:

"It brings assurance of the organization of the House by the Republicans without any friction and in perfect harmony. Mr. Graham's statement is dignified, and I am entirely in sympathy with the purpose he seeks, to make the Steering Committee one which gives full recognition to all the geographical, and to the agricultural, as well as to the other interests of the country."

As the rumor of Mr. Graham's position spread about the Capitol and the House Office Building, Old Guard Republicans began to congratulate each other. Although many of them had regarded the Graham candidacy as brought into the field purely for the purpose of trading for increased representation on the Steering Committee, the Republicans disliked extremely the thought that the fight might be carried into the caucus Saturday, and perhaps to the floor of the House.

The composition of the Steering Committee under the agreement caused special interest, for it was seen that New England, represented in the last Congress by Frank Greene, now Senator from Vermont, was left out of the combination. The drive against New England has been a great talking point for the Progressives, who complained that the offices of President, Speaker of the House, floor leader of the Senate and the chairmanship of important committees were held by men from that locality.

Nelson Group Framing Program.

The influence of the Nelson faction still caused uneasiness. It was recognized that the Radical-Progressives were able to cause an upset in the organization, because of the narrowness of the margin between the Republican and Democratic votes. On the whole though, the Old Guard Republicans and the Graham coalition discounted this outcome. They seemed to feel that the attacks of the Nelson group would simmer down to nothing.

Behind closed doors Mr. Nelson and his lieutenants worked on the program they will submit to a caucus of their supporters on Friday. Invitations were sent out to sixty members to attend this meeting, it was said. The invitation stated:

"The conference is held for the purpose of enabling your Chairman, Secretary and Executive Committee to report to you on work done, and for the purpose of submitting to you for discussion a program of matters demanding your attention. You are requested to contribute your views on questions in which you as a Progressive Republican should be deeply interested, and you are urged to be present at the hour above noted in order that the conference may begin promptly at the appointed time."

Mr. Longworth has virtually reached agreements with the Democrats on committee assignments. Democratic membership on the Ways and Means Committee will be raised to eleven, and as the Democratic leaders expect to remove Representative Martin of Louisiana from that committee there will be four places ready for men whom they wish to place there. Representatives Hull of Tennessee, Rainey of Illinois, Dickinson of Missouri and Casey of Pennsylvania.

As the statement has been made that Democrats, by remaining absent, will allow the Republicans to organize the House, Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, sent telegrams this afternoon to all absent men of his party, asking them to come to Washington in time for their caucus Saturday. There are now about 125 Democratic members in the city and it was said that when the House met next Monday not more than ten of the minority members would be absent.

MEDICAL QUACKS PREY UPON ALIENS

Get Millions of Dollars Annually Through Advertisements in Foreign Language Press.

SPREAD DEATH AND MISERY

Dr. Antonio Stella Tells of One Case Where Misinformed Patient Committed Suicide.

Deceived by physicians' advertisements in foreign-language newspapers and magazines, which proclaim in big letters positive cures for every disease, aliens are annually fleeced of millions of dollars in this country, according to Dr. Antonio Stella, Chairman of the Committee on Civic Policy of the New York County Medical Society, who was a witness yesterday before the joint legislative committee to investigate the exploitation of immigrants, at City Hall.

The loss to these non-suspecting foreigners, however, is not merely financial. In a number of cases, Dr. Stella charged, persons whose ailments are slight visit these "quacks" for a long time, with the result that often fatal diseases are contracted through neglect or improper treatment. Three persons within his knowledge who had slight coughs were left with tuberculosis because of the failure of the charlatans to give the necessary remedy. They later died. The quacks operate on the theory that the longer a patient's sickness lasts the greater the fee, Dr. Stella asserted.

To corroborate some of his charges, Dr. Stella asked permission of Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo, the Chairman, to place a patient on the stand. She testified she had given a doctor $150, for which she received a box of pink pills. Her malady became worse. She pleaded with the physician for a return of at least part of his fee and he refused.

Other witnesses at yesterday's hearing charged that there is discrimination against foreigners in the Workmen's Compensation act and, according to Charles J. Recht, attorney for the Soviet Government, the representative in New York of the Czarist régime has failed to transmit $200,000 which immigrants have entrusted to him. Another witness charged that the immigrant is swindled "from the time he sets foot on this soil until he is lowered in his grave."

Shows Samples of Ads.

Dr. Stella left with the committee a number of display advertisements which he said he had cut from yesterday's issue of Italian New York dailies. They were just samples of what can be found every day in virtually every foreign language paper in the country, he declared. A survey has indicated that 2,000 such newspapers and magazines are published in the United States, said the physician. These, he estimated have a total circulation of 6,000,000. Polish leads with 125 publications; Italian comes next with 110; Spanish, 100; French, 70, and Hungarian, 50. Others have a smaller number.

Dr. Stella said he once asked the publisher of a foreign-language paper why he accepted the advertisements of these quack physicians and quack "institutes of health." Without them, he was answered, the paper could not exist. In this connection Dr. Stella declared that the average paper, printed in a foreign tongue collects from this source alone between $100,000 and $150,000 a year.

One physician, the witness stated, confessed that unless his income was between $5,000 and $10,000 a month, he could not profitably continue his advertising, and without advertising there would necessarily be a falling off in patients.

"Reading any one of these advertisements," declared Dr. Stella, "you can detect fraud, by the very construction of the words. A good many immigrants are dependent upon physical strength for their maintenance and support in this land and they immediately seek the advice of these charlatans rather than the legitimate physicians.

"If the professor himself does not speak the language of the majority of people in his neighborhood, he has interpreters who are the go-betweens for the prospective patient and himself.

"The scheme of these quacks, when they haven't fancy names as 'medical centre' or 'house of health' to entice their victims, is to acquire patronage by putting fear into them. They show them a large and intricate X-ray machine and let the victim see the bones of his hand. Then they tell him, 'just as you can see your bones, I, at the same time, am looking into your body and see germs in your lungs and if you don't come for a cure they will eat you up.'"

Terrify the Patient.

Testifying further as to the nature of their operation, Dr. Stella charged that the quacks usually tell their patient he has a malignant disease, such as cancer or tuberculosis, which will require weeks or months of attention before it is "cured." However, the victim is assured that by paying the exorbitant fee required he ultimately will be completely cured.

"We know, unfortunately, that medical science has not yet found a complete remedy for certain diseases, of which cancer is one," Dr. Stella continued. "These medical quacks, however, promise a cure for all incurable ailments."

In some cases, said the physician, the charlatan after a cursory examination of his patient will give him some pink, green or yellow pills of the harmless, sugar-coated variety. In other cases, he declared, he will inject into the patient some sterile water, adding "and sometimes it's not even sterile."

"They never charge by the visit, but insist upon the patient's first call getting a fee for the entire treatment. These figures run very high. They sometimes ask $350 to $500 or more and insist on getting it before the second visit. No honest or legitimate physician would reap such harvest from the exercise of his profession."

Dr. Stella pointed out that these quacks are found in large numbers not only in New York but in all the important industrial centres of the country. They send out leaflets, as well as advertise in newspapers. During the war, he declared, an army of workers arriving in an up-State town were met by agents of a physician or corporation, owning the "health centre" and were the recipients of leaflets similar to the advertisements.

Their establishments, said Dr. Stella, have been found to exist not only in the congested foreign districts, but to a very large degree in the better sections of the city. One of the most elaborate offices, he said, is on Seventy-second Street, near Riverside Drive. Dr. Stella characterized the physician there as the "biggest fake in the country." Another, to which the attention of his committee had been called, was on Montague Street in Brooklyn.

How they determine what fee to ask a patient brought smiles to the faces of the committee. A nurse or attendant usually undresses the patient, said Dr. Stella. While the victim is being examined by the physician in another room the nurse searches his pocket and finds either his wallet or a bank book. It is inspected and replaced.

"When the physician returns," said Dr. Stella, "a mysterious word is whispered and according to that information a price is made. In one instance, we have heard that the nurse found $500 as the patient's bank balance. The doctor asked for $250, believing $50 was enough to leave his patient.

"Furthermore, there seems to be a rule in all these offices that the patients in the waiting room are not permitted to talk to each other. If they start a conversation, the nurse, who probably is nothing more than a chambermaid in a nurse's uniform, demands that the conversation stop."

Dr. Stella told a story of a former patient, who committed suicide, after being assured by a charlatan that he had a communicable disease. The man, a chef at the Biltmore, had saved enough money to have his wife join him in this country. Not feeling well, he went to Dr. Stella and was told nothing serious was the matter. Lured by a large display advertisement he went to a quack doctor, Dr. Stella said. This physician, telling the man he had a malignant disease, said he could cure it for $2,000 but it would take some time. The man's wife, however, was due to arrive the next day. Fearing the consequences, he went home and slashed his throat, said Dr. Stella, this information having been given by the patient's sister.

Dr. Stella said the quacks treat many patients by correspondence. He said he knew of one "institute" that received between $400 and $500 in the mail each day.

Nearly All Licensed Physicians.

Because virtually all are licensed physicians and not fakers like those uncovered in the Hartford Grand Jury investigation, Dr. Stella said it is difficult to deal with them. However, he suggested that the medical societies be permitted to revoke their licenses just as the Bar Association disbars lawyers whose activities are found unethical or crooked. At present the Medical Society is prevented from taking such action because the licenses are granted by the State Board of Regents, Dr. Stella asserted.

Dr. Stella, who was Enrico Caruso's physician, recommended also that a law be passed prohibiting newspapers from publishing the advertisements of these men.

Mr. Recht, the Soviet attorney, charged that Michael Oustinoff, Consul of the former Russian Government in New York, had received $300,000 for transmission since the revolution. A test case was brought in the Municipal Court in 1921 and he was ordered to return $100,000, Mr. Recht alleged. The rest, however, has not been sent or repaid, said Mr. Recht.

satisfy the play jury the play would be withdrawn entirely. On Tuesday, however, Commissioner Glatzmayer amended his statement to the effect that he would consider the recommendations of the play jury in certain instances only, and would take official action independent of the jury in other cases.

The play jury scheme contemplated the appointment of a panel of 500 members, playwrights, managers and actors, and the public were to have their quotas. At considerable expense invitations were sent out to hundreds of prospective jurymen and jurywomen. Many declined to accept membership in the jury panel because they felt it was a place in which they might be embarrassed by the consideration of plays complained of on the ground of immorality or indecency.

By the end of last Winter only 150 persons had been induced to accept membership on the jury panel. Then the theatrical season was approaching its close. Not one complaint had been made, and it was unnecessary to convene a jury. On account of a lack of objectionable plays no hurry was made to complete the selection of the jury panel. For that reason only the panel at present is limited to the following names.

Owen Davis, playright, who took the initiative in the organization of the play jury of citizens to obviate the necessity for a "political censorship," said last night that he was gratified to learn that Commissioner Glatzmayer did not intend to completely scrap the play jury as he indicated in his statement on Monday.

Augustus Thomas also expressed his conviction that Commissioner Glatzmayer had not intended to abandon entirely the play jury plan. He said that in his conferences with the Commissioner of Licenses the latter had indicated his approval of the scheme and had not once disclosed a disbelief in its practicability.

On Sunday last the Methodist Episcopal Board on Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals made public a report on the play "Lullaby" at the Knickerbocker Theatre condemning it because it deals with commercialized vice. The report was submitted to the board by Henry N. Pringle, Superintendent of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, and Deets Pickett, Research Secretary of the board.

In The Wonderland of Toys

Jolly Old Santa!

SANTA CLAUS, jolly old Santa
Laughing and bubbling with fun
Sits on his throne of crimson
And looks like the rising sun!

His little blue eyes a-twinkling
His white hair falling in curls
"And what do you want for Christmas?"
He calls to the boys and the girls.

They timidly flock around him,
And timidly take his hand
And timidly gaze in wonder
And try to understand . . . . . .

"What do you want for Christmas?
Tell jolly old Santa Claus—"
And one little fellow whispers
"I want a great big hawse!"

"I want a doll in a cawwidge"—
"I want a teddy bear,"
"I want a dwum and dwum-sticks,"
"I want a wocking-chair!"

"I want a gweat big steamboat"—
"I want a pony and cart"
And so each wee child prattles
The desires of each wee heart.

And Santa Claus feels very happy
And Santa Claus feels very wise
For the loveliest sight in the whole wide world
Is the soul in a baby's eyes!

VICEROY Winter Overcoats

$59.75

The early Puritans, who started the tradition of Thanksgiving, always had blue noses. This is because the Puritans brought with them from England capes that were far from enough to keep out the New England winters, however adequate they may have been in England.

How different things are now! If the early Puritans could have come to Macy's and bought Viceroy winter overcoats, imported from England especially by us, how much louder would their Thanksgiving have been!

BUDGET COMMITTEE IS URGED FOR HOUSE

Dempsey of New York Will Submit Proposal to Republican Caucus Saturday.

PLANS COMPOSITE BODY

Members From Nine Chief Committees Would Supersede Appropriations Group.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—An attempt to abolish the large committee which approves appropriations in the House and to substitute a Budget Committee composed of three members each of the Appropriations, Ways and Means, and nine other major committees, will be made when the Republican caucus is held Saturday.

Representative S. Wallace Dempsey of New York, Chairman of the Rivers and Harbors Committee and the prime mover in the proposed change, circulated a petition today among Representatives and obtained a number of important signatures, including those of Representative Green of Iowa, the next Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Representative Knutson of Minnesota, the House whip.

At the outset Mr. Dempsey, who acted chiefly with Representative Lineberger of California, disclaimed any attempt to break down the appropriations system of the House. His object, he said, was to try to reform the present method, in which there were many defects. He complained, for example, that the present committee, made up of subcommittees which hold hearings and recommend appropriations, could not have the knowledge of the particular subjects held by the regular committees; that the Ways and Means Committee, which raises revenue, is not included in the present Appropriations Committee, and that the committees which actually approve the appropriations proposed for the Army, the Navy, the Post Office and other Government departments should also have power to recommend what expenditures should be allowed.

Under Mr. Dempsey's plan, the Chairman and ranking Republican and Democratic members of the Ways and Means, Appropriations, Rivers and Harbors, Agriculture, Foreign Affairs, Military Affairs, Naval Affairs, Post Office, Indian Affairs, Public Buildings and District of Columbia Committees would sit as members of a Budget Committee, the Chairman of the Appropriations Committee being Chairman of the larger group.

There has been strong objection on the part of some members to the present Appropriations Committee on the ground that it has too much power. They maintain that the committees handling legislation should have an opportunity to say how Government funds should be allotted. Friends of the Appropriations Committee reply that this attitude is based on a desire to return to the old system under which each of the various committees could recommend the expenditure of whatever it pleased without regard to the demands of the others.

Mr. Dempsey denied such an intention, stating that he did not believe the present system the best one and that it needed drastic correction. He had voted for the present committee and served on it for a year, but now that he had seen its imperfections he did not believe it served the purpose for which it was intended. A Budget Committee would restore the appropriating powers of the regular committees, but under check by the larger committee, which would refuse suggestions that contemplated for any committee an amount larger than allowed to it.

WEST POINT CADETS TO STUDY THE BIBLE

New Course Announced to Begin at Once—Chaplain's Efforts Win Success.

The Rev. Dr. William H. Matthews, Secretary of the American Tract Society, issued a statement yesterday that beginning at once" instruction in the Bible will be given at the United States Military Academy, West Point. The announcement stated that the cadets seemed to be much interested in the decision.

Dr. Matthews said that this action resulted from the efforts of the Rev. Dr. Clayton E. Wheat, chaplain, and a professor of English at West Point, with the co-operation of the American Tract Society and the American Bible Society.

Five hundred Bibles were presented to the academy for the use of the students last Sunday, the presentation taking place in the West Point Chapel. On the covers is stamped "West Point Barracks."

Dr. Matthews said that this is the first time the Bible Society has been asked to join in the distribution of Bibles at West Point, though Bibles from the Tract Society have been given to the graduating classes for the last fifty years. In 1870 a fund of $5,500 was left for this purpose, but the annual income from the fund long ago ceased to meet the cost.

PAYS FOR FLOGGING DEATH.

Lumber Firm Settles With Tabert Family for $20,000.

LANGDON, N. D., Nov. 28.—Payment of $20,000 has been made by the Putnam Lumber Company of Wisconsin to the family of Martin Tabert of Munich, N. D., who died in a convict labor camp conducted by the company in Florida following a flogging given by Walter Higginbotham, "whipping boss."

This payment has been accepted by the Tabert family as settlement of its claims against the lumber company, doing away with any necessity for court action, according to an announcement made today by State's Attorney G. Grimson of Cavalier County, who was instrumental in having Higginbotham brought to trial and convicted on a charge of second-degree murder, and who has since represented the Tabert family in the negotiations with the Putnam Lumber Company.

The settlement will in no way affect the handling of the case of Higginbotham, whose appeal to the Florida Supreme Court will be strongly resisted, Mr. Grimson said.

In a statement made by Benjamin Tabert, father of the flogging victim, the President, Directors and other higher officials of the Putnam Lumber Company are exonerated from having any willful participation or guilty knowledge of Martin Tabert's death.

SEES SOVIET ENTRENCHED.

Hamilton Fish Jr. Declares Business Opportunities Are Vast.

The Russian Government is firmly entrenched and there is absolutely no likelihood of a counter-revolution, according to Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., who spoke yesterday at a luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Hotel McAlpin.

However much we may deplore the present system of government, he said, we may as well look the facts in the face and recognize that there is no prospect of change. Business opportunities are great, he said, but American capital will not be forthcoming until Russia guarantees the return of all American property seized by the Communists and the recognition of her national debts.

6,000 ALIENS DUE FOR DEC. 1 QUOTAS

Fifteen Allotments Not Yet Exhausted, Including Italy and Germany.

3,508 NOW AT ELLIS ISLAND

Russian Quota Is Filled for the Year and Fifty More Surplus Immigrants Will Go Back.

More than 6,000 immigrants, it was estimated yesterday at Ellis Island, will arrive here after midnight on Dec. 1 to fill fifteen quotas which have not been exhausted. The Baltic-American liner Estonia arrived yesterday and anchored in Gravesend Bay ready to enter Quarantine with her 471 passengers, chiefly Poles, at Friday midnight.

The time of arrival is now taken as the vessels reach Ambrose Channel lightship which has eliminated the racing which took place before the present plan was adopted. Other vessels due to arrive for the December quotas and the number of passengers according to cabin are:

Ship.	From.	1st.	2d.	3d.
Dante Alighieri,	Naples	40	261	1,806
Drottningholm,	Gothenburg		446	189
Deutschland,	Hamburg		268	236
Nieuw Amsterdam,	Rotterdam		180	887
Minnekahda,	Hamburg			1,806
Providence,	Naples		76	171
Frederick VIII.,	Copenhagen		94	809

The Colombo and the America, both from Naples, have been diverted to Philadelphia, to avoid congestion at Ellis Island. Immigration Commissioner James H. Curran said yesterday that there were 1,806 aliens now on the island. He predicted that the Italian quota for the year ending June 30 would be exhausted within the next ten days and that the German allotment undoubtedly would be used up before Jan. 15.

Of the Russian immigrants who arrived here too late for the quota for the year ending June 30 fifty more will be deported on Saturday on the White Star liner Olympic.

COLLEGIANS TO BE GUIDES.

Will Escort Woman in Los Angeles to Earn Way in University.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 28.—Women travelers who find themselves in Los Angeles without guides or protectors will be given an opportunity to employ escorts from among the student body of the University of Southern California, according to an arrangement worked out by Claude Williams, a sophomore, and endorsed by Dean Karl E. Waugh and the university's department of geology.

The student escorts, all young men desirous of working their way through college, will be under bond to maintain the most exemplary deportment while accompanying young women at a nominal fee per hour.

BEGIN TO SCRAP TWO HULLS

Philadelphia Firm Buys Steel Cut Up at Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Work of scrapping the hulls of the vessels which, before the Washington Conference for the Limitation of Armament, were destined to be the battleships South Dakota and Indiana, was begun yesterday at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The stems of both vessels were cut away and removed by a forty-ton crane. The bows were removed at a point about ten feet from the tips and lifted to the dock for further cutting up.

Twenty men with acetylene torches have been busy on the vessels for several days. As fast as the steel and armor are cut off they are piled near the ways and then cut into smaller pieces so that they can be shipped on freight cars. The scrapped steel is being sold to a Philadelphia concern.

The South Dakota and the Indiana were to have been the largest warships afloat. Their construction had been about 30 per cent. completed when the work was stopped in accordance with the limitation of armament agreement. Their hulls had been partly built up, turret displacements put into position and some of the armor plate attached. The wreckers have already made eighty-nine cuts across the ship's sides.

SPARES HUSBAND FROM JAIL

Shows Thanksgiving Spirit for Man Behind in Separation Allowance.

At the urging of Judge Morris L. Rosenwasser, who let her decide her husband's fate, Mrs. Katherine Nehrebeck of 104 Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, showed Thanksgiving spirit in Yonkers City Court yesterday and decided to spare her husband from staying in jail over the holiday.

She had John Nehrebeck of 25 Fernbrook Street, Yonkers, locked up on a warrant charging him with abandonment because he was two weeks in arrears in paying a separation allowance of $11 weekly.

The defendant offered to pay one week's bill and the remainder later. Judge Rosenwasser told Mrs. Nehrebeck it was up to her to say whether her husband was to go free. "I think owing to tomorrow being Thanksgiving you ought to give him a chance so he will not have to spend the holiday in jail," declared the Judge. She agreed and Nehrebeck after paying one week's installment was released.

STOLE CHRISTMAS TOYS.

Three Women Are Sent to Jail for Shoplifting.

Three women shoplifters were sentenced to five days each in the workhouse when they pleaded guilty yesterday, before Justices McInerney, O'Keefe and Kelly, in Special Sessions. They said they were Gabina Ruiz, 49 years old, of 28 West 116th Street, and Adelaide Delcarmen, 21 years old, and Marie Castillo, 20 years old, both of 121 Reid Avenue, Brooklyn.

Detectives of the Stores Mutual Protective Association told the Court that the women were arrested in Gimbels several days ago after they had stuffed large paper bags which they carried with seventy-five articles which they had stolen from counters, including toys and articles of wearing apparel. They said the women admitted the taking of toys to adorn Christmas trees in their homes as gifts to children in their families.

GERARD DENOUNCES LAUSANNE TREATY

Assailing Turks as Faithless, He Declares Emphatically Against Ratification.

SEES KEMAL TOTTERING

Answering Dr. Barton, Ex-Envoy Says Justice for Americans in Turkey Is Pure Fiction.

James W. Gerard, ex-Ambassador to Germany and Chairman of the American Committee for the Independence of Armenia, yesterday emphatically placed himself against ratification of the Lausanne Treaty between America and Turkey, which, he declared, was based on "the fiction that the Turks are capable of dealing with justice with our nationals." Mr. Gerard said he could not see why America should be called upon "to bow to the dictation of the Kemalist junta." In his opinion, Mustapha Kemal's régime is on its last legs, and banditry, strife and economic chaos threaten the structure of his Government.

Mr. Gerard made public his views in answer to a statement given out in Boston last Sunday by Dr. James L. Barton, Secretary of the American Board of Missions, Chairman of the Near East Relief and representative at Lausanne of American religious, educational and philanthropic interests in the Near East. Dr. Barton urged ratification in the belief that rejection of the treaty "would lead to the closing of all American institutions in Turkey, religious and educational, philanthropic and commercial, and would close the door to future negotiations."

"The United States," said Mr. Gerard, "does not execute treaties under threat. No continuity of relations is necessary to start negotiations with another nation toward resumption of formal relations. The time to secure concessions is before and not after concluding a treaty. The record and the avowed intentions of the Turks do not inspire confidence as to the future. America is not a helpless or a defeated nation, and should not, as is recommended by Dr. Barton, throw herself upon the mercy of the Turks. If our nationals must submit to Turkish law in any event, the ratification or non-ratification of the treaty would neither improve nor damage their present position in Turkey. But if the Turks are as bad as Dr. Barton represents them, then America ought not to have any dealings with them, now or later.

Christians Virtually Eliminated.

"In 1917, with the mistaken hope of securing some protection for our philanthropic and educational institutions in Turkey, and for the remnants of the Christians, we refrained from declaring and making war on Turkey. Over one and a half millions of Greek and Armenian Christians have since been slaughtered; the Near East Relief has been compelled to withdraw its centre of activities from Turkey to a more sympathetic environment, and the educational activities of the missionaries have as a result of the elimination of the Christians, practically ceased in Asia Minor, and are now limited to the region of Constantinople. As far as our commercial interests are concerned, in 1913 our exports to Turkey amounted to 16 cents per each inhabitant of that country.

"The foundation of the Lausanne Treaty is based upon the abrogation of the capitulations, and upon the fiction that the Turks are capable of dealing with justice with our nationals, who, since 1830, have enjoyed the protection of American Consulate Courts. In that treaty, we surrender our rights in perpetuity and rely solely upon the promise of the Turks to protect these rights. It is contended that the treaty contains all that could have been secured under the circumstances. The answer to that is that we have relinquished all the rights we had, and that there was nothing else that we could possibly have given the Turks.

"We are told that the Allies have accepted terms similar to those which America has accepted. Great Britain and France have each acquired extensive territories which formerly belonged to Turkey. They were at war with her, and they are involved in difficulties in their Islamic dependencies and in Europe. In 1917, when there were excellent reasons for us to follow the Allies, we did not; and now that there are equally excellent reasons for us not to follow them, we are asked to do so.

Asks Why Should We Bow to Junta?

"We can appreciate some of the reasons which have induced the Allies, or have made it advisable to them, to recognize temporarily the pretentions of the Turks. But why should America be called upon to bow to the dictation of the Kemalist junta? Kemal's régime is on its last legs. A state of war exists between Constantinople and Angora. Widespread banditry, civil strife and hopeless economic chaos threaten the structure of Kemal's Government.

"Eighty-five per cent. of the people are threatened with starvation. The expenditures of the Government are more than three times greater than its revenues. Why should we surrender to such a weak and insecure Government, and one which has violated its engagement in numerous instances, even since the signing of the Lausanne Treaty.

"It is not, however, difficult to appreciate the delicate nature of the position in which Dr. Barton finds himself. Those missionaries, who can express themselves without constraint, have spoken in no uncertain terms against the treaty.

Says Dr. Barton Was Skeptical.

"Dr. Barton himself has only recently stated that 'I cannot believe the Senate will ratify it.' Dr. A. R. Hoover, one of the oldest members of the American colony in Constantinople and head of the American Hospital, left Constantinople during the current month, declaring he could not and would not continue work under the new régime.

"Ex-Ambassador Oscar Straus, in his address at the Yale Club on Nov. 24, summed up the case against the treaty in the following words:

"'The system of capitulations was a necessary result of the absence of a competent and even handed judiciary. Justice was sold to the highest bidder. A nation does not turn a new leaf over night. * * * I congratulate the Turks on having written the best one-sided bargain in international treaty making. * * * The treaty proposes that Americans shall have the same rights in Turkey as the natives. The irony of this is that the natives have no rights. And what has Turkey done with agreements? She has never kept any and does not know how to.

"'We would be better off without any agreement with Turkey at all. In that event, our hand would be just as free as the Turkish hand which, under the circumstances, will be free anyway. If the Senate ratifies this treaty, we will be thrown into the maelstrom, into the tinder box of Europe.'"

FIGHT FOR MAYFIELD'S SEAT

Peddy's Counsel Seek Early Action on Charge Against Texas Senator.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Predictions that the contest filed against the election of Senator Mayfield, Democrat, of Texas, in 1922, would befought early and hard in the new session of Congress were confirmed today with arrival of counsel for Senator Mayfield's opponent, G. E. B. Peddy.

Scott Woodward of Fort Worth, of counsel for Mr. Peddy, declared that an early hearing would be asked of the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee. Luther Nichols, personal attorney for Mr. Peddy, is due here next week.

Mr. Woodward said that the opposition was prepared to prove all charges made by Mr. Peddy in his formal notice of contest filed last Winter. These included declarations that the Ku Klux Klan was instrumental in securing Senator Mayfield's election and that there were corruption and irregularities in the polling.

Senator Mayfield has been in Washington for some time and his friends say he is prepared to meet the issues. He will take the oath of office next Monday without question from any side, according to Senate leaders, with his eligibility to be developed finally from the Senate Committee proceedings.

NEW HAVEN LOSES APPEAL.

Public Service Commission Directs Railway to Make Changes Ordered.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 28.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has until April 1 next in which to purchase and place in service three additional multiple-unit cars and until Jan. 1 to provide plans for additional shop facilities and change of tracks at New Rochelle Junction, according to a decision by the Public Service Commission today.

The company sought a rehearing on an order made last May whereby it was directed to make certain changes. The rehearing sought to remove requirements for additional shop facilities to take care of multiple-unit trains and for the rearrangement of tracks at New Rochelle to avoid the present grade crossing of the main line and the Harlem River branch.

No amendment is made to the commission's original order that the company provide plans on which the present tracks at New Rochelle Junction shall be changed and the company must file these plans. The order of today followed a hearing before Chairman Prendergast.

SEEKS $200,000 FEE AS COLLEGE LAWYER

Parham Says He Won $1,609,000 for Wake Forest (N. C.) School From Bostwick Estate.

HAS RECEIVED ONLY $100

Standard Oil Stock Left to Daughter Who Married Dr. Voronoff, but Will Barred Foreign Children.

The largest suit brought in the local courts for a legal fee in recent years was filed yesterday by Frank Earle Parham against the trustees of Wake Forest College, at Wake Forest, N. C., for $200,000 on the ground that as a result of his services the college obtained more than $1,600,000. The college has offered $12,000, but Mr. Parham declares in his suit that during the nine years he has been attorney for the college he has spent more than that sum in litigation and has received only $100, paid in 1915.

The litigation in question resulted from two trust deeds made in 1892 by Jabez A. Bostwick, one of the large holders of Standard Oil stock, by which he set aside Standard Oil stock in trust for his daughter Fannie, the income to be paid to her during her lifetime. The deed provided that on her death the principal was to go to her children, if they were American citizens, and if her husband were an American citizen he was to have the life use of the income after his wife's death, and then his children would get the principal of the trusts, if they were not foreigners. Otherwise the principal was to go to Wake Forest College.

The daughter Fannie was married four times and all her husbands were foreigners. She died March 3, 1921, shortly after her marriage to Dr. Serge Voronoff of Paris, the gland specialist. She had three children, none of whom qualified under the terms of the trust deed, and Wake Forest College claimed the principal.

Mr. Parham says he was engaged to act for the college in 1914 and appeared in four accounting actions. The legal questions involved were complicated by the fact that the Standard Oil Company declared stock dividends on the shares left in trust to the daughter. Her counsel contended that the stock dividends were income and that the new stock should be given to her outright. Mr. Parham as attorney for the college insisted that the stock dividends should be added to the principal of the trusts and this contention was upheld by the courts.

On the death of Mme. Voronoff her three children made claim to the principal of the trusts on the ground that they were infants and had no choice in the nationality of their father. They also asserted that the provision in the will requiring them to be Americans was against public policy. The courts decided last Spring that the children could not share in the funds because of the trust deed, and that Wake Forest College was entitled to $1,609,000 as the principal.

In his complaint, filed yesterday, Mr. Parham alleged that between March, 1914, and June last he put in 720 days in service for the college, and that the "just and reasonable value of his services was $200,000." He contended that an increase of more than $1,000,000 in the sum to go to the college "resulted exclusively from the skill, perseverance and quantity of work done by me in securing decisions by the New York courts and referee favorable to the colleges upon doubtful questions of law."

Mr. Parham asks that the value of his services be determined and that the funds payable to the college be held in this State until he is paid.

WATER POWER CONFERENCE.

Senate and Assembly Committees Discuss State Development.

A conference at which plans were discussed for the development of the State's water power resources was held yesterday at the Lawyers' Club between members of the Senate and Assembly Conservation Committees and representatives of the Port Authority, the Public Service Commission and civic organizations.

Senator Ellwood M. Rabenold of 61 Broadway, Chairman of the Senate Conservation Committee, declared there was good prospect of a hydro-electric program getting through the next Legislature. He said it was time that all parties got together on a plan to make the Niagara Falls and the St. Lawrence River produce electricity for the State. Partisanship in the matter, he said, should be forgotten. Besides members of the legislative committees those invited to the conference were Julius Henry Cohen of the Port Authority, William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission; Frank E. Gannett, Dwight Marvin, Robert Moses, Secretary of the New York State Association; Henry Moskowitz, John F. Myers, George Foster Peabody, Lewis Strauss, E. J. Clapp, Robert W. Bruere, Cornelius F. Burns and Raymond V. Ingersoll of the City Club. Other conferences will be held.

SAY HE HIT BOY SCOUT.

Arrest Is Made in Assault on Lad While Directing Traffic.

About 2,000 Boy Scouts who since May 24 have been searching for the driver of an automobile who on that day struck Scout Solomon Alteresco, 11 years old, who was directing traffic at Second Avenue and Third Street, on the head, were cheered yesterday by news of an arrest.

The prisoner, Charles Peaty of 44½ Meserole Street, Brooklyn, is alleged to have struck Alteresco when the latter gave the signal for the defendant's auto to stop. Magistrate Jacob Ellperin held him in $500 bail for examination Dec. 6.

RIO GRANDE CLAIM FAILS IN LONDON

Arbitration Tribunal Rules That It Has No Jurisdiction in the Case.

$17,000,000 IS INVOLVED

Court Finds That Ownership in the Original British Company Passed to an American.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Anglo-American Arbitration Tribunal today threw out the $17,000,000 claim of the Rio Grande Irrigation and Land Company against the United States Government on the ground that it was not a British concern and therefore had no standing before the international court.

The claim of the company was based on the contention that it was of British nationality and that it had been unfairly deprived by the American Government of its concessions to build a dam across the Rio Grande. The American agent, Fred K. Nielson, however, made a motion to dismiss the complaint on the argument that all substantial interest in the company had passed into the hands of American citizens. It was on this motion, and not the merits of the controversy, that today's decision was rendered.

In giving judgment the President of the tribunal said:

"This opinion is not concerned with the merits of the claim itself, inasmuch as in the view of the tribunal the Government of the United States is entitled to succeed on the preliminary point relating to the jurisdiction of the tribunal to entertain the claim at all."

This was a reference to the fact that all the debentures in the defunct company are held by Dr. Nathan E. Boyd, who is an American citizen. The President of the tribunal went at length into the events leading to the presentation of the case. The company, he said, was first formed under the laws of New Mexico in 1888 as the Rio Grande Dam and Irrigation Company, with a capital of $5,000,000, for the purpose of constructing a dam across the Rio Grande for irrigation purposes at a place called Elephant Butte, about 120 miles above El Paso. In 1895 the Rio Grande Irrigation and Land Company was incorporated in England for the purpose of financing the American company while the undertaking was being transferred to an English company. Then Dr. Boyd and R. Chetham Strode were appointed a committee to receive the shares of the English company. That was the first of many complications in the company's ownership. Then it was discovered that "the Alien Law" of Arizona prohibited an English company from owning real estate in that State, and another company, the Rio Grande Investment Company, was formed in 1897 under the laws of West Virginia, to which the stock of the American company was transferred. All the stock of this West Virginia company was owned by the English company. Litigation was then instituted in the district courts of New Mexico and carried up to the United States Supreme Court, to prevent the construction of the dam on the ground that it would interfere with the navigability of the Rio Grande, and decrees were finally entered against the company on the ground that it had not finished its work within the time limit of five years.

In the meantime the English company had gone into liquidation, and in 1900 Dr. Boyd was appointed receiver for the debenture holders. All their rights and assets were sold to him, and he thus became practically the owner of everything, though officially representing the debenture holders.

The matter was then brought before the British Government on the ground that British interests were deeply involved, and it thus came before the tribunal at the opening of this year.

Some weeks have been occupied in arguments, all of which were ended today by the decisive statement of the President that "the English company took no valid rights whatever under the lease from the American company and possesses no interest on which a claim such as this can be founded."

"In conclusion," the President added, "we desire to say that, in our opinion, even had the lease from the American company been valid, the point arising out of the English company's relations with the Rio Grande Investment Company might still have lain in the way of his British Majesty's Government."

There is naturally much jubilation in the American camp over the result of this case, which is the biggest yet brought before the tribunal.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED BY A MOTOR TRUCK

Driver, Convicted of Killing Child in Yonkers, Is Sent to Prison for a Year.

SEVERAL PERSONS INJURED

Children's Court Judge's Daughter Receives Fractured Skull in Mount Vernon.

Patricia Stevens, 9 years old, of 406 East Twenty-fifth Street, was fatally injured when she was run over by a motor truck at First Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, last evening. She died on the way to Bellevue Hospital in a taxicab which had been commandeered by Cornelius Schunright of 406 Second Avenue. Abraham Ray, chauffeur of the truck, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide. He said the girl ran in front of the vehicle.

John Nicholson of 445 Nepperhan Avenue was sentenced to a year in East View Penitentiary when arraigned yesterday before Judge Bleakley in Yonkers. He had been convicted by a jury of manslaughter for killing 10-year-old Elvira Jones of Yonkers with his car near her home in Riverdale Avenue on April 20 last. Witnesses testified that Nicholson appeared to be under the influence of liquor when he drove the automobile to the right of a stalled street car and ran over the girl.

William Thiedy, 7 years old, of 787 Second Avenue was seriously injured last evening when he was knocked down by an automobile at Second Avenue and Forty-second Street. He was removed to Bellevue Hospital. Ruben Meyers of 836 East 156th Street, the Bronx, was the driver of the car.

Mark Trumbutta, 45 years old, of 303 East Thirty-first Street was crossing Second Avenue at Thirty-first Street when he was knocked down by an automobile operated by Joseph Mollo of 340 Johnson Street, Brooklyn. Trumbutta was placed in Mollo's car by a policeman and taken to Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Newman said he was suffering from internal injuries and general contusions.

Helen Gantz, 9 years old, of 7 Frederick Place, Mount Vernon, with several other little girls was on her way to school in the forenoon when she was knocked down by a motor truck of the Standard Oil Company. One of the little girls was the daughter of Judge George C. Appell of the Children's Court. Helen received a fracture of the skull and was removed to the Mount Vernon Hospital. Chester Conway of 112 West Third Street, Mount Vernon, driver of the truck, was arrested on a technical assault charge.

Dr. Benjamin Cohen, who said his home was in this city, was seriously injured yesterday when he was struck by a light motor truck on the Nyack Turnpike near Spring Valley, N. Y. Everett Lott of Boston, who was seated beside the driver of the truck, received what may prove to be fatal injuries when the driver of the vehicle lost control and the truck plunged into a ditch after striking Dr. Cohen and Isadore Oxman, also of this city, who was slightly hurt. Dr. Cohen was sent to the Good Samaritan Hospital in Suffern, and Lott was removed to the Nyack Hospital. John Barnes of Nyack, driver of the truck, later was locked up in the Rockland County Jail to await the outcome of their injuries. He was unable to provide $500 bail.

State Troopers Tayler and Brockman were on their way in their motor cycle to investigate the reports of robberies in Islip, L. I., at noon when their machine was struck by an automobile near Islip and they were thrown to the road. They were attended for bruises by Dr. B. C. Andrews of Islip and removed to their station at Bayshore. The automobile was owned by Clarence Robbins of Great River, and was being operated by his chauffeur, Joseph Heath.

Mrs. Catherine Lapp, 72 years old, of 11 Avalon Avenue, Jamaica, Queens, received a fracture of the skull when she was struck by a motor truck carrying mail at Canal Street and Jamaica Avenue, near her home. She was removed in an ambulance to the Mary Immaculate Hospital. Joseph E. Fox of 9 Hearn Street was driving the truck.

Nicholas Delevo, 44 years old, of 46 Quinsberry Place, Jamaica, was removed to the Kings County Hospital in a serious condition from internal injuries received when he was struck by an automobile near his home.

When the automobile in which they were riding overturned on the wet pavement at Jericho Road and 248d Street, Mrs. Hattie Hennick, 37 years old, and Mrs. Mary Forman, 40 years old, both of Cherry Lane, Floral Park, Queens, were badly injured. They were attended by private physicians and removed to their home in another car. John Sauer of 28 Linden Street, Ridgewood, who was driving their car, received slight burns.

AUTO ACCIDENTS LEAD.

State Bureau Report. 160 Industrial Deaths During October.

During October, 160 industrial deaths were reported to the State Department of Labor, according to State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag. The number included all fatalities which appeared to be covered by the Workmen's Compensation law. Most of the deaths were caused by accidents, but a few resulted from industrial poisoning.

Automobile accidents, most of them apparently met with in the course of employment, took the largest toll. Twenty deaths were attributed to that cause. Steam and electric railway accidents were responsible for sixteen of the fatalities.

NEW SCOUT CRUISER GOES 33 KNOTS IN TEST

Experiments With the Richmond Are Expected to Give Data for Future Warship Designs.

ROCKLAND, Me., Nov. 28.—Extensive tests being conducted by the Navy Department for the purpose of securing data in connection with future warship designs were continued today when the scout cruiser Richmond received a standardization trial on the Rockland course at a displacement much heavier than that on her builders' acceptance trial.

Definite figures were not made public but with the announcement that the Richmond exceeded thirty-three knots on her top speed runs was coupled the statement of Rear Admiral H. S. Burrage, President of the trial board, that the cruiser met the test admirably.

It was stated unofficially that the speed attained was greater by nearly two knots than had been expected with such heavy displacement. The Richmond's engines developed in excess of 90,000 horse power.

Another trial will be conducted tomorrow with intermediate displacement.

HAILS JEWS IN PALESTINE.

Dr. Silverman Radios Untermyer Future of Country Is Assured.

Samuel Untermyer, President of the Keren Hayesod, also known as the Palestine Foundation Fund, received a radiogram from Jerusalem yesterday from the Rev. Joseph Silverman, rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street. The message said:

"Jewish achievements in Palestine are beyond expectations. The future of Palestine is assured."

Dr. Silverman, accompanied by his wife, left recently for the Holy Land to obtain first-hand information of conditions.

On his return, Dr. Silverman will go on tour in this country telling what he found in Palestine.

TINY SEISMOGRAPH WILL HUNT QUAKES

Portable Instrument Is Designed to Foretell Where Big Upheavals Will Occur.

DETECTS EARTH SLIPPING

Trend of These Movements Will Be Indicated by Records of the Slightest Tremors.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A miniature seismograph, weighing less than a portable typewriter and scarcely as large, by which scientists hope to chart the seismic movements of the earth with a completeness that will permit a tremendous advance toward accurate forecast of the locality of major earthquakes, has been put in use by the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

The instrument, just perfected by Dr. J. Anderson of the Mt. Wilson Observatory in California, was exhibited by Dr. Arthur L. Day, Chairman of the Institute's Advisory Committee in Seismology, during an address here today in which he described its functioning and the purposes for which it will be used. Although dwarfed by the 500 to 1,000 pound bulk of the instruments now in use, the "pocket" seismograph, Dr. Day said, records earth tremors of so slight intensity as to be entirely undetected by the former.

It is thus hoped in time, he said, so completely to record the slight tremors as to form an accurate guide in studying the geologic tides and currents of the earth's crust. By more definitely determining in this way the trend of the slipping movements of the crust, as indicated by hundreds of slight tremors heretofore undetected, it is believed, Dr. Day said, that scientists will be able to foretell where the next big earthquake will occur. The small instruments also can be adjusted to record the heavier and more distant tremors.

The main part of the new instrument consist of a 1¼-inch length of tungsten wire of the same weight as the filament in an electric light bulb. This is made inert by attaching each end to a brass plate, and from it is suspended three centimeters of thin copper wire, which furnishes the "solid mass" of the seismograph. The trembling motion of the copper wire resulting from an earth tremor is recorded photographically by means of an intricate mechanism in which a magnet, a mirror and a carefully regulated clock are the basic parts.

The new instruments, Dr. Day said, are to be used in groups of three, to be placed around positions of known weakness in sections of California, and also to find possible new points of weakness. One will be placed to obtain records of waves passing north and south, another for those passing east and west, and a third for those describing a vertical motion.

$1,500,000 FIRE IN DETROIT.

Early Morning Blaze Destroys Dock and Several Buildings.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 28.—Fire starting from an overheated stove in a watchman's shanty early today destroyed the Detroit and Windsor Ferry Company dock, housing United States immigration and customs officers, spread to the six-story Munger Building, which was burned to the ground, and then destroyed a four-story warehouse and several small buildings on Woodward Avenue and Bates Street. When the fire was brought under control a few minutes after after 5 o'clock this morning the total loss was estimated at $1,500,000.

Frank Kelley, a fireman, was knocked from a ladder when a hose slipped from the hands of hosemen. He fell thirty feet to the ground. Robert Yates, the watchman, was burned about the face and hands when he attempted to check the fire. Carl Hresnelle, another watchman, was overcome by smoke.

Every down town fire company, many from the outlying sections and three firebosts fought the flames.

HOST TO OLD BOWERY PALS.

Joe Justus Celebrates His Rescue From the Gutter 30 Years Ago.

Joe Justus, celebrating the thirtieth anniversary of his rescue from the gutter by a Salvation Army lass, was the host at a dinner last night at the Army's Bowery Hall. His guests, three hundred of them, were friends and "down-but-not-outers" whom he had known while one of them.

Today Joe is a laundryman and a composer of music. He virtually has a monopoly on the theatre trade and his wagons can be seen any Monday morning at nearly every Broadway stage door. He entertained his guests last night by singing his latest song, "In the Hell Holes on the Bowery," and by telling of his rise through the aid of the Salvation Army. The menu of the dinner was simple—hot dogs, rolls, coffee and pie.

Denies That Obregon Will Resign.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 28.—The Department of the Interior has issued a statement formally denying rumors that President Obregon intended to resign because of illness. Enrique Colunga, the Secretary, said the President considered that his resignation at this time would be unpatriotic.

MOBILIZING THANKS.

The President has summoned the American people to observe the "wise custom" of acknowledging the "bounty with which Divine Providence has favored them." It is a universal service into which the spirits of all those living within the bounds of the Republic are thus drafted. It is a mobilization of the entire nation's gratitude. Whatever any given individual's infirmities of body or trials or misfortunes may be, he has yet a marginal reason for thanks in the very fact of existence with "the power of thought." It is PASCAL, whose tercentenary we are this year celebrating, who reminds us that it is "thought" wherein lies the very being of man; and so long as he is able to adventure with his thought he should respond to the Thanksgiving Day draft. He is a malingerer who sinks into sullenness or envy or despair and has no grateful word for what has come to him out of the past or hopeful word for those who come after.

"Into this world and why not knowing," gives a mystery to all life and makes every day one of adventure. ST. FRANCIS of Assisi, in his famous canticle of the sun, made a song of perpetual thanksgiving, though he wrote it in utter poverty, concerning the things in nature about us. LLOYD GEORGE recently emphasized our own special fortune in the beauty of our vast land, where even the weeds of the wilderness are arrayed in radiant glory—a land which yields two or three crops of alfalfa in Colorado; wheat for all the hungry, if only it could be gotten to them, in Minnesota and the Dakotas; a land with gold in its veins in California, silver in Colorado, lead in New Mexico, coal in Pennsylvania; a land which like a magician takes the same elements and makes an ear of corn in Illinois, a bunch of grapes in Western New York or a peach in Delaware, and with slight assistance of horticultural grafting and synthetic chemistry makes figs to grow on thistles and rarest perfumes to rise from coal tar.

America's special reason for thanksgiving is not in the beauty of the land we live on or the bounty of the land we live from, but in the spirit of the land that lives in us—the spirit of a people that "hopes grandly for the race" of a "great people in search for a more abundant life." It is such a thanksgiving to which the thoughts of citizens of this land, and especially its youth, should be drawn this day. We need not stand in depression before the portraits of the past. We have only to look into the faces of our millions of youth to know that there is a better world in possibility. It is through them that we dare to hope that out of the agony of men's long striving "the Lord may," in the language of an old Thanksgiving prayer, "be moved to arise and amend the earth."

WORRYING ABOUT MR. COOLIDGE.

Some politicians and "veteran political observers" continue to be much perturbed by Mr. COOLIDGE'S alleged indifference about 1924. Why doesn't he "go out and get the delegates"? He will go out and get them. He won't go out and get them. And so on. The best way for a President to get delegates is to execute his office honestly, intelligently, vigorously, for the public good. That was Mr. COOLIDGE'S habit as Governor. It is his habit as President. If he puts himself strongly and squarely behind the policy of tax reduction, it can make no difference to his political fortunes whether Congress accepts that policy or not. He will have made himself the exponent of a great restorative and constructive program, dealing with matters vital to every household and every pocket, to the improvement of business, the lowering of the cost of living.

He will have led, whether Congress is wise enough to follow or not. He will be the prime figure of his party. It will have to nominate him. If he should be timid, unequal to the opportunity and duty thrust upon him, it will make no difference whom the Republicans nominate. They will be done for. Their hope of success rests entirely on his Administration. So he will get the delegates or they will not be worth getting. Of course, his friends in various States will keep their eye on candidates whose strength lies in their words and promises rather than their deeds. There is good hope, mournfully admitted by the saddest Son of the Golden West last Summer, of getting the California delegates for Mr. COOLIDGE. In Indiana Senator WATSON will collect delegates in trust. So will Governor LOWDEN in Illinois. So will Senator WADSWORTH, if such a course should be deemed advisable. The Governor of Pennsylvania will be likely to find that, even in his own State, his strength as a candidate is far inferior to the volume of his publicity.

Senator LA FOLLETTE is pretty nearly a constant quantity. Most other Favorite Sons will be trustees of Coolidge votes, if Mr. COOLIDGE displays that sagacity and courage which the country expects from him.

JOHNSONIAN IMPATIENCE.

Senator JOHNSON of California has a new political grievance. It was implied all through his "opening-gun" speech at Chicago. The outrageous thing in his mind is that he has to begin his campaign for the Presidency before he knows what line his rivals are going to take. He cannot wait; they can. But is it not the extreme of unfairness not to let him know in advance what their policy is to be? He feels deeply hurt, and as one cheated, by the persistent silence of President COOLIDGE. Hence his indignant demand that the Administration "say precisely and definitely" what its foreign policy is to be. One would think that even a Senator in a hurry might hold out until next week when the President reads his message to Congress. But HIRAM JOHNSON is not built that way. He wants to rush into the fight before it has actually begun. Yet if he has any really astute political friends and advisers, the counsel which they would now give him would be to say to himself every day:

> My soul, sit thou a patient looker on;
> Judge not the play before the play is done.

Though it is obvious that Senator JOHNSON can hardly wait for the signal to fire his guns, no one can fail to remark that they are all pointed astern. For a forward-looking man he shows an unaccountable desire to shoot backward. It is true that he has now pretty well let off firing at the targets of 1912. Having taken for his campaign manager a man who was conspicuous in the criminal reaction of that year, he naturally feels like drawing a veil of forgiveness, or at least of forgetfulness, over that period. But 1920 still seems to Senator JOHNSON to be a part of the living present. He sees no reason why the heterogeneous but triumphant strategy of that Presidential year should not be victorious in 1924 also. This accounts for his angry insistence that every man who today talks about the World Court, or the need of American co-operation in the financial settlement of Europe, is deliberately going against the verdict of the people three years ago.

The Johnsonian batteries are evidently making ready to throw a great many shells far astern, without considering what dangerous craft may suddenly appear off the port bow. The Senator should be warned that the silence of the Presidential guns, which he regards as so reprehensible and even insulting, may be broken next week in a way not designed to be of particular advantage to him.

READJUSTMENT OF RAILWAY RATES.

The United States Chamber of Commerce would have the Interstate Commerce Commission readjust railway rates as the Labor Board has readjusted railway wages—that is, by taking each case on its merits. Rates are not low or high by any absolute standard, but only in relation to other rates as between competitive commodities or communities or markets. World changes deflated farm prices more than most others. Other industries are in a better position than agriculture to regulate output in relation to demand. There is full popular appreciation of the farmers' difficulties and warranted sympathy with their appeal for help in a dilemma for which they are not responsible. But they would make more progress if they did not ask for what would injure others by excessive weakening of the railways.

Railway rates are not unreasonably high as compared with pre-war rates, as both are related to general price levels. Existing rates do not impede the movement of goods. But "it cannot be claimed," declares the Chamber of Commerce, "that the "railroad freight rate structure has "ever been organized on a scientific "basis, or that it has ever been sys- "tematically revised with the purpose "of eliminating disparities. * * * "The situation renders a readjustment of relative freight rates of "great immediate importance." The specifications are that class rates are not uniform as between classes, products, regions or States. Less than carload and light but bulky freight is carried too cheaply in comparison with coarse and heavy freight. Similar criticism is made of commodity rates. Some reductions and some increases should be made in both sets of rates, with the net effect of some increase to the railways, by increase of profitable business.

NO PLEDGE OF A BONUS.

Senator HIRAM JOHNSON, like others, assumes that the "faith" of the Government was pledged to a bonus. It is true that the politicians of both parties have promised it, but the Government did not. Soon after the United States entered the war a proposal was made to create an insurance system that would make the payment of pensions unnecessary. From 1790 to 1917, inclusive, the United States had disbursed $5,215,525,780 to veterans of its wars, and of this total $4,917,245,599 had been paid out for the Civil War. A liberal insurance policy was to take the place of the Civil War pension system. The Secretary of the Treasury took the matter up with representatives of the insurance companies, and on Aug. 7, 1917, a plan was drawn up. It was approved by the President, and a bill embodying it was finally passed by Congress on Oct. 6.

In addition to compensation to the soldier's family if he were killed or died in service, provision was made for partial and total disability. For five years after the war the insured was to have the right to convert his policy "into any of the usual forms of insurance." It was to be granted without medical examination. The insurance was to be for not less than $1,000 or for not more than $10,000. Taking out a policy was optional. Nevertheless, all persons in active service were to be insured automatically until Feb. 12, 1918. When policyholders, after the war, neglected to pay their premiums, Congress adopted legislation to reinstate them. Never in the history of warfare did any nation deal so liberally with the soldiers and sailors who fought its battles.

Already the Government has expended $2,122,293,644 on behalf of veterans since the World War in a period of five years. This sum is only $336,829,155 less than half of the amount paid on account of veterans in fifty-two years after the Civil War. The number of men called out by the North in that conflict was 2,898,304, compared with 4,800,000 in round numbers who volunteered or were drafted for service in the World War. In the latter 34,180 were killed in action, 14,729 died of wounds, and the total of wounded was 230,074. Of the soldiers of the Union armies 110,070 were killed and died of wounds, and 249,458 died of disease and accident. Deaths from disease and accident in the war of 1917-18 were inconsiderable by comparison. If bonuses, the sum of which may range as high as $4,486,545,075 under the deferred payment certificate plan, are to be paid to World War veterans, notwithstanding the insurance system provided for them, pensions, it may be assumed, will not be far behind—pensions continuous and cumulative. Some affect to believe that while bonuses are being paid taxation can be reduced. They must know better.

FANGLOSS ON EUROPE.

As an expert on international politics, Ambassador RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD is an excellent fiction writer. At no time in our history, he says, has American opinion been more potent in the world. Where, for example? Did it constrain M. POINCARÉ to accept Mr. HUGHES'S views on an international conference? Did it have the slightest effect on the Turks at Lausanne, even though voiced and interpreted by Mr. RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD? There is, in fact, only one incident of recent history which suggests that American opinion at present counts for anything whatever in Europe—MUSSOLINI'S refusal to permit Italian papers to publish American opinion about the occupation of Corfu. But obviously Mr. CHILD could not mention that at a dinner of the Italy-America Society. He is compelled to emit the usual vapidities about the success of the Republican Administration in "repairing the damage to our prestige abroad," which was created when a Republican Senate refused to ratify the Treaty of Versailles.

Mr. CHILD has been criticised for a morbid fear of the crafty wiles of Europe, for thinking that Americans can never go into any sort of dealings with foreigners without getting the worst of it. But that is explicable enough. He dealt with the Europeans and the Turks at Lausanne and got the worst of it; naturally he thinks nobody else could do any better. This is at least a more intelligent feeling than that of the pious Republicans who think that the Lausanne Treaty was a great victory because it was negotiated by, or forced upon, a Republican Administration. It is the best of all treaties in the best of all possible worlds, according to The Tribune, and if there is anything the matter with it the blame must be thrown upon WILSON, who did not go to war with Turkey.

If the Treaty of Lausanne were the Treaty of Sèvres, and the complaint against it lay in the fact that we did not get out of Turkey what others got, there might be some force in this.

But a description of the nations which sent delegates to Lausanne to take what ISMET Pasha would let them have, and no more, as "the States which conquered Turkey," is enough to make even a Senator laugh. The European Powers, says The Tribune, had accepted the abolition of the capitulations, so "how could the "United States expect to maintain all "the old extraterritorial privileges"? We do not know, but Mr. HUGHES did expect to maintain them, and put the retention of the capitulations at the very top of his list of demands which were made in the name of the American people, whose opinion was never more potent in the world than it is today, by Mr. RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD, one of those who have repaired the damage to our prestige abroad. Yet the Turks threw the capitulations overboard, and we had to let them have their way.

The Lausanne Treaty could plausibly be defended by friends of the Administration as the least of possible evils. It was humiliating to American prestige and damaging to American interests; intrinsically it deserves all the harsh things that were said about it by the guests at Mr. GERARD'S luncheon on Saturday. But the Turks made certain demands, and were apparently willing to fight if they were not granted. Neither the Administration nor the American people sees any use in fighting Turkey, so there was nothing to do but submit. Secretary HUGHES took his defeat like a man of sense because he could do nothing else; but he must wish somebody would put a muffler on his officious friends.

ORGANIZING CONGRESS.

Senator CUMMINS will be 74 in February. He feels himself able, doubtless, to hold, without any diminution of health or vigor, the post of President of the Senate and also that of Chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce, always one of the most important chairmanships, sometimes considered the most important. In the last Congress he was a member of three other committees, including the Judiciary. If he thinks himself equal to the work, the regular Republicans, all friendly to him, however much they regret his decision, will make no effort to displace him from the Presidency of the Senate. From the chairmanship of the Interstate Commerce Committee only the La Follettians wish him removed. There he is indispensable, since Mr. LA FOLLETTE is the second, or "ranking," member. On the other hand, as a presiding officer he is perhaps less versed in parliamentary rule and practice than Senator CURTIS of Kansas, whom the regular Republicans wished to make his successor.

Unless Mr. CUMMINS changes his mind or the Republican Senate caucus, to be held Saturday, can cut the knot, it is darkly whispered in Washington that it may be impossible to organize the Senate Monday. According to "the well-founded report in circulation," says our Washington correspondence, some Democratic Senator will move that the office of President of the Senate be declared vacant. A vote on that motion can't be avoided, and it will be carried if the La Follettians unite with the Democrats. Then the Democrats, Republicans, La Follettians, will name candidates for a pro tempore President. No candidate will have votes enough to be elected. The Senate can't be organized and no business can be done.

Equally sombre soothsayings about "a deadlock" in the House were made some time ago. It was natural to attribute them to the zeal of progressive-radical and other anti-regular aspirants to conspicuous places. These patriots sought to magnify their nuisance value. Besides, confusion, obstruction, so long as Mr. LA FOLLETTE can "take the stage," are thoroughly sympathetic to his temperament. A report of Democratic assistance to a policy of squabble, nullity and delay is another story. The country is impatient for legislation to reduce taxation. No party or faction of a party that strays into deliberate non-feasance, out of a spirit of mere partisan or personal mischief, and postpones the discussion and the achievement of a fruitful national policy, will reap anything but loss of prestige from that course.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

It Was Time to End That Custom.

A New Englander's instinct served President COOLIDGE well when it prompted him to declare that he didn't want people to send him turkeys and that he wouldn't take them—that he was able to supply his own Thanksgiving Day table and that he both preferred and intended to do it.

This was hardly to be called gracious, but it showed wisdom, good sense, and a courageous disinclination to permit anybody thus to exploit him or his position. That it took some courage is shown by the fact that no other President has ventured to refuse gifts of this sort, though probably every one of them would have liked to do it. What they were afraid of, properly enough, was the grieving of a few perfectly well-intentioned people who would have sent a nobbly big turkey to the White House in pure kindness—without a thought, that is, of gaining publicity that would minister to their pride or be good for their business. That ulterior motives prompt a majority of the turkey sendings is hardly to be doubted, for acceptance of the present confers upon the giver something of the advantage which abroad goes, or used to go, with the right of putting up, in or over a shop, a sign bearing the words, "Purveyors to the King." That particular method of advertising never has been in vogue in this country, but to be known as having "purveyed" a Thanksgiving or Christmas turkey to the President would be apt to help trade, even here.

The exchange of gifts should be limited to real friends; all other presents are likely to embarrass the recipient and they expose the giver to a suspicion that sometimes is undeserved, but more often is well founded.

Mysteries in Need of Solution.

Psychologists, professional as well as amateur, are presented with a curious and difficult problem by the behavior of JOSEPH DIAMOND after he went to Philadelphia and fell in with the young woman who was soon to give testimony so dangerous to him. Why did he, on such short acquaintance, boast of being a "stick-up man" who had made a big haul in the course of which two men had been killed?

For that an explanation probably could be found without much seeking, for many criminals do take pride in their evil exploits and expect others to see their successes as proof of superiority. The mystery becomes darker, however, as soon as reasons are sought for the man's falling at the feet of a young woman whom he had known only three hours, professing the most ardent love for her and asking her to marry him.

Alcohol probably had something to do with that, but it does not account for DIAMOND'S declaration that the marriage would be the beginning of a better life in which there should be no more stealing or killing. Was his the sort of repentance that so often led the robber barons of other times, when rich and old, to build churches, or was he, in realization of his desperate situation and of the horror which his deed would excite in most minds, eagerly hungering for a gentler judgment at least from one?

But criminals are all in one way or another "defective," and it is not safe to assume that their mental and emotional activities agree with those of better people. They have their own logic, queer and crooked, and their most marked lack is that of foresight. These DIAMONDS, fairly well educated and not obviously unintelligent, yet could not see the utter hopelessness of their undertaking—could see nothing except that it would put them in immediate possession of what to them looked like a lot of money.

His "If" Is Truly Enormous.

Dr. PAUL KAMMERER, who has rejected, and, as he believes, has disproved, the contention of most other biologists as to the heritability of "acquired characteristics," seems to have the sense of humor which is lacking in so many other German men of science. To illustrate his theory there is, he says, a very pertinent case.

"The next generation of Americans will be born without any desire for liquor." Then, after a moment's hesitation, he cautiously added, "if the Prohibition law is continued and strictly enforced."

That "if" is such a large one! A more profitable subject of inquiry might be whether, even in present conditions, anybody is born with a desire for alcohol—whether anybody ever was born with one. A few individuals of deeply tainted heredity may start life with that heavy handicap, but for the vast majority, certainly, alcohol is at first more than distasteful and no need for it is felt until it has been developed by somewhat painful experiences. The Moslems have had fairly effective prohibition for something like twelve centuries, but not all of them resist the charms of intoxicating drink, though they all ascribe the highest of authority to its prohibition.

Inspiration Sought in the Rain.

It was like GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO to expose himself to a heavy rain in his garden while he wrote a poem, and to insist that the sound of the waves, the whistle of the wind and the sound of the falling drops put him close to nature, the requisite for a poet's success.

The quality of the verses thus produced has not been disclosed as yet, but the Muse so favored was not grateful enough to protect her votary from catching cold, and now he is ill with a severe attack of tonsilitis. That is a malady that makes one about as ill as one can be, and to die of it is far from impossible.

It is not necessary, however, to withhold sympathy from D'ANNUNZIO because of his folly and his liking to pose. He was a brave and efficient soldier in the great war, and to him more than to any other one man, perhaps, was due Italy's entrance in it at a time when her help was much needed by the Allies.

He can be a most absurd person when he tries, and he tries not infrequently, but he is not always absurd, is something of a genius, and has had his great moments—many more of them than would have been his, probably, if he were less "temperamental."

Undeveloped Banana Lands.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The great Mussolini, who breaks Kings and throws Parliaments to the ash heaps as mere pastimes, most humbly begged President Coolidge to permit 200,000 starving Italians to leave their overcrowded country and come to the United States to sell bananas. Better let them go to Latin America and raise them instead. Costa Rica ships 15,000,000 bunches to the United States every year. Nicaragua is a neighboring country with twice as much banana land undeveloped. No one has ever starved to death in a banana country. The banana is a bread fruit, and every child and grown-up of all the millions that have starved could have been saved with the product of this land that the Monroe Doctrine has protected from colitization for a hundred years. From tragic to comic, every country in the world that has so persistently wailed, "Yes, we have no bananas," could have joyfully exclaimed, "Yes, we have oodles of bananas!"

Use of Park Property.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Chicago they do things differently. I once listened to an application before the South Park Commission for a permit to use park ground temporarily while workmen were placing a sign on a building on Michigan Avenue. The applicant was informed that the building line being the limit of jurisdiction of the Commissioners they were without power in respect to the sign being on the building, but that no permission would be given to use park property an instant in the placing. Arrests would immediately follow any attempt at doing so.

The gentleman who thus spoke was not ignorant of law; his name is John Barton Payne.

TAX RELIEF FOR ALL.

Mellon Plan Should Be Demanded as a Whole.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of Nov. 23 it was announced that the New York State Chamber of Commerce is planning a nation-wide campaign for the approval of Secretary Mellon's proposal for the reduction of taxation. The Chamber of Commerce is an influential organization, and its influence, exerted as it is planned to exert it, will be helpful. This fact, however, should be kept in mind—that an organized effort is necessary and should be made without delay to enlist in the support of Secretary Mellon's plan all of those taxpayers who will be benefited by its adoption. From the great mass of such taxpayers little, if anything, is heard. Toward the enlistment of such taxpayers in the cause little has been done.

A statement appeared recently to the effect that there are 700,000 tickets of admission to the theatres sold in New York every day. Millions of dollars are paid every year as taxes by the purchasers of such tickets throughout the United States. Secretary Mellon's plan provides for the repeal of such tax. The theatre patrons in every city should be shown the facts, and they may be trusted to act for their own pecuniary advantage.

The farmers of the country will in great numbers be benefited by the reduction of taxes recommended by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The "white collar" multitude of workers will be benefited; the mechanics, the craftsman, the small merchants, widows dependent upon small incomes, and great numbers of individuals having incomes of more than $1,000 and less than $4,000 each, will be relieved from the payment of 25 per cent. of his or her present income tax, and if his or her income is from labor or services the tax will be but three-fourths of the remaining 75 per cent., if Congress shall endorse the Secretary's recommendation.

Many of such voters, I think, do not understand the situation. There is danger that they may not understand it; there is danger that they will not do their part in the effort to convince Congress of the propriety of approving the plan. Many of such voters I am afraid have the idea that the plan will benefit only the large taxpayers, and that it has been evolved for their benefit.

The activity of the Chambers of Commerce may be likely, unless properly directed, to confirm such unwarranted opinion.

There are great numbers of taxpayers who would like to see an increase of surtaxes rather than a reduction. They should recognise the fact that no legislation is likely to result if the Mellon plan shall not be adopted in its entirety. A campaign of education should be organized and carried on among the farmers, the mechanics and all other classes of small taxpayers, to the end that they may be enlisted in the cause of tax reduction.

The Mellon plan means relief for all classes. It should have the support of all classes. It is doubtful if any single class can get the desired result without the assistance of all the other classes. The entire plan may be defeated by the opposition of any one of the several classes.

I think that the Chamber of Commerce of New York should devote its efforts to bring about the co-operation of all classes. If this can be accomplished the result will not be doubtful.

MR. CRAIG'S OFFENSE.

Fair Review of the Sentence Might Have Been Had on Appeal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The uproar over Mr. Craig's punishment for his statements, finally adjudicated to have been false, so disgusts me that it leads me to assert the almost constitutional prerogative of writing to THE TIMES.

What a picture of mob psychology and hysteria Mr. Craig's temper and inaccuracy have caused! If Mr. Craig had been simply an obscure lawyer, his predicament would have passed notice, even of a Governor who will challenge any one, from the President down, in order to get into the spotlight.

It surprises me that an element in Mr. Craig's offense—to me the more serious because he is an experienced lawyer—has passed notice. He is reported as saying, in effect, that he did not appeal from Judge Mayer's order because Judge Mayer was a member of the appellate court or that the appellate court was Judge Mayer's court. Mr. Craig permits the inference that he would not have been treated fairly in that appellate court. That claim may not be contemptuous, but it is a criticism that no honest lawyer ought to make. He knows, as many laymen do not know, that a Judge does not sit on appeal in review of his own orders; he knows that appellate courts, especially Federal appellate courts, are not influenced as to any question up for review before them by the fact that it has been decided by a member of the court. For a lawyer to give a contrary impression is inexcusable; it is utterly without justification.

Mr. Craig knows that ignorant people, especially defeated litigants, have little respect for Judges and that the members of the bar are often called upon to support our courts against the referendum as applied to Judges and limitation of the rights of our Supreme Court. He must see, as other lawyers see, a growing tendency to scout at and suspect our interpreters of law, to set up the authority of the modern mob against settled principles of law. He failed in his duty to the very court of which he was an officer when he based his criticisms thereon on false statements of fact, and he fails miserably when he panders to the prejudice of the ignorant by saying in effect (as reported) that he could not have obtained a fair and unprejudiced review of Judge Mayer's order by appealing therefrom.

Changed Attitude Toward Parks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Gallatin is right when he says that "To restore and maintain the parks in a manner befitting our great metropolis would require sums of money not at present available. It would also require a complete change of attitude on the part of visitors, from license to self-control."

Change of attitude for the better comes from education and the greatest hope and opportunity lie in our schools.

If throughout the Winter special talks could be given at regular intervals, in all schools, I think improvement in the condition of the parks would be noticeable in the Spring.

Two boys passed my home one day last Spring: one rode a bicycle and the other ran behind trying to keep up. The boy on foot hastily spotted a package of chocolate, took a bite and then threw the wrapper away as he ran. Suddenly he whirled round, picked up the wrapper, put it in his pocket and raced on. His impulse was toward carelessness but his training overcame it.

Thousands of people who enjoy the parks are absolutely innocent of offense because ignorant; many are thoughtless and indifferent and our hope lies largely in the education of the children.

THANKSGIVING POEMS

A Selection From the Seasonable Verse Offered to The New York Times.

"I HAVE A LITTLE PATH OF THANKFULNESS."

On the gray road the shadow of dark trees
Silence upon my house. A light gone out.
Past, just behind me, I can turn and see
The small drab ghosts that were my yesterdays.
And I can hear their voices whispering,
And wondering, and saying to the sky,
O Sky, look out ahead. Is all the way
So full of stumbling and of impotence?

O little Sisters, that ware once my days
And ministered whatever joys you knew,
The misty candles that you snuffed each hour
Have gathered into glory, and have leaped
Beyond the road—beyond the shadowed trees!
They show me how my bright tomorrows come,
Swift, with a beckoning flash of ecstasy,
Bearing good gifts of lighted tapers, new
And golden and resplendent. . . .
Now, today,
Good people everywhere are giving thanks,
And of all virtues what is fitter, pray,
Than ample gratitude, for length of years,
For gathered harvests, all the garnered goods
That we are storing with such careful zeal?

I have a little path of thankfulness
Whereon I walk. . . . It is a quiet Way.
There be not many going. . . . But the few
Strike hands in understanding, that good gift—
Precious, unchangeable and rare . . . as love.
It is the way of gratitude for pain. . . .
For the drab yesterdays . . . and for the stripes
Upon my quivering and silent flesh.
This biting lash that whips the soul to song—
Shall we not call it blessed chastisement?
There is no courage like the courage born
In the dark heavy seas of circumstance.
It is a dauntless thing, and keeps good heart—
And steady eyes upon tomorrow bent.

THE NOVEMBER FESTIVAL.

The year swings round. The gypsy glow
That made October's face so dear
Has paled and vanished. Briefer grow
The Autumn days; each one, we know,
Brings Winter's rigors yet more near.

A voice rings from the ruler's place;
It bids us leave the tasks pursued
With daily zest, to pause a space
And exercise a special grace,
The gentle grace of gratitude.

Obedient to our chief's behest
Right gladly we our boons appraise;
And heads the shining list our best,
Home, family, friends, the peace and rest
That follow conflict's darkened days.

The evening hush, the morning zeal,
The pleasure of our chosen task,
The bounty of the common meal,
For these, and all that makes our weal,
More than we fancy, crave or ask,

Arises glad acknowledgment.
We urge not our desert nor claim—
Beyond just meed for right intent
Always is princely surplus sent.
We bow and breathe the Sacred Name.

Now ingle cheer and festive fare
Reunions of the wide dispersed,
A merry frolic, flouting Care,
All these are ours to taste and share;
So let the weather do its worst!

Come frost, come snow—our pulses leap
Toward the Great Master of the Fall.
We have a twelvemonth's sweets to reap,
So rally, clans, and let us keep November's joyous Festival!

THANKSGIVING.

So many things to give thanks for today—
That we are happy, prosperous and gay!
That War is so long past we have forgot
The Dream for which we fought—it haunts us not!
That we can be so carefree and so bright,
And think no more of them—the crosses white!
That they beneath them rest so quietly
And come not back to haunt our gayety!
Let us be thankful that we can forget
The living ones to whom we owe a debt!
That we with such indifference can read
How they are victimized by graft and greed!
That we can lose ourselves in idle play
Untroubled by the sorrows far away!
Let us give thanks that it is wide—the sea!
We cannot hear sad Europe's anguished plea!
The cries would trouble us—if they were near—
Let us be thankful that we do not hear!
Let us be thankful that we cannot see—
Or will not—what the future is to be!
Give thanks for all of these—and for the pride
That makes and keeps us smug and satisfied!

THANKSGIVING PIES.

Mince pies, I sing! With their crust
Flaky and crisp and delicious—
Filled with delectable things,
Potpourri oozing fat richness—
Pleasant of savor and taste,
Mixed with spiritus frumenti!

Apple pies, syrup-y, sweet,
Flavored with nutmeg and allspice;
Baked in deep pans, so their juice
Permeates all through the pastry—
Essence of Macintosh Reds
And Greenings, we fondly salute thee!

Pumpkin pies, golden and brown,
To tickle an epicure's palate!
(Pity Lucullus, who died
Before such desserts were invented!)
Mixture ambrosial, which seems
Of cinnamon, cloves and molasses!

Thanksgiving soon will be here.
Gobblers are sighing their swan songs—
Truth, 'tis, that succulent bird
Is the backbone of one's dinner,
But—we of New England, sing sail,
Thrice hail to the pies made by Mother!

REFLECTIONS.

Times change, men change, all things that mirrors view:
This one before me centuries has seen!
John Endicott it saw, when it was new;
Priscilla Alden glowed upon its sheen.

It's strange to face it on Thanksgiving Day.
And think about the people of the past,
Who trooped before it in their brave array,
With all the stately surety of caste.

A cheery group are we assembled here,
Seemingly thankful, plainly at our ease,
Lending small nothings an attentive ear,
Not overthoughtful, easy folk to please.

Within the mirror at the table's end
I see the men of Massachusetts Bay,
Stern Puritans with necks too stiff to bend,
Who hewed, and won, and held their narrow way.

They made the day, the feast of which we keep,
By dint of labor, mattock, axe, and blade;
They found no path too rough, no height too steep,
No task too difficult that they essayed.

The mirror that saw Standish now sees me—
Just slightly anti-climax I should say:
Well, I must set some frothy saying free
Or have my hostess think that I'm distrait.

O. C. A. CHILD.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

It may be where the tablecloth
And silver bear a crest,
And jewels trim the satin gown
Of each invited guest.

It may be where the cultured folk
Sit by a faultless board
And interchange in quiet tones
The knowledge they have stored.

It may be where two lonely souls,
Still dark with Sorrow's stain,
Will keep the customs of the day,
And lay aside their pain.

It may be where a cottage holds
A busy, youthful crowd,
Whose joyousness will bubble o'er
In laughter that is loud.

It may be where a mother waits
With hope and happy tears
To welcome back the children who Were stolen by the years.

It may be just a wooden shack,
Away from haunts of man,
Where turkey is a roasted quail,
And pumpkin's in a can.

It doesn't matter very much—
They keep Thanksgiving Day,
And each perhaps is thankful, too,
In his own special way.

NAN TERRELL REED.

A SPIRITUAL THANKSGIVING.

A youth came to a Sage and said:
"O Man of Vision, wilt thou teach
How I may to perfection reach—
I too would wear fair Wisdom's crown,
And win unto true world renown."

A sunbeam was just playing there,
Shone down upon a drop of dew
That sank into the earth, where grew
A little seed to birth would bring
A grain of wheat for harvesting.

The Sage smiled down and pointing said,
"Look down, O Youth, there at thy feet
Thou wilt eternal answer meet;
In faith and hope plant thou good seed,
And God will send it every need."

Our fathers sowed and planted well—
The fruit unto quick ripening came—
Today we bless and praise their name;
If ye good husbandmen would be,
Use well the fruit, and guard the tree.

The seed was justice, right and truth—
The tree, majestic Liberty—
The blossom, Opportunity—
The fruit, a nation great in might,
To lead men upward to the light.

Thanksgiving means "soul-offering"—
God's mercies are for all the world!
Wherever our flag is unfurled,
Bid all the peoples come and share
Our many blessings rich and rare.

ANNETTE KOHN.

THANKSGIVING DAY—1923.

I'll set the table now; it's almost time
To dish the dinner. Here is Father's place,
Here, mine; and here—ah, here he used to sit,
And look across at me with his blue eyes,
Making me laugh at the gay things he said.
It seems but yesterday he was a babe,
And had a turkey-bone to bite upon;
But—that was twenty-seven years ago;
That's why the time when he had grown a man,
And went to be a soldier overseas,
Just seems—why, nothing! It's as though I heard
His voice this minute, up there in his room,
Washing his hands before he comes to eat;
That's why I set his place; I can't believe
But that he'll come down soon and take his chair.
I s'pose that that's the reason I'm so keen
About the League; you see, the ones who had
No boy to go across and write to them
Are listless-like, and say they don't much care
Whether we have another war or not.
Why should they care? They have no vacant place
To set a chair to each Thanksgiving Day;
We can't forget! I seem to hear him say:
"Why, Mother, it can't be they cheated us—
Told us we died to make this whole world free
From war and all the hellishness of war,
And then forgot us! No; it can't think that;
There's some mistake. . . . America is proud;
She always pays her debts. We gave our lives!
And now it's up to her to make it good!"
There now! I heard him say that . . . just as plain!
Oh, son! Your mother knows for what you died!
Here at your vacant place I bow my head.
And thank God humbly for your high deed.

MRS. ENRICO CARUSO WEDS CAPT. INGRAM

Few at Ceremony in Brompton Oratory, but a Large Crowd Gathers to See the Bride.

GLORIA IN A FRONT SEAT

Charge d'Affaires of Italian Embassy in London Gives Tenor's Widow in Marriage.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The wedding of Mme. Enrico Caruso, widow of the famous tenor, who was formerly Miss Dorothy Benjamin of New York, and Captain Ernest Ingram took place today at Brompton Oratory. Only a few guests were present at the short ceremony performed by the Rev. Father Brown, but a large crowd had gathered outside to see the bride.

Miss Gloria Caruso, the bride's three-year-old daughter, a pretty child in a white ermine coat with a velvet hat trimmed with ermine tails, sat in a front seat during the service. Mme. Caruso wore a draped black velvet dress with hanging panels trimmed with sable, her sable stole falling almost to the hem. Her black hat had a tuft of osprey at both sides and she carried a huge bouquet of purple orchids.

In the absence of the Italian Ambassador in Paris, who was to have given away the bride, the duty was performed by the Italian Chargé d'Affaires Signor Fradeni. Commander Philip Champion de Crespigny was best man.

The news of Mrs. Caruso's engagement to Captain Ingram a few weeks ago was as much of a surprise as her marriage to Caruso on Aug. 20, 1918, was against the wishes of her father, the late Park Benjamin, and accompanied by a few friends, they were married at the Marble Collegiate Church, this city.

Mrs. Caruso met Captain Ingram in Paris, although it is said they first met in the Lido, in Italy, when the Captain gave swimming lessons to the widow of the noted tenor. The Captain was an engineer before the war, and enlisted in September, 1914, in a West Yorkshire regiment, and soon obtained his commission as a subaltern. Lieutenant Ingram rose to the rank of Captain, and on being invalided in 1918 he was attached to the air force engine section, in which he served until demobilized in 1919. He is a of a very old Warwickshire family.

Caruso died in his villa at Naples on Aug. 2, 1921, and left an estate in Italy valued at 20,000,000 lire, with New York property valued at $200,000.

INCREASE IN MARRIAGES.

Social Register for 1924 Shows 108 More Than Last Year.

The New York Social Register for 1924 has just been issued, and makes its appearance considerably in advance of former issues. Some of the social statistics of prominent families compiled this season show an increase in marriages there being 904 marriages, as compared with 796 in the 1923 publication.

The statistics show 43 more deaths among women than were chronicled last year, but there were 15 fewer deaths among the men. The last number shows an astonishing number of changes of residence and the installation of the new telephone exchanges, which increased the work necessary to insure accuracy for which The Social Register is noted.

There are no changes in the publication from last year. The men who have been honorably discharged from the service in the defense of their country in the late war still have a star opposite their names. The column of "Married Maidens" in the back of the book reveals the present married names of prominent women, and, where married to residents of other cities, the city of the present residence is indicated.

MRS. GATES ESTATE GAINS $5,932,167

Property Worth $16,598,607 in 1918 Is Now Valued at $22,530,774.

APPRAISAL FILED HERE

Niece Got All Except $1,018,380—New York State to Collect Tax on $1,719,652.

An appraisal filed yesterday of the estate of Mrs. Dellora R. Gates, widow of John W. Gates, shows that the estate was valued at $16,598,607 at the time of her death on March 28, 1918, and that since that time the estate sold property which increased $1,919,773 over the appraised value, and that other property which has not been sold appreciated in value $4,012,394. Mrs. Gates made specific bequests in her will amounting to $1,018,380 and left the remainder of the estate to her niece, Dellora F. Angell of St. Charles, Ill., who, since the death of Mrs. Gates, has become the wife of Lester Norris, a Chicago newspaper illustrator.

The report shows that the New York estate of Mrs. Gates is valued at $1,719,652. This is the amount on which New York State will collect a tax, since the courts have held that she was a resident of Fort Arthur, Texas, at the time of her death. Her will was filed for probate there. The New York estate consisted of the following:

Real estate at 103 West Fifty-second Street, $54,000; personal effects, furniture, jewelry, furs and autos, $384,089; 423 bonds of par value of $1,000 each, of the Forty-third Street Realty Company, $244,997, and 1,226 bonds of the United States Realty and Improvement Company, of a par value of $1,000 each, $493,868, and 750 shares of the Hotel Plaza Company, $41,605.

The appraisal in fixing the value of bonds of the Forty-third Street Realty Company, owner of the New York Hippodrome, including testimony of Hugh Wynsor, Vice President of the corporation as to the profits and losses of the company. The testimony showed there was a loss of $129,513 for the year 1915 to 1916 and of $20,113 in 1916 to 1917. The profit was shown in each succeeding year of $86,513, $37,378, $246,536, and $120,018, until the year 1921 to 1922 when there was a loss of $166,928. The average yearly loss for the period was $92,313.

The report shows that the New York administration expenses were $64,947 and other debts and administration expenses, $1,920,434. The executors and trustees' commissions were $1,140,097, and the attorneys' fees in New York and Texas $384,810. Mrs. Gates's debts outside of New York were $542,478. An accounting in the estate filed in July, 1922, showed that the value at that time was $22,530,774.

Mrs. Coolidge Takes Riding Lesson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Coolidge, wife of the President, today turned to the tanbark for recreation. Accompanied by Assistant Secretary of War Dwight Davis, the "first lady of the land" journeyed to Fort Myer, Va., where she took her initial riding lesson.

For her mount Mrs. Coolidge chose a big bay army horse answering to the name of Joe, belonging to Colonel Hawkins. For half an hour she cantered and galloped around the post riding hall, and at the conclusion of the ride Secretary Davis predicted that with a few more lessons she would develop into an expert horsewoman.

PERCIVAL KNIGHT DEAD.

Comedian Who Recently Starred in "Thin Ice" Dies in Switzerland.

Percival Knight, comedian and playwright, well known in this country and England, died on Tuesday from tuberculosis in Montreux, in Switzerland, according to word received here yesterday. Mr. Knight came to the United States first in 1905. He appeared with George P. Huntley in "Kitty Grey," and in "The Three Little Maids." He was seen on the Bacon in "The Dollar Princess," but he made his first real hit as Peter Doody, the unlucky but merry jockey in "The Arcadians." Last year he played the leading rôle in his own comedy drama, "Thin Ice," at the Comedy Theatre.

Mr. Knight was born in Scotland and was 48 years old. He began his career at 8 years of age as a prodigy, a boy soprano. He continued to sing until he was about 17 years old, when his voice broke and he turned to the stage proper. His early years were hard ones and he served three and a half years in Kastny Barracks, as a private in the Royal Marine Artillery. Upon his discharge he again turned to the stage and there followed tours through the provinces that brought him some reputation and little money, but success came when he formed his own company, and in comic opera and musical comedy he journeyed to the Far East.

In 1908 Charles Frohman found him and brought him across the Atlantic in "Kitty Grey." Mr. Knight was a member of The Lambs.

CAPITAL CONFIDENT IN TOMOKA SEIZURE

Officials Doubt If Great Britain Will Protest When the Facts Are Learned.

HISTORY OF CRAFT TRACED

Change to British Registry Was Investigated in Bermuda Before Liquor Runner's Capture.

"HOVERING" LAW UTILIZED

Libel Proceedings to Be Pressed—Rum Row Is Stirred by Taking of Vessel.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Federal officials cognizant of the facts concerning the rum-running operations and seizure of the auxiliary schooner Tomoka six miles off the New Jersey coast expect no serious international complications because that vessel was flying the British flag and claims British registry.

Officials believe that when the evidence possessed is brought to the attention of the British authorities the latter will not care to press any diplomatic protest against the seizure of the Tomoka, which was taken beyond the three-mile limit.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is officially informed that agents of this Government have closely followed the trail and activities of the Tomoka since early in the Summer of 1921, when the schooner, then owned by William S. McCoy, a picturesque figure in the West Indian liquor-running trade, was suddenly transferred from American to British registry.

From the same responsible quarters it is learned that the evidence which this Government already possesses and stands ready to present when the Tomoka case is called for trial is sufficient to prove most flagrant violations of liquor enforcement, customs and other laws.

British Have Not Protested.

No protest has been made by the British Government against the seizure of the Tomoka, although American Treasury officials make no attempt to conceal the fact that the schooner was seized six miles from shore. It was also stated at the British Embassy that no such protest had been filed, and that the State Department had not been asked for the facts in the Tomoka case, although it was indicated that a full report of the incident from the British Consul General in New York has been forwarded to London by the embassy.

Inquiries are also being made by British consular officers at Halifax and Nassau concerning the status of the Tomoka's registry. If it is eventually proved that the Tomoka was not lawfully entitled to fly the British flag, it is expected that the British Government will not care to push any protest, inasmuch as the British protest in the case of the schooner Marshall was withdrawn when investigation proved that the vessel had no right to fly the British flag.

The evidence in possession of the Department of Justice in regard to the operations of the Tomoka, both under that name and the schooner's former American name of Arethusa, is voluminous. This Government has a complete record of the schooner from the time it first entered the highly profitable liquor running trade between Nassau and other insular points off the American coast to American shores, and officials insist that orders for the capture of the Tomoka were not issued until officials were satisfied that a case could be made out against the schooner and those operating it.

The Tomoka case will be handled by the office of the District Attorney for the Southern District of New York. United States Attorney Hayward's general direction, although proceedings against the Tomoka will be pressed by the Federal Government and the indictment of McCoy sought.

Specific Evidence for Seizure.

The hull of McCoy, it is understood, has been fixed at $15,000, and orders have been issued to hold the members of his crew without bail as material witnesses. The seizure of the Tomoka, it it learned, was based on alleged violation of the so-called "hovering statutes," the American Tariff act, which is also being used to break up liquor running across the Canadian border as well as violation of the customs laws.

The point was emphasized today by a high official that it must be clearly understood that no understanding between the United States and Great Britain has been reached regarding the seizure of such vessels. The Tomoka case was based on evidence in hand and because officials of this Government believed that it is acting wholly within its rights in the matter under indisputable American law. Before the Tomoka was captured the Government had inquired of British Colonial officials at Bermuda as to her registry, and had also gone into the status of the Ocean Trading Company of Halifax, which is the name in which the Tomoka was registered at Bermuda. The facts with respect to the members of this company have even been traced out in some detail.

After serving as a Gloucester fisherman, the vessel was sold May 17, 1920, to the East Coast Fisheries Company of Rockland, Me., and on April 20, 1921, it was bought by McCoy. At that time it was known as the Arethusa. The activities of the American Government in seizing American ships was followed by the transfer of the Arethusa on June 30, 1921, to British registry and the change of its name to Tomoka.

The evidence in the possession of this Government is that at the time of the transfer McCoy pretended to have parted with his ownership of the schooner to one Eugene Albury, a British subject. With the transfer of the schooner to Albury the Ocean Trading Company of Halifax was formed, and it is now named as the owner of the schooner.

The evidence obtained against the Tomoka is declared to be of such a character as to show such a number of violations that those involved in the seizure could, if this Government desired, be tried in any Federal jurisdiction from Marblehead to the mouth of the Delaware.

The Tomoka was armed and it is stated that this is the schooner which entered into battle recently with the Manhattan, a Coast Guard patrol vessel of New York Harbor, when several shots were fired. It is also learned in an official quarter that, when the schooner was known as the Arethusa it and McCoy were proceeded against.

Tomoka Seizure Stirs Rum Row.

HIGHLANDS, N. J., Nov. 28.—Seizure by the Coast Guard more than six miles off shore of the British rum schooner Tomoka, the case of which now is being studied in London and Washington, apparently has caused consternation along rum row.

The largest steamer has moved to a point seven miles southeast of Ambrose Lightship, while another steamer and schooner have taken a stand fourteen miles east of Seabright. Two vessels still remain in the old location, six miles off the lightship.

Local smugglers nowadays are following closely newspaper accounts of the progress of negotiations for a treaty between the United States and Great Britain, whereby the three-mile limit may be extended. Runners are reported to be professing little concern regarding extension of the limit.

"What is a mile or two extra?" they were reported as saying. "It is only within the last few months that rum row has been within 60 miles of the Jersey shore. Before that we went twelve to fifteen miles out. Now we have better and faster boats, so why should we worry if we have to go twenty miles out?"

First Florida Strawberries Bring $2.50 Per Quart Here

The first consignment of strawberries for the season from Florida received in New York by Robert Cochran & Co. of 290 Washington Street, was 27 quarts from Harrelson Brothers, Lakeland, Fla. Another shipment of 80 quarts received here yesterday was quickly sold to jobbers at $2.50 a quart.

The Florida strawberry season does not formally open until the first week in December, but in order to provide for the Thanksgiving Day demand special consignments are rushed up to New York and usually bring high prices. The berries are packed in ice and shipped by express.

PASS ON SIX CURBS TO LIQUOR RUNNING

Canadian and American Delegates Announce Progress in Negotiations.

RESULT IS NOT DISCLOSED

Dominion Authorities Were Expected to Raise Objections to Some of Our Proposals.

OTTAWA, Nov. 28.—Six of the American proposals to end liquor smuggling across the Canadian border have been disposed of by delegates from the two countries attending the international conference on the subject, it was announced tonight in an official statement, but no indication was given as to whether the Canadian representatives had accepted or rejected them.

The official statement was the first announcement made regarding the progress of the conference, which opened Monday and aside from the news that the six proposals had been passed upon, and that the others would be taken up tomorrow, it contained little information. Secrecy has been maintained throughout the conference, but it generally was predicted that at least some of the terms suggested would be rejected by Canada.

The proposals believed to have been passed upon today provide for:

Co-operation of Canadian and American customs officials in the suppression of liquor smuggling.

Furnishing of information by Canadian officials concerning the clearance of ships with liquor cargoes on board.

Passing of an order-in-council preventing the clearance of liquor laden ships for United States ports.

Refusal of clearance to ships under 250 tons with liquor cargoes.

Search and seizure of vessels engaged in smuggling on the Great Lakes.

Obligation of vessels to proceed to ports for which they clear.

It was believed the delegates also considered possible effects of relaxation of the Carriage of Liquor act, which previously banned transportation of intoxicants over public highways in Ontario. No announcement was made regarding this subject, however.

ANSWERS ENGLAND ON 12-MILE TREATY

Washington's Reply Holds That It Will Have Force of Law if Concluded.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The United States Government today made its reply to the counter proposals of the British Government, which were delivered in Washington on Nov. 23, in regard to the granting of the right of search for liquor within twelve miles of the American coast. It is understood that the objection raised by the Foreign Office on a point of American law is controverted; it is held that if a treaty has been duly concluded with a foreign power and ratified by the American Senate it will have the force of law in the United States and will in no wise be unconstitutional.

On the other hand, some objection is apparently made by Washington to the suggestion that a proviso be attached to the treaty according to which the whole treaty would be void if any part of it were declared illegal by a ruling of the Supreme Court or otherwise.

The London Times says editorially:

"It is gratifying proof of the essential soundness of Anglo-American relations that the capture outside American territorial waters of two rum-runners flying the British flag has so far been neither the occasion for misunderstanding nor even a cause of irritation."

At the same time the paper urges that every possible dispatch be used in completing the negotiation of an anti-smuggling treaty. It expresses the opinion that British misgivings on the point of American law "are possibly somewhat exaggerated," but it adds that it is difficult to see why the United States should raise any objection to the safeguarding proviso suggested by Great Britain. It concludes:

"Every day's delay makes a definite settlement more problematical. Congress will meet again next week, and numerous interests in the House of Representatives may make themselves heard, not all on the side of a harmonious solution. Meanwhile at any moment further incidents caused by the excessive zeal of the American revenue officers outside the three-mile limit may inflame public opinion, embitter Anglo-American relations and indefinitely postpone the conclusion of the treaty."

5 CLEARED IN KESSLER CASE

Three Former Dry Agents Among Those Whose Acquittal Is Ordered.

Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow yesterday instructed the jury hearing the case of Emanuel H. Kessler, six former prohibition agents and twelve other defendants, charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead act and to defraud the Government of revenue through the illegal withdrawal of a large quantity of liquor from the Republic Warehouse, to return a verdict of not guilty in the case of five of the defendants. Three of the men whom the jury was advised to acquit were former Prohibition Agents George Fasullo, George Fannelli and Henry Grunewald. The other two men ordered acquitted were John L. Jordan and Al Goldman.

The Court then announced that all motions on behalf of the other defendants were denied. Counsel for the defense rested their case without putting in any evidence. The remaining defendants are Kessler, Morris Sweetwood, said to be Kessler's partner; Joseph Fox, bookkeeper in Kessler's office; Morris M. Becher, who wrote the bond for "Frank J. Sullivan," said to have been a straw man; Murray A. Birnbaum, Mark Arco, Millard F. Fredberg, Albert Block, Jack Goldman, Ben Katz, John R. Maxwell, Irving Garsson, Abe Toplits and Roswell A. Saver. The last three are former prohibition agents.

Judge Winslow instructed counsel on both sides to be prepared to finish summations on Monday, so that the case could go to the jury Tuesday. The trial was adjourned until 9:30 o'clock Monday morning.

OFFER AN EXCHANGE FOR PARK ART SITE

Mayor's Committee Would Give 37 Acres of Reservoir Land for Proposed Plot.

UP TO ESTIMATE BOARD

Organizations, However, Prepare to Fight Any "Invasion" of the City's Playgrounds.

Legislative action will be sought for authority to place the proposed music and art centre in Central Park, at Fifty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue, City Chamberlain Philip Berolsheimer of the Mayor's advisory committee on the plan, said yesterday, provided the Board of Estimate acts favorably on the proposal.

The plan, as outlined by Mr. Berolsheimer, is for the committee, of which Joseph Haag, Assistant to the Mayor, is the other member, to make a detailed report to the Board of Estimate, asking that authority be given to take four and one-half acres of Central Park. As "a fair exchange," Mr. Berolsheimer said, some thirty-seven acres, comprising of what is now the tower reservoir, will be turned over to the Park Department. This acreage is now under the jurisdiction of the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity.

The suggestion to "exchange" the two plots, it was explained, after investigation, had disclosed that the original plan of taking land south of the park by condemnation proceedings would cost a sum far beyond the city's ability to pay at the present time.

The committee's report, Mr. Berolsheimer said, would be ready before Jan. 1, and that soon after that date the Board of Estimate will be asked to call a public hearing on the proposal. If the plan is approved the Legislature will be asked to enact permissive legislation.

Prepare For a Fight.

Meanwhile individuals and organizations interested in the protection of the parks against encroachments are taking steps to fight the proposal to take the four and one-half acres for the music and art centre, on the ground that it is not a proper park purpose, and that every inch of the park's natural beauty should be preserved. Many of the organizations already have taken a stand against the use of the reservoir site for anything but additional park land.

The reservoir site properly belongs to the park, representatives of these organizations contended when it was proposed last year to use it for a war memorial, with a swimming pool and other features. The proposition to "exchange" it now for the proposed site for the music and art centre will be as vigorously opposed, it was said.

Among the organizations which protested a year ago against the use of the reservoir site for anything but park purposes, were the City Club, the Fifth Avenue Association, the Merchants' Association committee on city plan; Municipal Art Society, New York Chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects, the New York Section of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Parks and Playgrounds Association and the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

The sole ground of objection to the proposed site for the music and art centre, its opponents say, is that it will take a part of the park for the site. The idea of the music and art centre, as advanced by Mr. Berolsheimer and Mr. Haag, but on another site, was generally approved.

Not an Invasion, He Says.

Mr. Berolsheimer denied that the proposed site would be an "invasion" of the park. "I am, of course, opposed to 'robbing the parks,'" he said. "One of the most important facts has not been made clear, however. That is that thirty-seven acres of reservoir which now belongs to the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity will be turned over to the Sinking Fund Commission in exchange for the four and a half acres at the south end of the park.

"More than a year ago the Legislature enacted permissive legislation allowing the city to acquire a site. The Board of Estimate later adopted resolutions guaranteeing a site. The money for the buildings was to be raised by private subscriptions.

"When we investigated the site through examiners of the Board of Estimate and outside help, we found that its cost, under liberal condemnation terms, would be $20,000,000 alone. Since the city is so near the debt limit, the question was whether we would wait perhaps fifty years. The Mayor suggested the plan of exchanging the reservoir for a site for the music and art centre, so that we can have it now. The Mayor wants this as the real peace memorial.

"It is the Mayor's proposition to do something and not delay the plan until the city is able to pay $20,000,000. The idea is to turn the reservoir over to the Park Department and let the Park Commissioner do as he wishes with it. If it is decided to make this exchange the city will help the project by appropriating part of the cost of the buildings.

"The value of the site for park purposes at present is comparatively small. The spot is very unfrequented. While today there is hardly any one there, there would be tens of thousands enjoying it every day if the music and art centre is established."

Describing the plan, Mr. Berolsheimer said that the most important group would be the central one, making up an industrial arts group. The centre building would be 400 feet long, he said. On one side it is planned to have a music and art building in which teachers' societies would have their headquarters, and there would be a conservatory of music and various music halls. The third group would be an opera house, with opera and ballet schools.

RELEASES LIQUOR SHIP.

Judge at Jacksonville Restores Louise F. to British Owners.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 28.—Federal Judge R. M. Call today upheld the contention of members of the crew of the British auxiliary schooner Louise F., that the vessel was brought within the three-mile limit against the wishes of the officers. His opinion says that he will restore the vessel to its owners without bond, under writs which will follow. Federal agents had instituted libel proceedings against the vessel, charging that it had delivered liquor to the Florida coast.

The opinion sustains the contention of the crew that pirates dispossessed the lawful officers in controll of the ship, forced it into American waters against the will of the lawful officers, that it was bound from Nassau to Halifax, and that the pirates unloaded a part of the cargo of liquor, which was valued at $78,000, off Pablo Beach.

The ruling also holds that the ship was seized by the customs officials while it was outside the three-mile limit and that it has since been in custody.

THINK RAID IS A HOLD-UP.

Women in Greenwich Village Place Faint as Dry Agents Appear.

Two women who fainted at sight of prohibition raiders whom they mistook for hold-up men caused more excitement early last evening in Berteiotti's restaurant, 85-87 West Third Street, in Greenwich Village, than the prohibition agents themselves. There were 200 diners in the restaurant when a search warrant issued by United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock was served. The prohibition agents arrested Mrs. Carrie Berteiotti, and locked her up at the Mercer Street Police Station on a charge of violating the Volstead act. The raiders seized wine, whisky and cordials, valued at more than $1,000.

Methodist Elder Bars Farrar's Singing in Atlanta Church and Manager May Sue

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 28.—Geraldine Farrar, the operatic soprano, for years the idol of Atlanta grand opera enthusiasts, today was barred from singing Friday night at the Wesley Memorial Church by order of Presiding Elder W. H. Laprade Jr. of the Methodist Church of the North Georgia Conference, who declared her contract canceled.

No official reasons have been given as to why Miss Farrar has been placed under the Methodist ban. But it is generally believed here that Miss Farrar's difficulties dated back to her performance of "Zaza" during the local opera season of 1922. Several Atlanta women have unofficially opposed her appearance in the Methodist Church, it is stated, basing their position on their objections to Miss Farrar's interpretation of the title rôle, especially on the way she presented the dressing room scene. Miss Farrar did not accompany the Metropolitan Opera Company here last year.

The Atlanta management of the engagement is making a desperate effort to find some other place in which to hold the concert. It is possible that it may be presented in the Baptist Tabernacle, but this has not been decided. It is also possible that an injunction suit will be filed to force the Methodist Church to observe its contract. It was said that $3,000 worth of tickets have been sold for the concert.

Dr. Laprade, who canceled the contract without giving reasons, held that it was invalid in that it was signed by a pastor, whose term of office has now expired. At the Wesley Memorial office it was stated that the reasons for cancellation were "sufficient."

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 28.—Geraldine Farrar is not in the least perturbed over dispatches from Atlanta stating that the use of a church auditorium had been denied her for a concert Friday night, according to Jack Savage, her manager, who, with the singer, arrived here today.

Her manager said he had arranged for the concert to be held in another auditorium. Miss Farrar declined to make a statement.

FIXES PLAN OF WORK IN TOMB OF PHARAOH

Carter Decides on Scheme to Dismantle the Shrines Enclosing the Sarcophagus.

LUXOR, Egypt, Nov. 28.—The small dimensions of the doorways and passages of the sepulchral chamber of the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen as compared with the size of the shrines which are believed to enclose the sarcophagus have often been referred to. The fact that the shrines almost completely fill the sepulchral chamber has given rise to much speculation as to the manner in which the sarcophagus was placed within them, and the problem of how to remove these nested shrines with the least damage and the least delay has been the cause of constant thought to Howard Carter and his staff ever since the sepulchral chamber was first entered last February.

This morning a careful examination was made of the outer shrine of the sepulchral chamber itself, and of the partition wall consisting of two doorjambs and lintel, which forms the north end of the ante-chamber, with the object of ascertaining whether this partition wall was constructed before or after the shrines were introduced into the sepulchral chamber. The conclusions arrived at were the following:

First, the walls of the sepulchral chamber appear to have been painted simultaneously before the shrines were erected, and from the fact that the partition wall was painted at the same time it would follow that this was constructed before the shrines were erected.

Secondly, the sections of the outermost shrine must have been introduced into the sepulchral chamber before the erection of the series of inner shrines.

Thirdly, the larger objects found in the store chamber leading off from the sepulchral chamber must similarly have been introduced before the shrines were erected.

It will, therefore, be necessary to work on exactly the inverse lines to those adopted by the men who erected the shrines 3,270 years ago. Following this plan all the shrines will have to be dismantled before any of their sections can be taken out, and the sections of the innermost shrines will have to be brought out first in order to provide the necessary space for the turning of the larger sections of the outer shrines.

For the dismantling of the outer shrines elaborate scaffolding will have to be erected. This, together with the removal of the partition wall, which must also be executed to facilitate the taking out of the shrine sections, which are now in a far more delicate condition than when they were originally put in, will necessarily delay the work, but it will be carried out as speedily as possible.

LUXOR, Egypt, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—Eleven miniature oars, presumably intended for the use of Tut-ankh-Amen when he came to cross the dark stream beyond which lay the fruitful fields where dwelt the dead, are understood to have been found by Howard Carter while searching this morning inside the outer canopy of the mortuary chapel of the Pharaoh's tomb. Another find reported was a small three-pronged candlestick.

DROP INDICTMENT AGAINST HASTY

Other Georgians, Accused With American League Pitcher of Floggings, Go Free.

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 28.—All indictments against Keller Hasty, pitcher for the Philadelphia Americans, and five others charged with flogging Mrs. Bertha Holcombe, a widow, and S. H. Morton, at Smyrna, were dismissed here late today by Judge Blair, on motion of Solicitor General John S. Wood, after the acquittal of Parks G. Cook on a similar charge.

On instructions from Judge Blair, the jury returned verdicts of not guilty against Keller Hasty, his brothers, Arthur and Frank Hasty, Tom Black and Joe Bramlett, jointly indicted with Cook, but who were not on trial at this time.

The court house rang with applause as the verdicts were announced and Judge Blair ordered the Sheriff to bring those taking part in the demonstration before him. The officers, however, were unable to locate any one because at that moment a general exodus began.

Cook testified that he was at home and retired at 9:30 o'clock on the night of the floggings. He asserted he had never worn a mask and denied that he was a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

Mrs. Holcombe, in her testimony yesterday, identified Cook as a member of the flogging party.

WARNER BECOMES STATE POLICE HEAD

Governor Names Senior Trooper Captain to Succeed Colonel Chandler.

ONE OF FIRST OFFICERS

Governor Also Appoints Colonel E. J. Westcott Adjutant General—Was Assistant Five Years.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 28.—Governor Smith tonight announced the appointment of Captain John A. Warner, commanding the White Plains post of the State troopers, as Superintendent of the State Police to succeed Lieut. Col. George F. Chandler, who has resigned to devote his time to surgical practice at Kingston.

The appointment of Captain Warner, which becomes effective Dec. 1, was not unexpected, for it has been the practice of the State Troopers to promote men in the service rather than to bring in outsiders.

After receiving the resignation of Colonel Chandler, Governor Smith asked him to name his successor, saying he wished the officer best qualified by training, education and ability to fill the position. Captain Warner was Colonel Chandler's choice and he presented Captain Warner's name to the Governor.

In making the announcement the Governor said:

"Captain Warner is the senior officer in command at the present time and was one of the first appointed at the time of the organization of the State constabulary. He was recommended for appointment by the retiring superintendent and in his opinion is fully qualified to keep the State constabulary on a high plane of efficency."

Captain Warner is a graduate of Harvard and a musician of note. He plays the organ. Colonel Chandler is a violinist.

Colonel Chandler was the guest of Governor Smith at dinner on Tuesday night, and the determination to name Captain Warner was reached at that time.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—Colonel Edward J. Westcott of Albany, Assistant Adjutant General of the New York National Guard for more than five years, was appointed Adjutant General by Governor Smith today. He succeeds Charles White Berry of Brooklyn, recently named Major General of the National Guard.

Colonel Westcott is a native of West Carthage, Jefferson County. He has been a member of the National Guard since 1901 and has been connected with the Adjutant General's office since 1900.

PREVENT REVEALING OF KLAN MEMBERSHIP

Supporters Hold Oklahoma Senators to Measure Prohibiting Masks and Disguises.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 28.—Ku Klux Klan sympathizers were victorious today when the upper house of the Legislature passed its committee anti-Klan bill after defeating the last of the proposals with which its sponsors hoped to invest the act with stringent regulatory powers by clauses compelling secret organizations in Oklahoma to make their membership lists available for public inspection.

As the measure now stands, it prohibits the wearing of masks, minor offenses while disguised and the writing of anonymous communications. Supporters of the original bill asserted that while it represented some progress in the attempt to meet the present "emergency" in the State, any statute without power to force a revelation of the membership of secret organizations is wholly inadequate.

In its present form the bill is expected to meet with concerted opposition in the lower house, but since the Senate must pass on any change the House might make before the measure is transmitted for Executive action, proponents of more rigorous legislation see slight hope for their cause in this quarter.

Governor Trapp refused to comment on the Senate action, but those close to him asserted it did not represent the Executive's view of an act sufficient to meet present conditions.

The vote for final passage of the bill was 27 to 11.

Denouncing it as "a Klan measure," not an anti-Klan measure, Senator Harry O. Glasser and other supporters of the original committee bill declared they would initiate a move at once for a law with "teeth" in it.

"The bill is worthless," Senator Glasser declared, "because the secret memberships are not reached by it. They, and not the membership secrets, are the objectionable phases."

Former Governor Walton will plead Monday to six indictments charging him with diversion of State funds and prohibiting an assembly of the State Legislature. His arraignment, scheduled for today, was postponed by District Judge Clark because of the press of other court business. The former Governor is expected to file a motion to quash the indictments. One other indictment, charging him with preventing the convening of a District Court Grand Jury here during martial law, is pending in County Court.

A severance was granted to Dr. A. E. Davenport, State Health Commissioner, who was indicted with Walton on the charge of diversion of funds. W. P. Edwards, who was Walton's official chauffeur, is also to be arraigned Monday.

18 DOCTORS TO LOSE CONNECTICUT RIGHTS

Eclectic Examiners, on Call of State, Direct the Revoking of Their Licenses.

GOVERNOR TAKES STAND

Grand Jury Heard Him Tell of Doctors' "Slush Fund" in Last Legislature.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 28.—Governor Charles A. Templeton testified for several hours today about the legislative activities and alleged "slush fund" of the Connecticut eclectics before the Extraordinary Grand Jury investigating medical frauds and fake diplomas. Just as he emerged from the Grand Jury chamber, the Connecticut Eclectic Examining Board, in special session in an adjoining room in the Court House, ordered revoked eighteen licenses which they had heretofore certified to persons who have been revealed as cash customers of the Missouri school which sold 30,000 bogus medical college diplomas in this country.

The eclectic examiners, who are to be in session at the Court House again next Monday, when the Grand Jury resumes, were ordered to meet by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, who sent in to the board today a letter reading in part as follows:

"Investigation by the Grand Jury convened by the Supreior Court for Hartford County has necessitated the appearance before it of various men licensed to practice medicine after examination by your board. Under instructions of the Court, the foreman of the Grand Jury has reported to me such results of the investigation as the Grand Jury has seen fit to report at this time. The facts disclosed require me to notify you that the licenses of men whose names are appended hereto should be revoked. You are requested, therefore, to take the action necessary to enable the State Department of Health to revoke these licenses.

Governor Curious About Board.

After deliberating all the afternoon, the Examining Board made its report back to the State's Attorney just as Governor Templeton was leaving the building. The Governor looked at the State Examiners curiously and asked the identity of several of them whose names have been published recently. Four members were present. Dr. Frederick R. Ernstrudo of New Haven, nominated yesterday by the Eclectic Society to fill the vacancy caused by the death of a fifth member, Elliott Marsh, did not appear today.

The board's report was in the nature of a letter to the State Health Commissioner, as it has been powerless under the Connecticut law to revoke the quacks' licenses except at the request or the board which examined them. The letter, signed by the President, Dr. Ernest A. Markham of Durham; Dr. Ralph L. White of New Canaan, Dr. John O. Berry of New Haven and Dr. James Edwin Hair of Bridgeport, was as follows:

"Acting upon request received in a letter from the State's Attorney, Hugh M. Alcorn, relative to the investigation by the Grand Jury convened at Hartford of various men licensed to practice medicine upon certificates issued by the Connecticut Electic Medical Board, we, the undersigned members of the Board, hereby request that the State Department revoke the licenses of the men whose names are listed below:

"George M. Sutcliffe, Farmington; Arnold Brein, Waterbury; Nathaniel McCarthy, New Canaan; Ludolf N. Bollmeier, Westport; George D. Noeling, Bridgeport; Lamar K. Tuttle, Stamford; Francis Bolton Ayeman Stamford; Howard M. Wheeler, Bridgeport; Fred H. Works, Stonington; Isadore Yokhelman, Bridgeport; Donald W. Stewart, East Windsor; Aaron Glass, New Haven; James A. Christian, Fairfield; Peter Koenig, New Haven; Frank M. Webb, Bridgeport, Pasquale Romeo, Bridgeport; Modestino Coppola, New Haven, and John R. Brinkley, Stratford."

State Health Commissioner Stanley H. Osborn and Miss M. Langley, assistant to Secretary Charles E. Prior of the Massachusetts State Board of Registration in Medicine, were in conference with the Connecticut examiners for some time, inspecting photographs with a view of identifying some of the Connecticut and Massachusetts "doctors" who have deceived first one State and then the other.

"Slush Fund" Letter in Evidence.

Governor Templeton was smiling when he left the jury room and all he would say was that he was pleased with the way the jury was getting at the bottom of the Connecticut situation.

Today's Grand Jury inquiry into the reported legislative "slush fund" of $37,000 is believed to be based on letters written on the stationery of the Connecticut Eclectic Society and signed by Dr. James A. Christian, deposed secretary of the society. In these letters Dr. Christian asked for contributions of $125 from eclectic doctors for use in connection with legislation proposed at the last General Assembly to "save the license and the reputation" of the doctors.

The correspondence, which is now in the possession of the Grand Jury, was sent out the call on the house of Dr. Robert Adcox, the St. Louis clearing house for the diploma ring, and it was brought to Connecticut by Harry T. Brundige of The St. Louis Star.

One of these letters, addressed to Dr. Von Wrandenstein of Cuero, Texas, is quoted as follows:

"As Secretary of the Connecticut Eclectic Medical Association, I am writing you to ask you to please send in your share of the expenses of the past Legislature.

"One bill was killed and one passed by the House and Senate, but has not yet been signed by the Governor, and I do not think it will be.

"The expense for correspondence, secretary, attorneys, &c., was very large. Your part of the expense is $125. Please send me check or money order for this amount at once, as these bills have to be taken care of.

Many of the "Doctors" Have Fled.

Some of the "doctors" who tonight face the loss of their licenses have been witnesses before the Grand Jury, but others have fled the State, according to subpoena servers. Coppola, who held a St. Louis diploma, has not been seen in Connecticut for several weeks. McCarthy, licensed in 1922 under a St. Louis diploma, is reported to have sailed a week ago for Brazil. Bollmeier, also a St. Louis graduate of 1921, is reported to have gone to Tennessee.

Brein, another St. Louis alumnus cannot be located by process servers at his former office in Waterbury. Noeling, who was Summer substitute in Bridgeport for Secretary James E. Hair, when the latter was at his Vermont stock farm, is reported from Philadelphia to have "gone hunting in Maine."

Tuttle and his wife were located by newspaper men a week ago at their New York City office, 18 East Forty-first Street, but the latest reports to the State's Attorney's office here is that they have sailed for Europe. Wheeler cannot be found at his former office, where he had his St. Louis diploma on exhibition.

Thanksgiving Dinner for Sutcliffe.

Sutcliffe, who is accused of the death of a war veteran, Albert C. Hoody, on May 22, left the court house tonight in the keeping of Constable Harrison Hotchkiss, who took him to his home in Granby for an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner.

Works was Assistant Surgeon at the United States Veterans' Hospital at West Roxbury, Mass., but has just resigned from the Federal service.

Lockelman, when his diploma and license were taken from him by the Grand Jury, declared: "I'll never surrender. I want justice, and if I can't get it here I know where I can get it."

Stewart had a large practice in and around Hartford. Christian was deposed two weeks ago as Secretary of the Connecticut Eclectic Society, which at the same time withdrew its recommendation of him to be the fifth member of its State Examining Board. Koraftis announced that he intended to go back to practice in Chicago, where he once worked in a laundry.

Webb is best known as the writer of the seized letter to the effect that he was "going to get Old Doc Markham off the Connecticut Board because he would not twist the examination papers."

Romeo is the owner of a cheese factory in Bridgeport, with the Columbus Hospital as a sideline. The Legislature last Spring appropriated $10,000 to the Columbus Hospital and now Governor Templeton is trying to withhold the payment, fearing that the State money will be attached in payment of a judgment against the cheese factory for failure to pay a milk bill.

Arrest Connecticut "Chromopath."

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 28.—Dr. Charles A. Gasson, describing himself as a "chromopath," who is under $10,000 bail on charges relating to his practice and who has been missing when wanted on another charge, was found secreted in a cottage at Eastern Point, Groton, today after a squad of State officers had made a search. Gasson was held in an additional $7,000 bail and committed to jail. In a raid at his home $4,000 worth of drugs were seized.

Bellevue Interns Found Qualified.

Health Commissioner Monaghan yesterday requested Dr. George O'Hanlon, General Medical Superintendent of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, to furnish him with a list of internes at the institution. Dr. O'Hanlon said that in addition to complying with the request, he had made an investigation into the qualifications of the internes and was satisfied that none of them was a graduate of the diploma mills revealed in the Connecticut inquiry.

MEDICAL SURVEY HITS 3 MISSOURI SCHOOLS

State Board Reports 'Frightful' Conditions — Revocation of Charters Is Ordered.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 28.—The Missouri State Board of Health, meeting at Hotel Jefferson today, reached a decision, based on a recent survey of medical schools in Missouri, that resulted in the ordering of legal steps to revoke the charters of the three Class C medical schools in Missouri—the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons, the College of the City of University of Physicians and Surgeons and the Kansas City College of Medicine and Surgery.

Members of the board said that the survey, which disclosed "frightful conditions" in these three schools, will be submitted to Attorney General Barrett at once for action and also to the Secretary of State.

The board adopted a motion that a time be fixed for hearing charges or complaints which have been or may be lodged with the board against physicians alleged to be practicing medicine in Missouri without licenses or under fraudulent licenses, or who are alleged to have been guilty of unprofessional or dishonorable conduct. Such charges may be brought before the board at its annual meeting at Jefferson City on Jan. 8.

The survey was made by the board proper, with Dr. P. S. Waite of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, assisting. Dr. Waite was in Missouri three weeks and was accompanied by board members on his inspection of the schools. Dr. Waite said the survey would raise medical standards in this State.

The survey report states the records in the three Class C colleges are so incomplete and carelessly kept that no graduate could be able in future to ascertain what his standing had been in the event his professional activities demanded such information.

The board cited an instance based on records of the Kansas City College of Physicians and Surgeons where a student who had failed in nearly all of his studies for two years in a New York institution was admitted to a senior class in the St. Louis school.

The other three medical schools in Missouri were pronounced reputable and "as being conducted efficiently and strictly in accordance with all law." They are the Medical Departments of St. Louis, Washington and Missouri State Universities.

BALTIMORE MEDICAL PLOT.

Grand Jury Names Two Doctors in Alleged Ring Duping Patients.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 28.—Following presentment by the Grand Jury today of two physicians on charges of conspiracy to cheat and defraud their patients, it developed that detectives are gathering evidence against an alleged ring of physicians who are said to be using illegal methods to build up large practices in Baltimore and other cities.

The physicians presented today are Dr. Isaac Weinstein and Dr. Edward O. Schaman. The investigation, it is indicated, had shown that their operations extended to three other large cities of the Atlantic seaboard. They have had a local branch for nearly a year.

By means of an advertising campaign and the distribution of hand bills and booklets, offering free service, it is charged, the physicians managed to reach a large number of prospective patients. Some of these were ushered into an office fitted with the latest electrical therapeutic devices and other medical equipment.

After a free diagnosis, it is alleged that the physicians warned the patient that he was suffering from some disease that required special attention and asked him to call again when a specialist was in the city. In the meantime, it is alleged the physicians investigated the financial status of their patient and charged him a fee accordingly.

NEW CLOTH MILL FOR FORD.

Will Make "Backing" for Artificial Leather Used in Cars.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 28.—A large mill is to be erected here for the manufacture of cloth to be used as a "backing" for the artificial leather used on Ford automobiles. The mill will represent an expansion of that department, officials of the Ford Motor Company say.

No details of the proposed new addition were made public.

Denounce Hunting Small Game By Glare of Auto Headlights

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Nov. 28.—Sportsmen in lower Cape May County are up in arms because several local hunters have been shooting rabbits and quail on the outskirts of this city at night by the glare of automobile headlights. This procedure is denounced as unsportsmanlike.

It is reported here that during the past few nights twenty-five rabbits and several covers of quail were killed. Hunters have appealed to Game Warden William Steel of Cape May Court House, but he points out that there is a city ordinance prohibiting running inside the city limits either in daylight or at night.

Mr. Steel says it is up to the officials to stop illegal slaughter of game at night.

NAVY DISCUSSION REVIVED

Several Leaders Urge Framing a New One for Defense of Holland and Her Colonies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 28.—The Dutch Government crisis caused by the rejection of the Navy bill more than a month ago is still acute, and the expedient of an extra-Parliamentary Cabinet has been resorted to. The Roman Catholic leader, Jonkheer Kooien, who was first charged by the Queen with forming a Cabinet, informed her Majesty after several days' efforts that he was unable to accept the mandate. Jonkheer Beelaerts van Blokland, Minister Plenipotentiary and Chief of the Diplomatic Section of the Foreign Office, has now been called upon, and is still busy with his task.

He has had a brilliant diplomatic and parliamentary career, and was one of the Dutch delegates at the Washington conference. The Queen's choice of him is welcomed on practically all sides, even by the members of the Left.

Certain of the Ministries will probably be combined under one head; for instance, the War Office and the Ministry of Marine.

There are indications that the episode of the ex-Crown Prince's departure has aggravated the governmental crisis, making the formation of a Cabinet still more difficult. Before this event, which, as it is now realized, was handled somewhat tactlessly, it was hoped that two or three of the former Ministers would retain office in the new Cabinet. This now seems very unlikely.

Although most of the Dutch press has abstained from criticism of the Government's action, it is now fairly well recognized by those acquainted with the facts that the Foreign Minister made a grave mistake, especially in his treatment of the allied representatives when they presented their note of protest.

The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant hints at these facts by saying:

"The events which have awakened such talk, affected our international relations and occasioned much critical discussion are such as to make it desirable to abide by the resignations caused by the rejection of the fleet bill."

The prevailing opinion in Parliamentary circles is that if Beelaerts succeeds in forming a Cabinet it will remain in office until the next election, eighteen months hence. The Social Democrats maintain that the fact that Kooien was unable to form a Cabinet proves that the break caused in the Right coalition by the navy bill has not yet been patched up, and that though the Right parties have a three-fifths majority in the First and Second Chambers, they appear unable to govern.

Meantime the question of a new navy bill is again looming on the horizon. Several prominent Parliamentary leaders, including those who opposed the bill in its recent form, have come out openly with an urgent appeal for a new bill, imperatively emphasizing the necessity of the defense of Holland and her rich colonies.

EAST SIDE GANGSTER SHOT DOWN IN CROWD

Teich Dies From Three Bullet Wounds Soon After Reaching Hospital.

Jacob Teich, once a member of the "Kid Dropper" gang, was shot down last night by an unknown assailant at Delancey and Norfolk Streets, only two blocks from the Clinton Street Police Station.

Teich was in the crowd on the east side thoroughfare when three shots were fired. The pedestrians fled in all directions, and when Patrolman Kenavy reached Norfolk Street Teich was alone, lying on the sidewalk, still trying to get at his pistol despite three fatal wounds. Kenavy said he caught sight of a man he took for the assailant just as he disappeared in the crowd near Rivington Street.

The first two shots had caught Teich in the back, one passing through a kidney. As he whirled to face his enemy a third bullet hit him in the mouth and he fell. He was grasping the butt of a pistol he had partly torn from an inside pocket as he dropped.

An ambulance rushed him to Gouverneur Hospital, where he recovered consciousness, but refused information. He died on the operating table a short time later. The police established his identity through fingerprints. They said he had served two terms in Sing Sing for robbery, that he had been arrested and sent to the workhouse on a drug charge a year ago and that he had been arrested for assault last April.

ONE STOKES CASE GOES ON.

Mrs. Stokes Says She Will Testify in Chicago Prosecution.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes stopped in Chicago today on her journey to her Denver home. She declared she would press the prosecution of the indictment against her husband in Chicago and that the $800,000 trust fund granted her and her two children in the terms of her settlement would not prevent her testifying against Stokes and the others who are charged with conspiring to blacken her name.

It was decided, however, in a conference with her attorney, Charles E. Erbstein, that Mrs. Stokes's $1,000,000 suit against "Weddy" Stokes Jr. would be withdrawn.

ARNOLD ROTHSTEIN TAKES BACK THREAT

Said He Was Through With Fuller Case, but Agrees to Appear Again Dec. 7.

FAILS TO BRING PAPERS

Charges That an Enemy Furnishes Creditors' Attorney With Questions.

Arnold Rothstein, who has figured prominently in the investigation of the E. M. Fuller & Co. bucketshop failure, appeared again before Referee Harold P. Coffin yesterday.

When the hearing, which had been called specially to examine Rothstein, opened, William M. Chadbourne, attorney for the Fuller creditors, asked for an adjournment of a few days because of developments in other phases of the case. Rothstein immediately protested.

"This is the last time I'm coming down here," he cried. "I'm ready to answer any relevant questions you ask me and I insist that the matter be finished today. I'm sick and tired of having you bring me down here again and again and again in order to get your name in the papers. If you want to get your name in the papers, why don't you go to an advertising agency and pay for it?"

Referee Coffin directed that these remarks be stricken from the record. He then asked Rothstein if he had brought with him the checks covering $173,858, which he had paid to the Fuller concern and which he had previously produced.

"Of course, I haven't brought them," said Rothstein. "I didn't know they were wanted. If you had wanted them, you should have told me and then I would have brought them."

"Have you any other papers called for in the subpoena issued several months ago and which you have, as yet, failed to produce?" questioned the referee.

"No, I have not," said Rothstein. "I'm acting in good faith and I'm ready to answer any question. This is positively ruining my business. I want to get through with it. I'm acting in good faith, but Chadbourne isn't."

"You think you can get away with something in this court as in other places," retorted Chadbourne.

"You've been getting away with more than I have all my life," said Rothstein.

Rothstein charged that Mr. Chadbourne was acting on the orders of a personal enemy of his and all the questions he asked were written out for him beforehand on a piece of paper which he brought into Referee Coffin's office.

When Mr. Coffin had cautioned Rothstein against contempt of court, Rothstein calmed down and agreed to bring all the information he could on Dec. 7 with the understanding his examination will then be concluded.

WIDOW IS FOUND DEAD AFTER STREET ATTACK

Indianapolis Woman Is Carried Off Screaming in Auto—Body Is Thrown on the Railroad.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 28.—Police tonight were working on the theory that Mrs. Helen Hagen Whelchel, a young widow, whose body was found today beneath an overhead bridge over the Big Four railroad tracks about six miles west of here, had been kidnapped, attacked, wounded and the body thrown over the bridge railing to the tracks in the hope it would be struck by a train and evidence of the crime obliterated.

Dr. Paul F. Robinson, County Coroner, who made a post-mortem examination, said he was unable to determine whether the woman was dead before being thrown off the bridge. Death, the post mortem showed, was due to a fractured skull. The coroner said his inquest into Mrs. Whelchel's death probably would be started Friday night.

Mrs. Whelchel left her home on the south side of the city, where she lived and kept house for her father, Frank Hager, without naming her destination. The father told the police he went to bed at his usual time and had supposed the daughter was in her room until aroused after midnight by officers who asked him to identify a woman's hat which had been found in a near-by street after an automobile bearing a woman screaming for help had speeded away.

The woman's screams had been heard by Frank Oberting. He said he recognized the voice as that of Mrs. Whelchel, with whom he was acquainted. He notified the police, who immediately started an investigation, finding the woman's hat, which later was identified by Hager as belonging to his daughter.

No clue to the speeding automobile was found and it was not until several hours later that the body was found. On a by-road near the bridge was found the girl's bloodstained pearl necklace. A large diamond ring, which her friends said she always wore, however, had not been found tonight and for that reason police have not entirely discarded the theory of robbery.

Organizing Nebraska for Coolidge.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 28.—Announcement that local Coolidge-for-President clubs are being organized throughout Nebraska to affiliate later with the Coolidge League of Nebraska was made here today by Ross L. Shotwell of Omaha, an attorney and organizer for the clubs. He said a State-wide meeting of the league scheduled for Dec. 5 had been postponed, pending delivery of the Coolidge message to Congress.

Kammerer Lecture Is Canceled.

Dr. Paul Kammerer of the University of Vienna was still confined to his room in the Hotel Alamac, Broadway and Seventy-first Street, yesterday and his condition was such that his first lecture in the United States, which was to have been delivered tomorrow night before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, was canceled.

OIL MEN FIGHT BILL TO STOP POLLUTION

Break Up Meeting by Refusing Consent to Include Shore Plants in Measure.

TO PUT IT UP TO CONGRESS

Frelinghuysen Says Proposed Law, Beaten Last Year, Will Be Presented in the Same Form.

Members of the Anti-Pollution League and representatives of the Army, Navy and oil companies met yesterday in the office of ex-Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 111 William Street, and discussed the anti-pollution bill that Mr. Frelinghuysen introduced at the last session of Congress. The bill passed the Senate, but was defeated in the House.

An attempt was made by the representatives of the Anti-Pollution League and Senator Frelinghuysen to obtain the assent of the oil companies' representatives to the re-introduction of the proposed measure. Several compromises were written, but the conference became deadlocked and broke up when the oil men refused to consent to the inclusion of shore plants in the measure.

The bill would forbid the discharge of oil into coastal navigable waters from vessels or industrial plants. The oil men asked that plants on the shores be excluded from the workings of the bill and also insisted that these plants were not dumping oil into coastal waters.

After the meeting Mr. Frelinghuysen announced that the measure as originally planned would be offered as a bill by Senator Wadsworth and in the House by Representative Dempsey. The bill provides for a fine of not less than $500 and not more than $2,500 and one year's imprisonment for any one violating the measure.

Mr. Frelinghuysen said the bill was designed primarily to protect the beaches in the vicinity of New York, which, he declared, were polluted by oil and tar, making bathing impossible at times and ruining valuable oyster beds.

"Two great fires have occurred, one at Baltimore and another at New Orleans, as a result of the burning of oil on the waters," he added. "The same danger from fire exists in New York harbor, and for this reason the National Board of Fire Underwriters is lined upwith the Anti-Pollution League in approving this bill.

"The Army and Navy Departments also favor it. The bill would permit the Secretary of War to make all proper regulations. The bill is opposed by the same selfish oil companies that defeated it at the last minute when it was introduced by me last year, and they will not doubt make efforts to defeat it again."

SAYS MISSING WOMAN LIES DRUGGED IN HOUSE

Mysterious Message Is Sent to Seattle Detective Agency Concerning Teacher.

SEATTLE, Nov. 28.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance Sunday night of Miss Nell Austin, aged 23, a school teacher, was deepened tonight by a telephone message to a detective agency from an unidentified woman who said the missing woman was alive but "under the influence of narcotics in a house in the university district."

Miss Austin vanished while on her way to sing in the choir of the University Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seattle Board of Education, the University Church and Masonic lodges have joined in the search for her. The teachers, principals and executive staffs of the city schools today offered a reward of $500 for her return, dead or alive, and an additional $500 reward was offered for the arrest and conviction of any one responsible for her disappearance.

Employes of a garage told the police that a large automobile, in which were two men and a girl, stopped at the garage Sunday night, one of the men got out and said:

"I've got a girl in the car we picked up near the University Bridge. She said she was a teacher and something about a church. She appeared to be dazed. We want to find out where to take her."

He was told to go to the Police Department, and drove away after using a telephone.

The woman's message received tonight said the house where Miss Austin was held was three blocks from where her car was found and hour after her disappearance. This spot was three blocks from the church.

HELD IN REALTY PROJECT.

District Attorney's Office Accuses Man of Selling Mortgaged Lots.

Nathan Camner, 33 years old, who said he was a salesman and lived at 1,948 East Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, was held in $2,500 bail for examination on Dec. 10 when arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Henry R. Goodman in the Tombs Court in connection with the investigation of a real estate project.

Assistant District Attorney Purcell told the Court that Camner had been employed by a firm which had interested many negroes in the sale of lots near Paterson, N. J. He alleged that the firm, representing to prospects that they had been awarded lots through a drawing of numbers which had been left at their homes, induced the "lucky ones" to purchase adjacent lots on the instalment plan.

In every instance where such purchases had been made, Mr. Purcell further alleged, the buyer, on the completion of payments, learned that the whole development was covered by a blanket mortgage, which prevented the firm from giving deeds to the lots.

DRY AGENTS HELD AFTER PISTOL FIGHT

Accused of Firing Ten Shots in Row With Chauffeurs Over an Auto Collision.

CHIEF MINIMIZES TROUBLE

Says Both Have Good Records—Passers-By Put to Flight in Uptown Encounter.

Prohibition Agents Robert Owens of 3,603 Seventh Avenue and Samuel Kupferman of 153 East 113th Street were held in $100 bail each on charges of assault and violating the Sullivan law yesterday by Magistrate Jesse Silberman in the West Side Court. They will have a hearing on Dec. 5.

The agents were accused of firing ten shots in a fight with several taxicab chauffeurs at West Seventy-seventh Street and Broadway. The fight, according to the police, started after a closed car belonging to Owens in which the two prohibition agents were riding, was in collision with a taxicab driven by Dennis Healy, 159 East Ninety-third Street.

Assistant Divisional Prohibition Chief William J. Brennan last night said that Owens and Kupferman had a good record in the prohibition department. An inquiry by the prohibition authorities was basis for the claim that only one shot was fired by Owens and that he fired his revolver to attract the police when he and his companion were overwhelmed by numbers.

The two prohibition agents were arrested on the complaint of Healy. Chauffeurs and passersby were put to flight and the entire neighborhood was aroused by the shots fired in the battle.

Patrolmen Masterson and Armstrong of the West Sixty-eighth Street station, who were attracted by the gunfire, arrested the two prohibition agents.

When the two prohibition agents were taken to the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station it is alleged that Owens threatened Lieutenant Hammill, Sergeant Duffy and others.

At prohibition headquarters it was said an investigation would be made of the charges against Owens and Kupferman.

REFUSES CHURCH RITES TO HUNGER STRIKER

Bishop Cohalan of Cork Denies Christian Burial for the Body of Dennis Barry.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Bishop Cohalan of Cork has refused to allow the religious exercises which constitute Christian burial for the body of Commandant Dennis Barry, who died from the effects of a hunger strike at Newbridge and whose body reached Cork last evening, says a Press Association dispatch from Cork today. Explaining the reasons for his refusal in a letter to The Cork Examiner, the message states, Bishop Cohalan says he regrets very much being obliged to take the course he did, but declares that if it were his own brother who took the course Commandant Barry took he would deal with the case in the same way.

"Republicanism in Ireland," the message quotes the Bishop as adding, "has for the last twelve months been a wicked and insidious attack on the Church and the souls of the faithful committer to the Church's care. By Church law any one who deliberately takes his own life is deprived of Christian burial. I shall interpret the law of the Church and refuse Christian burial. I feel bound to do it."

SOVIET SEES PLOT CENTRING AT PARIS

Charges a Group at Kiev With Supplying Military Information to Poland.

ALLEGED LEADERS SEIZED

Numerous Other Arrests Reported at Moscow—Men Who Took Part in Civil War Being Shot.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Nov. 28.—The Soviet Government announces the discovery of a new counter-revolutionary conspiracy at Kiev, which it says has been organized under the leadership of Tchaikovsky, former head of the White Archangel Government, and Kartasheff, Professor of Theology. The organization acts under directions from Paris and in cooperation with the social revolutionaries and Menshevists, and its object is the supplying of military secrets, chiefly to Poland, for which it receives liberal payment from abroad.

This story has been invented by the State Political Department in order to excuse arrests, those who know Tchaikovsky and Kartasheff say. The two men are said to hold conflicting political views, and the idea of their working together is scouted, as is also talk of their co-operating with social revolutionaries and Menshevists or of their carrying on an espionage organization from Paris for Poland.

According to the announcement, the whole of the organization in the Kiev centre of action has been arrested.

It is reported here numerous arrests have been made in Moscow of workmen and intelligentsia, including one Communist member of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, who are accused of inciting measures against the Soviet Government. Similar reports come from Petrograd and other towns.

The Soviet press continues almost daily to report the shooting of men who took part in Kolchak's, Denikin's and Wrangel's campaigns, though such persons are supposed to have been amnestied. Newspapers today announce the shooting of the jurist Vladimir Pompekoff for serving with Kolchak in 1918.

POLICE SEIZE HIS $1 AUTO.

They Say It Was Stolen and Hold Driver and Another Boy.

The recovery of a stolen automobile, which, according to the police, had been sold for a dollar, led to the arrest last night of Nicholas Jacobi, 18 years old, of 457 West Forty-ninth Street, charged at the West Sixty-eighth Street Station with grand larceny. Early Monday morning Julius Colletti, 18 years old, of 3,605 Olinville Road, the Bronx, was arrested on a charge of receiving stolen property.

The complainant is Sahag Avedestan, cigar manufacturer, of 2,150 Sixty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, who told the police that his automobile was stolen Sunday while parked near the Century Theatre. A general alarm was sent out. At 2 o'clock Monday morning Detective Nyland of the Webster Avenue Station recognised a car being driven through the Bronx as the one described as missing. Colletti, who was driving, said that he had bought the car for a dollar. He was arrested and, when questioned, gave information which led to the arrest of Jacobi.

RECAPTURED CONVICT TELLS OF LONG FLIGHT

Edwards in Honolulu Says Gang Lived in Philadelphia Hotel After Paying Guards $30,000.

Special to The New York Times.

HONOLULU, Nov. 28.—Convicts who escaped from the Eastern Penitentiary July 14 returned to Philadelphia ten days later and lived luxuriously in a Broad Street hotel three blocks from the City Hall, according to Lewis Edwards, leader of the desperadoes, who detailed in dramatic manner today the route taken by the fugitives after the break, which he declared was only effected after $30,000 had been handed over to prison guards. Edwards was arrested here Monday.

"Ten days after our escape," said Edwards, "'Eggie' Gillen, James Brown and I were back in Philly."

Gillen died in New York from wounds received in a pistol duel with a companion Oct. 29 and James Brown was recaptured two days before in a Brooklyn rooming house.

"I registered at a hotel on Broad Street only three blocks from City Hall and we lived soft and nobody ever gave us a second look," Edwards continued. "Finally my pal, George Brown, and I decided to go back to Baltimore, and down there we bought a car for $100. We drove to Cumberland, Md., in the car and sold it for $25. Then we grabbed a train for Cincinnati on the Baltimore & Ohio.

"We had a few close shaves along the route, and when we got to Cincinnati we decided that it was a bit too warm for us there, so we lit out for Chicago. From there we jumped to Detroit, where we had a good time. Canada looked pretty good, so we slipped over the border.

"Then we started West and landed in Vancouver. That town didn't look so good, so we hit it back into the States. We went first to Seattle and then to Los Angeles. Here Brownie and I split up and you'll never learn from me where he went.

"They were raising such a hullabaloo for us all over the country that I decided that I would take a chance on the Orient.

"I figured on getting to Honolulu, and after staying there a while I could get a Governor's passport that wouldn't call for any picture."

Edwards declared that the prison guards knew the escape had been planned and accepted $30,000 to wink at it.

"There were a hundred guards about when we made the break," Edwards said. "Most of them were looking, too. Did they shoot at us? You bet they didn't. They had plenty of reasons for letting us alone."

BROWNING IN OWN DEFENSE.

Testifies at Trial for Killing His Brother-in-Law.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 28.—John Browning Jr., who, with Marriner Browning, his cousin, is on trial for the slaying of Benjamin F. Ballentyne, his brother-in-law, took the stand in his own defense today. He had told only of his previous relations with his sister's husband when court adjourned for the day.

Browning declared that until just before the shooting his relations with Ballentyne had been cordial, but then Ballentyne became abusive. Browning said he and his cousin, who admitted firing the fatal shot, had always been closely affiliated. Marriner and Mrs. Ballentyne, he said, were like brother and sister.

Joseph E. Olson, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Ballentyne, testified today that he had heard Ballentyne abusing his wife.

FIND MYSTERY BOY IN THE STAPLER SUIT

"Little Billy" Is Produced at Hearing for Custody of 7-Year-Old Girl.

CASE GOES OVER A WEEK

Lawyers Prepared to Combat Mother's Plea, but Counsel Gets a Postponement.

When the habeas corpus proceedings brought by Mrs. Gertrude Haupert Stapler to get the custody of her seven-year-old daughter, Helen, now in the possession of the child's grandmother, Mrs. Helen Stapler, was resumed before Supreme Court Justice Mullan yesterday the mysterious "Little Billy" was produced by the elder Mrs. Stapler's attorneys, Compton & Delaney.

At previous hearings testimony had been offered in behalf of the grandmother that a child, Charles William Brill, had been born in January, 1922, and that the birth certificate for the boy stated that his parents were Claude William Brill and Gertrude Haupert Stapler. For this reason Compton & Delaney contended that the mother of little Helen Stapler was not a fit person to have the custody of the child.

Mrs. Gertrude Haupert Stapler denied that she was the mother of the boy referred to in the testimony as "Little Billy," and said that she cared for the boy for a time for a compensation of $25 a week, and that she got the boy from Mrs. Janet Lawrence, a show girl.

Child Brought to Court.

A woman describing herself as Janet Lawrence, took the witness stand before Justice Mullan early in the proceedings and corroborated Mrs. Stapler's testimony, but later recanted and declared that she knew nothing about the boy. She said she and Mrs. Stapler had been neighbors in a Bronx apartment house, and that she had told the story out of sympathy for Mrs. Stapler. The witness, who later admitted that her name is Mrs. Edward H. Groll, apologized to Justice Mullan for her testimony.

When the last hearing ended last Wednesday, it was stated that efforts to find the boy Billy, had been unavailing, and questions were put to Mrs. Groll by Jacob H. Gilbert, counsel for the younger Mrs. Stapler, in an effort to prove that her untruthful testimony had been given for some other purpose that out of friendship for Mrs. Stapler.

"Little Billy," alleged to be the son of Mrs. Stapler and Claude William Brill, a milk wagon driver, also known as Symons, was brought to court yesterday by Mrs. Amanda Pasco of 456 East 150th Street, who conducts a boarding home for children under 12 years. Mrs. Pasco had been traced to her New York home from a town in Pennsylvania, where she had spent the Summer with the boy, by detectives acting for Compton & Delaney, and the boy was found with her in the East 150th Street house.

Case Goes Over a Week.

No testimony was taken, however, because Attorney Gilbert sent word that he was engaged in the Federal court, but Mrs. Pasco talked with reporters and told how she got "Little Billy." She said that a woman giving her name as Mrs. Gertrude Brill came to her in the early part of 1922 and asked about boarding a baby with her. Mrs. Pasco said that the woman returned last January with the baby and a man who said he was C. W. Brill. They said they were the parents of the child, Mrs. Pasco stated. They paid the baby's board until July, and called to see him regularly, but they have not called on Mrs. Pasco or sent her any money since, she said.

Mrs. Pasco said that a woman giving her name as Mrs. Brill telephoned to her that morning and asked her if she would be at home all day. The woman changed her story of the child's parentage, said Mrs. Pasco, and stated that the mother of the boy was dead.

Mrs. Groll was in court with her husband, ready to testify if called upon, but the case was adjourned to next Wednesday.

RULING IN TAXICAB SUIT.

Injunction Against Checker Co. Asked by Yellow Cab Co. Is Denied.

Supreme Court Justice Cohalan, who heard the injunction suit of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company against the Checker Cab Manufacturing Company to restrain the latter from operating cabs in the streets of New York bearing the checker design, denied the application yesterday and gave judgment to the Checker Company on its counter-claim for an injunction.

The question before the Court related to the prior use of the checker design. The Checker company asserted that it was operating taxis bearing the design prior to November, 1922, when the Yellow Cab Company put out cabs with a similar design. In his decision Justice Cohalan said:

"I find that the plaintiff is in no way entitled to the injunctive relief, and its complaint is dismissed as against all the defendants. On the other hand, I find that the defendant has sustained its counter-claim, has shown priority of use in this State, and unfair competition on the part of the plaintiff, and is entitled to the relief sought. As the other defendants were operating companies, according to the reasoning herein, they are not entitled to the injunction.

"After the case had been closed, but before briefs had been submitted and argument had, a situation was presented to the Court calling for an investigation committing three witnesses for perjury, confessed by them in open court, and two other witnesses for what seemed to this Court to be bribery or subornation of perjury. Aside from the testimony given by these witnesses I have reached the conclusion set forth herein."

A statement by the directors of the Checker Cab Company later said that pursuant to the decision proceedings will be brought to remove all but Checker cabs of its own manufacture from the streets of New York. It also was said that the Yellow Cab Company will be asked to pay damages for infringement of the design.

YEAR IN JAIL FOR AUTOIST.

Said to Have Been Driving on Wrong Side of Road When Car Killed Girl.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 28.—John Nicholson of Yonkers, found guilty by a jury of second degree manslaughter, was sentenced to one year in Westchester Penitentiary by County Judge William F. Bleakley today.

He was charged with being the driver of an automobile that killed Elvira Jones, 12, on Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, on April 2 last, while she was alighting from a trolley car.

It was alleged that he was operating his automobile on the wrong side of the road in a negligent manner, and that he had been drinking.

Judge Bleakley, in passing sentence, said: "You know the rules of the road, and your car was not under control. The girl did not expect to see you on the left-hand and wrong side of the trolley car."

Ends His Life With Bullet.

The sound of a revolver shot in her bathroom led Mrs. Mary Hyams at 576 West 183d Street yesterday afternoon to secure aid in forcing the locked door. On the floor she found the dead body of her cousin, Sidney W. Strass, 42 years old, a bullet wound through the right temple and the weapon beside him. Police reported he had committed suicide. Mrs. Hyams said that Strass, an optician, had been unable to find employment.

PRESIDENT ENDORSES GOLDEN RULE DINNER

He and Cabinet Are Expected to Eat Near East Orphans' Fare Sunday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The Coolidge official family has endorsed the Golden Rule dinner of the Near East Relief, whereby that organization will help to raise money to feed 50,000 children. It is assumed that the President and the Cabinet members will eat "beans, grits and stew" next Sunday.

"It is not easy to conceive a type of observance more calculated to direct widespread attention to the practical philanthropic work for which there is nowadays so much need," wrote C. Bascom Slemp, Secretary to the President.

"It is greatly to be hoped that the first observance this year may be the beginning of a movement leading to world-wide co-operation for the furtherance of those great movements of charity which do so much to bring understanding into the world."

"I trust your plan will be successful," said Secretary Hughes.

Mr. Hoover wrote:

"I am in sympathy with the proposal and will endeavor to arrange for suitable observance in my household. What a tremendous amount of relief we could give to suffering peoples if our people, even once a week, would cut down one meal to the standard of what other people must live on seven days a week, and contribute this amount saved to those who need it so much! The good that would flow from such an action would be not alone the aid thus given, but the bond of sympathy built up through imposing a little sacrifice upon ourselves."

Secretary Denby wrote:

"I sent you my check to this fund and am pleased to endorse the movement."

Attorney General Daugherty said:

"I shall be very glad to co-operate in any way that I can personally and exert any influence I may have upon others in aid of this movement. It is a fine idea."

Secretary Mellon promised to observe the day according to arrangements and to contribute the difference in cost between the orphanage meal and his usual Sunday dinner for the purchase of food for the orphans of the Near East.

Keeping the Old Faith

From People and Politics, By Solomon Bulkley Griffin
For nearly fifty years a member of the staff of The Springfield Republican:

Happily, The New York Times steadily kept the old faith in the desire of a great section of the American people for sensible, unsensational and honest service. That The Times has achieved large success along high lines offers healthful suggestion to all newspapers. Other important papers belong to that sensible and self-respecting school wherein values are weighed.

Foremost Exponent of Journalism

From the Springfield (Mass.) Union

The New York Times unquestionably stands today as the foremost exponent of wholesome, intelligent and enterprising journalism. Its steady growth and the esteem in which it is so universally held should be an object lesson to those newspapers that seem to believe the American people are thirsting for sensationalism and have precious little inclination toward the kind of journalism that maintains a fair sense of proportion.

Most Distinctive Journalistic Work

James Melvin Lee, Director of the Department of Journalism, New York University, in "History of American Journalism":

In reporting the World War The New York Times earned an enviable place. It pursued a fearless, aggressive and constructive campaign from the very beginning of hostilities. It exhibited the greatest ingenuity in securing official documents. Opinions, interviews, speeches of European statesmen, which were of vital import to the news of the day, found their way into The Times without delay, and without color or fabrication. It maintained an exceptionally able corps of authorities and correspondents at the front to supplement the service of The Associated Press. The New York Times, in many ways, did the most distinctive journalistic work of the war.

PENN AND CORNELL READY FOR BATTLE

Rival Elevens to Meet Today at Franklin Field in Thirtieth Contest.

DOBIE STILL PESSIMISTIC

Says Team Has Only "Fair Chance" —Coach Young Shifts Line-Up —80,000 to See Game.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—Gil Dobie's great Cornell machine and Penn crippled but determined to fight to the bitter end, tear up the turf of Franklin Field tomorrow afternoon in their thirtieth annual game.

More than 80,000 persons hold tickets to the Stadium. That's the complete seating capacity, and were it possible to accommodate more the crowd would probably mount to 75,000 or 80,000. Never has there been such a demand for tickets in the history of football at the university.

Scalpers, ticket agencies and stray hawkers have been asking as high as $15 and $20 a pair for the pasteboards during the last few days.

Cornell is a 4 and 5 to 1 favorite in what little betting has been done.

"Gloomy Gil" Dobie, a trifle less pessimistic than usual, arrived here today with his team and after looking over the playing field in the morning, spent the rest of the day at the Green Hills Farm in Overbrook.

Dobie did not permit his players to don their football togs. They loafed around their rooms in the afternoon and listened to a talk by the coach at 4 o'clock.

"The outlook is only fair," said the lean Scot, who has not lost a game at Cornell since Thanksgiving Day three years ago, when John W. Heisman's Penn team came through with a 28 to 0 victory. Penn has a fighting team and we are supposed to be wonderful, but what will happen to-morrow I can't tell. True, we beat Colgate 34 to 7 and also surprised Dartmouth by piling up a big score, but it seems that our boys just got going on these days and actually found themselves."

Players in Shape.

Asked if all his players were in good physical condition, Dobie merely nodded his head, and then, after hesitating a second or two, said: "Oh, yes, they're ready and right on edge."

Cornell's noted backfield, consisting of Captain George Pfann at quarterback, Patterson and Ramsey, halfbacks, and Cassidy, fullback, is tearing at the leash, awaiting the word to go. Pfann, mentioned everywhere for All-American honors, is no stranger on Franklin Field, last year, when Penn watched the great Ithaca star operate. Dobie changed his offensive against Dartmouth, using the ball. The Marion (Ohio) boy was a big factor in the 9-to-0 victory a year ago.

Penn is in much poorer physical condition than Cornell. Frank Graf, the big left tackle, and Al Yaworsky, veteran guard, who were counted upon for today's wind-up game, cannot play. Graf sprained his shoulder in Monday's final game, and can scarcely raise his left arm. Graf's place will be filled by Hank Dewhirst, the big New England lad, while Bill Coleman, a newcomer from Elmira, N. Y., is to start in Yaworsky's guard position.

Dorn to Return.

In the backfield Penn will have Johnny Dorn at quarterback for the first time since the Pitt game. He underwent an operation for an infected leg and missed the Lafayette and Penn State contests, both of which resulted in defeats. "Lightning" Wittmer and "Slippery" Thomas have been selected for the halfback posts, but both have been slowed up through recent injuries. Wittmer twisted his ankle last week and Thomas's leg is crunched.

Captain Carl Diemer's fullback position will be taken by Ras McGraw, the Buffalo boy. Hamer may get in for a while. This is his last game on Franklin Field and he is fit physically.

Penn remained at the Seaview Country Club at Absecon today, and went through a light drill in the afternoon. The team will return to the training house at noon tomorrow in time for luncheon.

BROWN TO PLAY LEHIGH.

Bears Will Attempt to Win Fourth Straight Game Today.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 28.—Brown is thoroughly primed for the final contest of the season with Lehigh here tomorrow morning. The Bears will present their strongest front to the visitors and expect to score their fourth straight victory in the series between the two universities.

Coach Robinson will use the same team that he sent against Harvard, except that John Talbot may open in place of Chet Schmuhl at left end. Shifts will be on the other flank, with Captain Spellman and Roman, tackles; McDermott and Garrett, guards; Eckstein, center; Eisenberg, quarter; Swaney and Dunn, halves; Reed or Tohlman, fullback. Brown's regulars, Spellman, Barrett, Schmuhl, Eisenberg, Swaney and Reynolds, will play their last game tomorrow. Reynolds, who is understudy to Spellman, was slightly hurt in the game with New Hampshire State last Saturday, but may be able to get in for a brief period against Lehigh. Spellman and Barrett are the real veterans of the eleven, each having played four years. Eisenberg, Schmuhl and Swaney have also done fine service and Brown supporters will not soon forget them.

W. VA. ELEVEN IS FAVORITE.

Mountaineers With Unbeaten Record, Expected to Defeat W. and J.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 28.—Thousands of fans are already here to attend tomorrow's football game between Washington and Jefferson and West Virginia. The Mountaineers, undefeated, untied, unscored on, are favorites. West Virginia players arrived early tonight at Mont Chateau, that Pennsylvania resort in the mountains outside the city. Eddie De Company, trainer, was in charge of a short hike this afternoon. It was the last workout the team was permitted to take. Washington and Jefferson players are to make the trip here in automobiles and are expected to arrive about noon.

Penn Has Lost Three Games, While Cornell Is Undefeated

If Cornell defeats Pennsylvania in their annual game in Philadelphia today the Ithacans will have completed their season with eight victories in as many games. The Penn eleven has won five of its eight games played thus far. Cornell has beaten St. Bonaventure, Susquehanna, Williams, Colgate, Dartmouth, Columbia and Johns Hopkins. Penn has beaten Franklin and Marshall, Swarthmore, Columbia, Centre and Pittsburgh and has lost to Maryland, Lafayette and Penn State.

The records of the two teams for the season follow:

MANY BIG GAMES ON TODAY'S CARD

Penn-Cornell and Columbia-Dartmouth Clashes Head Football Offering.

Although the present football season reached its climax last Saturday, there are still a number of important contests to be played, and most of these will be staged this afternoon. Outstanding among today's games are the annual battle between Pennsylvania and Cornell at Franklin Field and the contest between Dartmouth and Columbia at the Polo Grounds. From present indications a capacity crowd will turn out for the game in Philadelphia, and a big attendance is also expected for the struggle at the Polo Grounds.

A victory in the game at Philadelphia will mean much to either team. It would give Cornell a record for the season of eight victories in as many games and would thus put the Ithacans in a position to dispute Yale's claim to the Eastern championship. A victory for Penn would restore much of the Quakers' prestige lost through defeats at the hands of Maryland, Lafayette and Penn State. If Penn is beaten it will have a record of five victories and four defeats in nine games. The Ithacans are one-sided favorites to win today, but the Philadelphians are likely to give them a hard battle.

The Cornell-Penn battle will mark the close of the college football career of George Pfann, the Ithacan great quarterback. The Cornell star is leading the individual scorers on Eastern teams with 86 points and two touchdowns, and two points after touchdowns today would give him an even 100 points for the season. Charlie and Cassiday, Ramsey, backfield players, and Sunny Sundstrom, tackle, are other Cornell stars who will play their last game this afternoon.

Dartmouth Is Favorite.

Although Dartmouth is favored to defeat Columbia today, the local collegians have hopes of finishing their first season under the direction of Percy Haughton with a victory. If Columbia can gain a victory over the New Hampshire eleven, the Blue and White's season will be considered a distinct success. Haughton's eleven has been improving steadily throughout the season and is likely to give Dartmouth a hard fight. If Columbia is successful it will have a record for the season of five victories, three defeats and one tie for the year. If Dartmouth wins, its record will consist of eight victories and one defeat, with only setbacks thus far coming at the hands of Cornell.

The Columbia-Dartmouth contest will be the only college game to be played in this city today. With the exception of Fordham, all of the other local teams have already completed their campaigns. Fordham will get into action again on Saturday, when it meets Georgetown at the Yankee Stadium.

In addition to the Cornell-Penn and the Columbia-Dartmouth contests, there are other games of importance on today's schedule, a nominee among these is the annual clash between the University of Pittsburgh and Penn State College at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh. The Nittany Lions are favored to finish their season with a victory, but the Panthers are likely to put up a hard battle in an effort to redeem a poor season. In their last game the Panthers triumphed over the previously unbeaten Washington and Jefferson eleven and they are hopeful of defeating Penn State today.

Pitt Has Broken Even.

Pitt's present season has been less successful than others of recent years. The Panthers have thus far won four games and lost the same number. They defeated Bucknell and Lafayette and then lost four successive contests to West Virginia, Syracuse, Carnegie Tech and Penn. They followed this string of defeats with victories over Grove City and W. and J. Penn State, on the other hand, has lost but one game, its only defeat coming at the hands of Syracuse. The Nittany Lions also played a tie with West Virginia and triumphed over Lebanon Valley, North Carolina State, Gettysburg, the Navy, Georgia Tech and Pennsylvania.

Another noteworthy battle scheduled for today is that between the undefeated West Virginia eleven and Washington and Jefferson. The Mountaineers have a record thus far of seven victories and one tie game with Penn State. They have rolled up a total of 261 points in their seven victories. Westerman, Wellington, Feeney, Pittsburgh, Marshall, Penn State, Rutgers, Washington and Lee and St. Louis University. With the exception of a defeat at the hands of Pitt and a tie with Lafayette, W. and J. has won all its games, its victorious string scored over Bethany, Brown, Carnegie Tech, Detroit and Waynesburg.

The Brown University eleven, which has already engaged in nine games this year, will meet Lehigh at Providence today. Judging by the work of the two teams in all its games, its victorious string scored over Bethany, Brown, Carnegie Tech, Detroit and Waynesburg.

The Brown University eleven, which has already engaged in nine games this year, will meet Lehigh at Providence today. Judging by the work of the two teams in all its games, its victorious string scored over Bethany, Brown, Carnegie Tech, Detroit and Waynesburg.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—Football games played in the Western Conference during the past season attracted more than 1,000,000 spectators, according to figures reported by the institutions today, with total receipts estimated at more than $2,000,000.

It was the greatest football year in the Western Conference, with stadiums crowded while thousands clamored for seats to several of the feature games without avail.

Michigan and Chicago, each with six home games, stood out as the principal drawing cards. Michigan's estimated attendance was set at 180,000, while Chicago attracted 168,000 to the limited seating capacity of its stadium.

At Ohio State five home games drew 148,000, with the estimated receipts $178,000. In five home games, three of which were played in her new stadium, Illinois had crowds totaling 117,000. More than half of that number were crowded into the stands when Illinois played Chicago on Nov. 3.

Wisconsin, with the first tier of its stadium completed, estimates that 95,500 saw its home games, while Purdue and Indiana claim 14,000 and 20,000, respectively. Minnesota, Iowa and Northwestern, each with five home games, added approximately 100,000 each to the total.

It is noteworthy that great crowds filled some of the giant stadiums in only one feature game of each of the school's football year. Illinois was crowded only for the Chicago game. Wisconsin for its Minnesota home-coming year, and Minnesota for the Iowa home-coming contest.

Home teams defending their goal lines in newly constructed amphitheatres have had widely varying success in the crowds drawn to the great stadiums. While Ohio State has yet to win a Conference victory in its two-year-old bowl, Illinois has not been scored upon in its new field, dedicated this Fall. Michigan, too, dedication game at Ferry Field in 1921, but since has been undefeated. Iowa had two years of unbroken success and then this year lost two of three home Conference games.

It was way back in 1913 that Chicago dedicated Stagg Field, but victory over Indiana, following it with four other victories and one defeat for the year. Wisconsin, with the first tier of its stadium completed this season, suffered one tie and one defeat in Conference games. The Badger stadium, built in 1916 and being built entirely by football receipts, will seat 72,000 when completed.

Minnesota is progressing toward a new athletic field which may be dedicated in 1924. So far Illinois and Iowa, the only schools to dedicate fields with a victory. More than half of the total attendance at Illinois this year was due to the 60,653 who braved the rain and mud to see the Illini down Chicago, 7 to 0, in their home-coming battle.

PLAYED BEFORE 225,000.

Michigan Football Eleven Drew 5,000 More Persons Than in 1922.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 28.—The University of Michigan football eleven played before 225,000 persons this year, records of the Athletic Association show. Two of the eight games were played out of the State. The game at Iowa City drew 17,000 spectators and 25,000 saw the Wolverines beat Wisconsin at Madison. The Ferry Field games that drew the greatest crowds were those against Ohio State, the Quantico Marines and Minnesota. The attendance at the Ohio and Marines games was 43,000 each. Minnesota attracted 1,000 less. The opening game of the season with Case and the opponent brought 10,000 to Ferry Field, and the Michigan Aggies contest doubled that figure.

The total attendance at all games was 5,000 greater than a year ago.

SYRACUSE MAY GO WEST.

Authorities Giving Southern California Bid Serious Thought

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Developments in the last twenty-four hours have caused administration authorities to give the invitation of the University of Southern California for a Christmas day football game with Syracuse at Los Angeles serious consideration.

Following a conference with Vice Chancellor William F. Graham and George B. Thurston, graduate manager of athletics at the university, Chancellor Charles W. Flint, with whom rests final decision in the matter, announced he has requested further information with regard to conditions under which the game would be played from those interested in bringing the two teams together.

It was stated authoritatively the Chancellor's conditions are that the game should be free of any tinge of commercialism and should be of a purely collegiate nature as a meeting between athletes of two friendly institutions.

ALABAMA PICKED TO WIN.

Is Expected to Defeat Florida in Southern Title Race.

ATLANTA, Nov. 28.—The Southern Conference football season closes tomorrow with Alabama and Washington and Lee battling admittedly weaker teams for the championship. Neither team has lost a Conference game this season, and Alabama is expected to have an easy time with Florida, while the Generals are given the edge over North Carolina State. Vanderbilt, which has completed its Conference season, scoring a cup contender for a cup to be presented by Southern sports writers, as will the winner of the Virginia Military Institute-Virginia Polytechnic Institute game tomorrow.

Other classics of the program for the day include the annual Tennessee-Kentucky and Virginia-North Carolina games and the Georgia Tech-Auburn contest.

NORWICH TO PLAY ARMY.

Will Meet West Point Eleven for First Time Next Season.

NORTHFIELD, Vt., Nov. 28.—West Point replaces Canisius on the football schedule of Norwich University for 1924, it was announced today. Norwich has never faced the Army eleven. A game was arranged between the two military schools in 1913, but it was not played as Norwich abandoned its schedule that year after Verne Bolyea, star quarterback, died from a broken back sustained in a contest with Holy Cross.

Massachusetts Agricultural College has been substituted for Bowdoin, Oct. 13, the date of the Williams game this year, is open. The schedule follows:

Sept. 27, Dartmouth at Hanover; Oct. 4, New Hampshire at Durham; 11, Massachusetts Aggies at Amherst; 18, Connecticut Aggies at Storrs; Oct. 25, Tufts at Medford; 1, Middlebury; 15, Vermont at Burlington; 22, West Point at West Point.

WISCONSIN ELEVEN TO PLAY MICHIGAN

Officials at Both Schools Verify Report—Big Ten to Form Schedule Tomorrow.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—There is to be no break in the friendly relations that have existed thirty years between Michigan and Wisconsin when Western Conference athletic directors and coaches meet here Friday and Saturday to arrange their 1924 football schedules.

Statements from officials in both institutions are that a game has been agreed upon to be played at Ann Arbor. Reports of a possible break grew out of the victory the Wolverines won from Wisconsin, Nov. 17, on a touchdown disputed by Wisconsin rooters.

Reports from the Big Ten universities indicate that few changes are to be expected in the schedules of the seven leading elevens. The most important possible changes involve Michigan, Illinois and Chicago.

Coach Yost is said to be agreeable to the addition of a fifth conference game to the Wolverine schedule in order that Illinois may be added. Otherwise the Michigan team probably will play Ohio State, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin. Chicago also is angling for a date with the Ann Arbor team. The Maroons at the same time have in consider a home-and-home series with Wisconsin, with the termination this year of the five-year contract to play that annual contest at Chicago.

The Badgers are considering resumption of football relations with Northwestern, dropping Indiana, and also are negotiating for game with Notre Dame, T. L. Jones, athletic director, has announced. The Wisconsin schedule is likely to contain games with Coe College, Michigan Aggies, Chicago, Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota.

Centre is reported to be dickering for preliminary games for 1924 with Brown University and the University of Southern California.

Illinois, Wisconsin, Purdue, Northwestern and Indiana may be on the Maroon line-up if games. The hard 1923 schedule arranged by Illinois and Iowa is expected to be repeated.

VERMONT TEAM ON SCENE.

Eastern Eleven Reaches Milwaukee for Game with Marquette.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 28.—The Vermont University football team arrived here today and took a light workout in preparation for the game tomorrow with Marquette University. The game is attracting the greatest interest of the season here and it was announced tonight that all seats had been sold.

Coach Frank Murray announced tonight that his squad is in fine shape. The locals are depending on their heavy running attack, while it is predicted that the Vermont men will employ a passing game of a deceptive nature.

Tom Ready, coach of the Vermont team, declared his men are fit. "It is the first time this season that we have been able to show our full strength," he said. "It is rather late to be rounding into shape, but injuries have riddled our team. I expect a good close game, with plenty of football surprises mixed in."

MISSOURI TO PLAY KANSAS.

Annual Clash Divides Interest With Nebraska-Kansas Aggie Game.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—The Nebraska-Kansas Aggie gridiron clash at Lincoln and the ancient feud between Missouri and Kansas at Lawrence, Kan., divide interest in the Thanksgiving Day games in the Missouri Valley Conference tomorrow.

The Missourians, humbled by defeats by Washington and Oklahoma, go into the game at a decided disadvantage. Kansas's goal has not been crossed this season.

The Cornhuskers have an edge over the Aggies. Drake meets Oklahoma in the only other Conference game. Drake holds the edge, according to Valley statistics.

NOTRE DAME AT ST. LOUIS.

Rockne Says Team Will Not Meet Centre Next Year on Oct. 25.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 28.—Coach Rockne announced here this afternoon that Notre Dame would not play Centre in the Grant Park Stadium, Chicago, Oct. 25, 1924, as proposed, as he had arranged a game with Princeton for that date. He added that he had advised Centre of this several days ago, but that so far he has heard nothing further from Centre.

Notre Dame arrived here today for a contest tomorrow against the St. Louis University eleven. The visitors, in the best of condition, will remain idle today. Coach Savage has been putting his men through hard drills preparatory to meeting the strong foe from Indiana. It is generally admitted that the visitors are superior to the local university team.

TO BUILD NEW STADIUM.

Missouri Will Erect Structure to Seat 65,000 Persons.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 28.—A memorial stadium with an initial capacity of 25,000 and an ultimate capacity for about 65,000, the first unit of which is to be ready for the 1924 football season, was announced today by Dr. J. C. Jones, former President of the University of Missouri here, and Chairman of the University Memorial Committee.

The Student Union, which was originally planned as a memorial to the university's war dead, also will be built, the stadium representing an enlargement of the memorial project.

TO MEET BROWN ELEVEN.

New Hampshire Announces Football Schedule for 1924.

DURHAM, N. H., Nov. 28.—Next year's schedule for the University of New Hampshire football team, announced today, has been arranged so as to culminate with a game against Brown at Providence.

The schedule follows:

Sept. 27, Colby at Durham.
Oct. 4, Rhode Island State at Durham; 11, Rhode Island State at Kingston; 18, Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs; 25, Tufts at Durham or Manchester.
Nov. 1, Lowell Textile at Lowell; 8, Maine at Durham; Manchester at Orono; 15, Bates at Durham; 22, Brown at Providence.

SCHOOL TEAMS PLAY LAST GAMES TODAY

Stuyvesant to Meet Morris for Title—De Witt Clinton to Face Commerce.

The curtain will be rung down today on the local scholastic gridiron season. A schedule of five games will be offered local followers of the schoolboy football games, two of the contests being held in Manhattan and three in Brooklyn. Of outstanding importance, because of its significance with relation to the possession of the Manhattan-Bronx championship title, will be the clash between Stuyvesant H. S. and Morris H. S. at City College Stadium this morning, beginning at 10 o'clock. This game will determine the championship beyond question in the event of a Stuyvesant victory, which is expected. If Stuyvesant is defeated not only would the biggest upset of the season be recorded, but the situation surrounding the mythical championship would be extremely complicated.

The East Side eleven will enter the skirmish prohibitive favorites over the Bronx schoolboys. Stuyvesant has gone through the high school schedule without facing a defeat, scoring 102 points while out yielding a point to rival elevens. The team has practically clinched the Manhattan-Bronx title by defeating De Witt Clinton, Commerce, Evander Childs, the Bronx champions, and Textile. Morris has had a disappointing and spotted season, losing its principal games to Evander Childs and Commerce and being fortunate to hold De Witt Clinton to a tie.

The teams of De Witt Clinton H. S. and E. S. of Commerce, traditional rivals, will clash in their seventh annual gridiron struggle at Baker Field this morning at 10 o'clock. This contest originally was scheduled for last Saturday but was postponed because of the downpour which spread gloom over the last week's football events. The Clinton contest will have no direct bearing on the scholastic championship it has aroused unusual interest and is expected to attract a large crowd.

In Brooklyn, Manual Training H. S. and Boys' H. S. will clash in the most important game of the day. The eleven will struggle for supremacy at Ebbets Field in the morning, beginning at 10 o'clock. At the same hour Brooklyn Prep School and Commercial H. S. will clash at Commercial Field. In the afternoon Commercial Field will be the scene of the third Brooklyn game when New Utrecht H. S. and St. John's Prep School meet. The matinee game is scheduled to start at 2:30 o'clock.

HARVARD COMPLETES LIST.

Boston University to Fill Open Date on 1924 Football Schedule.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 28.—The tentative Harvard football schedule for 1924, made public last Monday, was completed today with the announcement that Boston University would play the Crimson in the stadium here on Nov. 1. That date had been held open, the Harvard Athletic Association stated, because it fell between two probably strenuous games, those with Dartmouth on Oct. 25 and Princeton on Nov. 8, and might be filled in with an easier contest.

The eight game schedule must now be approved by the Committee on Athletics.

TUFTS NAMES SCHEDULE.

Maine and New Hampshire Elevens Appear on 1924 List.

MEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 28.—The Universities of Maine and New Hampshire are new comers on the Tufts College football schedule for next season, as announced today. The schedule follows:

KUPCHIK LOSES AT CHESS.

Is Defeated by Freundlich in Manhattan Club Tourney.

The first serious upsets in the annual tournament for the championship of the Manhattan Chess Club came in the third round, in which A. Kupchik, who tied with Marshall for first prize at Lake Hopatcong, was defeated by Dr. Alfred Freundlich. The latter, conducting the black side of a queen's gambit declined, played faultlessly throughout. Samuel Katz, Secretary of the club, furnished the other surprise by defeating M. A. Schapiro, the titleholder.

D. Janowski won from A. Schroeder, Chajes defeated Schwartz, Tanner won from Samuels and Frink from M. Schroeder. The leading scores are the following: Frank, Denker and Seaman each 2½—3; Dr. Freundlich, Kupchik and Katz, each 2.

COLUMBIA TO MEET DARTMOUTH TODAY

Blue and White Eleven Faces Final Test of Season With Calm Confidence.

GAME MAY DRAW 30,000

Big Holiday Crowd Is Likely to See a Lively Encounter at the Polo Grounds.

New York's first big Thanksgiving Day football game in several years will bring together Columbia and Dartmouth at the Polo Grounds today in a contest that promises plenty of brilliant action. Although the Green from Hanover has a decided advantage on paper, Percy D. Haughton and his cohorts refuse to concede a thing to the visitors, and the last word from Baker Field last night was that the Blue and White varsity has "every expectation" of beating Dartmouth.

Columbia will enter the game almost an unknown factor, because of the deep secrecy with which Haughton has surrounded every move of his team since the N. Y. U. contest. Indeed, since the Cornell contest the Columbia coach has not revealed a thing of what he has up his sleeve, and most gridiron observers are ready to believe that he has brought Columbia further along than at any time this season.

But whether the Blue and White has improved enough to take Dartmouth's measure is another question. The Hanoverians are heavier in line and back field. They have hardly any more experienced material, but what they have is better and stronger, with a line likely to outplay Columbia's and two good ends in Bloodgood and Hagenbuckle. If Coach Jess Hawley had his star gunner, Kelley, in action instead of on the injured list, he would have still another advantage over Columbia, which is likely now to have an edge in the punting, with Koppisch doing it.

Green Has Good Record.

By beating Harvard, 16 to 0, and Brown, 16-14, the Hawleyites have an imposing record for the season and have lost only one game—that with Cornell—as compared with Columbia's three setbacks. But Columbia will rely today on shaking Koppisch loose for a touchdown and on Haughton's having worked silent wonders behind closed gates in the last few weeks.

With Dartmouth's big Summit body in and near New York to call upon, the game will probably draw more than 30,000 people. More than 700 undergrads are due in from Hanover today, and the rival cheering sections will be both large and vociferous. Dartmouth headquarters are at the Hotel Pennsylvania, where the squad of thirty-three players is stopping. The game will start at 2 o'clock to allow the spectators who want to eat their turkey dinner beforehand to get there.

The teams practiced separately at the Polo Grounds yesterday, Dartmouth working first. Hawley labored long with Hall, Maloney and Loomis, his punters. Captain Cy Aschenbach, Dartmouth's stalwart for all-American honors, was busy with placement goal kicking, Hawley laying stress on this because, he said, he expects a close game. The coach was tickled yesterday over the fast that Loomis, Alquist and Pyne, three substitutes, have been restored to eligibility.

Columbia Is Confident.

An air of calm confidence was noticeable during the Columbia workout, and, although the coaches and players don't say so, they think that Dartmouth is in for a tidy surprise this afternoon. A victory or even a tie game would be one of the big upsets of the season, and it would be the best possible climax for Haughton's first season at Morningside.

The probable line-ups:

COLUMBIA.		DARTMOUTH.
Wagner	L.E.	Bloodgood
Smullen	L.T.	Oberlander
Bredell	L.G.	Sykes

NAVY TO RETAIN STAFF.

Assistant Coaches to Aid Folwell in Preparing for Coast Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 28.—The Naval Academy's head coach, Bob Folwell, will be assisted by his whole staff in preparing the team for the game on the Pacific Coast on New Year's Day.

All of these are young officers, former Naval Academy players, and their orders assigning them to Annapolis have been continued. They are Wrighel, backfield coach; Scaife, line coach; Ewen, end coach, and Perry, assistant line coach and coach for kickers. Blaik, Cozens and Connor, whose work was with the junior elevens, have been detached.

TO USE OVERHEAD ATTACK.

Fordham Will Rely on Aerial Game Against Georgetown.

Coach Frank Gargan put his Fordham football eleven through another dummy scrimmage yesterday against Sunny Cochran's scrub team in preparation for the Georgetown game at the Yankee Stadium Saturday. The squad worked on the Georgetown plays which the scrubs have been practicing all week. Gargan had the team working a long time on the overhead game, which will form the best part of the Maroon attack.

The squad appeared in fairly good condition although Brennan, Healey and Fitzgerald are on the injured list. These men may get into the game at some time, but it is doubtful if they will start. Despite the fact that it will be Healey's last game Gargan thinks that it would not be safe to play him against Georgetown. Barney Fallon will not be able to get into uniform and the Maroon will miss one of its best linemen. Howley, Maroon quarterback, who has been bothered with a bad shoulder, is expected to be in good shape by Saturday and may start against the Blue and Gray.

LEADING WALKERS ENTERED

Star Athletes to Compete in City Hall-to-Coney Island Event.

Some of the foremost walkers of the country are scheduled to start from back marks this afternoon in the thirteenth annual City Hall-to-Coney Island handicap walk of the Walkers' Club of America. The event will have an international flavor with the appearance of Philip Granville, Hamilton, Ontario, heel and toe athlete, who captured the American seven-mile title last October at Mooney's Chen Para. Granville has entered as a member of a Canadian team which will vie with the best of local clubs nominating teams for the team trophy. Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert is scheduled to start the race at Tryon Row City Hall at 2 o'clock.

The distance will be about ten and one-half miles. The American walking stars entered include Willmie Plant, former national titleholder; Mike Peters, runner-up in the national seven-mile championship; Charles Foster, Detroit walker; Frank, Alfred and Norman Plant, Marvin Greenberg of the Pastime A. C., W. C. MacFadden, Harry Lobou and Alex Jamet. The Canadian entries, in addition to Granville, are Jack Mann, Charles Barnes, Harry Leach, Jake Freeman, Herb Hill and George Bristow.

BELPHRIZONIA WINS FEATURE AT BOWIE

Captures Boulevard Handicap With 93 Pounds Up—Pays $31.90 for $2 in Mutuels.

SALMON GOES DOWN IN JAM

Milner Has to Be Taken to Jockeys' House for Treatment—Howard Scores a Double.

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 28.—Belphrizonia, bay filly by Vulcain, out of Belphoebe, owned and trained by A. Swenke, romped away with the Boulevard Handicap at Prince George Park this afternoon, beating four other three-year-olds and running the mile and a sixteenth in 1:48 4-5. The filly carried the feather of 93 pounds, led all the way and beat R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Forest Lore by two lengths, earning $1,000 for her owner.

Another of the accidents which are becoming common at Prince George Park occurred this afternoon when P. S. P. Randolph's two-year-old bay gelding Salmon got caught in a jam early in the running of the third race and went down. Jockey Milner was badly shaken up and had to be taken to the jockeys' house for treatment. There was much rough riding during the afternoon, but none of the jockeys responsible for it was disqualified.

Jockey Harry Howard carried off the riding honors of the afternoon, having the mount on Ticacey, winner of the second race, and bringing Marie Maxim home in front in the sixth number. M. Fator was not so successful as in the last few days, having only one winning mount—Quick Time in the opening number. He was second twice, third once and twice unplaced.

Belphrizonia was an outsider in the featured number of the card, paying $31.90 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels. The Greentree Stable's filly Solisa was the odds-on favorite, but showed no speed and never was a factor, finishing fourth, a head in front of H. P. Whitney's Chicle filly Gadfly. Gadfly also never was in the hunt for the money.

Belphrizonia Breaks Well.

From her post position on the outside of the field, Belphrizonia broke well, and Chick Lang soon had her out in front. The filly showed a world of speed, and in the first half mile opened a lead of five lengths on Forest Lore, which chased her from flag fall to finish. Forest Lore cut this advantage considerably in the later stages, but the winner never was seriously menaced, having a good two lengths to spare when they passed the finishing post. Forest Lore was three parts of a length in front of the Kirkfield Stable's Vennie, which took the short end of the purse by a like distance from Solisa.

F. A. Herold's three-year-old filly Rejection was an easy winner of the claiming race at a mile and a sixteenth. The black daughter of Escoba and Crossbun came from behind when ready and ran away from the field of nine others in the race. She finished four lengths in front of Humboldt, which followed the pace all through, but could not better his position. C. Winfrey's Insulate, the public choice at less than 4 to 1 in the betting, took the short end of the purse, a length behind Humboldt. The winner, which carried top weight of 109 pounds, paid $19.50 in the mutuels.

Marie Maxim, six-year-old daughter of Golden Maxim, was first home in the fifth number, also at a mile and a sixteenth. The mare set a fast pace for the eleven others to follow, led all through and just lasted to win by a nose from War Fox, which came home two lengths in front of Sling. The winner was the public choice at a trifle more than 3 to 1.

The fourth race at a mile and a sixteenth, last on the card, was won by J. McMillen's Ettahe. Dentaria and Rhinegold killed each other off in the battle for the lead and were eased up at the end. Widow Bedotte assumed the lead at the head of the stretch, after the others had weakened. Ettahe then challenged and they had a hard drive down the stretch, in which Ettahe drew clear to win by a length. Toodles took the short end, after closing a huge gap and finishing strongly. The winner was the favorite in the field of twelve at about 2 to 1.

Ebony Belle Wins by a Nose.

The six-furlong dash, in which Salmond went down, was won by Ebony Belle, which came to the front after Remnant and The Poet had used themselves up in fighting for the lead. The black daughter of Dick Finnell came on rapidly in the final stages and got up just in time to nose out Henry M. Dietz, which formerly ran as Squires. Tolima was a length back, to take third money from Friday 13th.

RACING WILL START ON 3 TRACKS TODAY

Winter Season Will Open With Meetings at New Orleans, Havana and Tijuana.

14 IN JEFFERSON FEATURE

Best Pal to Carry Top Weight in Thanksgiving Handicap—Inaugural at Tijuana.

With the meeting at Bowie having three more days to run, thoroughbred racing on three Winter tracks will begin this afternoon—Jefferson Park, New Orleans; Oriental Park, Havana, Cuba, and Tijuana, Mexico, just across the border from San Diego. New Orleans will have ninety-four days of racing at Jefferson Park and the Fair Grounds, while the meetings in Cuba and Mexico will run for at least 100 days.

The Winter season in New Orleans will be divided into three meetings, with stakes and purses aggregating $500,000, of which the $15,000 Louisiana Derby will be the star number. The meeting at Jefferson Park will last until Dec. 31, following which will come the meeting at the Fair Grounds, which will last from Jan. 1 to March 4. There will be a second short meeting at Jefferson Park, running from March 5 to March 17.

Indications are for the best season of racing ever held in the Crescent City, if the number and quality of the horses already on the ground are any criterion. Many owners will race at New Orleans for the first time and many high-class performers which have been running on the Northern tracks will be seen in action.

Fourteen Entered in Feature.

The opening day at Jefferson Park will be featured by the Thanksgiving Handicap of $3,500, for which fourteen have been named overnight. It is for all ages at a mile, and the Idle Hour Stock Farm's five-year-old Best Pal, carrying top weight of 119 pounds, is expected to go to the post the favorite.

Mose Goldblatt three-year-old Broomstick colt Cherry Tree is asked to carry 119 pounds. J. B. Respess's Make Up has 113 pounds and Harry Payne Whitney's Revenge is asked to take up 112 pounds.

Six races are on the card for this afternoon. It is expected that the track will be slow as the result of heavy rain.

The prospects are bright for the racing this Winter at Oriental Park under the auspices of the Cuban-American Jockey Club. Never have the settings at Oriental Park presented a more beautiful picture, and with perfect weather and a fast track it is expected that a big crowd will turn out for the running of the opening day's feature, the Thanksgiving Handicap, at a mile and fifty yards, for three-year-olds and upward.

Six races will make up the card for the opening day, and there has been a large application for clubhouse tickets and season boxes. The handicap will be fourth on the program and seven have been named to go, with Vulcain Park, A. J. Bedell's three-year-old Vulcain colt, allotted top weight of 114 pounds.

Rowan to Ride.

Edward F. Whitney, a newcomer to Cuban racing, will be represented by By Jiminy, which has been given 107 pounds. Jockey J. Rowan will do the riding for the Whitney Stable. Jockey J. Callahan, who has been in Havana for a week, will have the mounts on the horses of the W. R. Coe Stable. Jockey F. Woodstock will ride for C. L. Mackay and Jockey Grace will freelance.

Upward of six hundred horses are stabled at Oriental Park, and this number will be augmented later in the week by a shipment from Bowie.

Racing under the auspices of the Tijuana Jockey Club will open with a card of eight races, the feature of which will be the Inaugural Handicap, at a mile and seventy-yards, for three-year-olds and upward. Nine are named to go to the post, with Firm Friend and Maximac allotted top weight of 118 pounds.

FIFTEEN NAMED OVERNIGHT.

Reparation Will Carry Top Weight in Bowie Feature Today.

Special to The New York Times.

GERMANY CURTAILS EXPORTING OF DOGS

Details of Government's Plan for Limiting Sale of Shepherds Received Here.

Definite details of the action of the German Government in limiting the export of shepherd dogs have been received by Miss Anne Tracy, Secretary of the Shepherd Dog Club of America, in a letter from Hamburg. The act became effective Sept. 17 and was adopted because it had been felt for some time that the reputation and the future of the German shepherd dog were endangered by two serious conditions. First, the enormous demand for the breed throughout the world has induced owners and breeders in Germany to export the very best of their breed—the Grand Champions—at too early a stage. Therefore these pillars of the breed did not benefit the breed in the country of its origin.

The second condition was that incompetent and unreliable individuals were induced by the ever increasing demands to export at exorbitant prices shepherds of very poor quality and some with bogus pedigrees, thus bringing discredit to the reputation of the German shepherd dog. Complaints about these practices have been received in Germany from all parts of the world.

The new regulations require from the breeder who wants to sell his shepherd that he fill out a special inquiry form and apply for the export permit to the Verein, which is the largest and most highly organized breeding organization in the world. The Verein sends this form to the judge or breeding steward appointed for the district of the applicant. This official examines the dog as to his quality, body construction, gait, &c., and investigates the pedigree. The result is entered in another special form, which must be returned to the Verein for further investigation. It is then decided whether the dog will do credit to the breed abroad. In case the application is favorably acted upon, permission for export will be granted. Even dogs of high breeding value will be allowed to be exported under certain circumstances.

A further safeguard will be that the pedigrees of all shepherds, sanction for whose export has been granted, will have special seals besides the usual stamp certified by the secretary of the Verein. According to negotiations between the Verein and the A. K. C. and the Department of Agriculture at Washington, this embossed seal only will be recognized from and after a certain date as proof of correctness of the pedigree from registration.

Two Players Draw Suspension For Scouting; Students Strike

HARBOR BEACH, Mich., Nov. 28.—More than 150 students of the local high school are on strike in protest against the suspension of two members from the school's football team, who, with three others, scouted a football team at Mariette without permission last Friday—the team which the high school eleven will play Thanksgiving Day. The villagers generally have sided with the insurgent high school pupils, and the girl students are active in protest. A mass meeting was held, at which a petition was drawn up asking the School Board to rescind its action in declaring ineligible the two football players. The petition was presented to the board, but it remained obdurate. Ten pupils, however—among them Floyd Nowiski and Russell Hazel, the two suspended football players—attended school today.

YANKS DENY MAKING OFFER FOR SHOCKER

No Bid for Star Pitcher to Be Submitted Until Next Month, Barrow Asserts.

The Yankees have made no offer for Urban Shocker, the St. Louis spitball artist, and will make none until the league meetings in December. That was the pronunciamento issued yesterday by Business Manager Ed Barrow, who was considerably exercised, not to say outraged, when he read a statement from St. Louis that the Yankees were among the five or six American League clubs engaging in a merry scramble to land the pitcher that has been put on the market by Phil Ball and Manager George Sisler.

"If the Browns want to talk business with us," quoth Mr. Barrow, "they will have to wait until the meetings, when Miller Huggins and the other members of our board of strategy can get together and frame a suitable offer. Mind you, I'm not saying that the Yankees don't want to get Shocker. We could use him nicely, but so far we have made no move to get him and we won't make one until Miller Huggins comes to New York next week and has a chance to talk over the matter with Colonel Ruppert and myself.

"One thing is sure, the Browns or any other American League club aren't likely to fall over themselves to hand us any players on a silver platter. The Yankees will try to land Shocker, but we won't break our necks doing so. There are only two of our pitchers whom we would give up in such a trade, and you'll have to guess who those two are."

Under further cross-examination Barrow admitted that Carl Mays was one of the two. The other probably is Oscar Roettger, although it is believed that Huggins might part with Bob Shawkey if the Browns would entertain a proposal involving the veteran right-hander. Shawkey or Mays, along with Elmer Smith, Ernie Johnson and a youngster may be the New York bid when Shocker is put up formally on the auction block.

The Giants yesterday received a letter from the doctor who recently extracted the tonsils of John Watson, the silent pitcher. The operation took place in Shreveport, La., which is the metropolis nearest to Watson's home at Homer, La. According to the medical man, Watson is a new man now and next Summer will enjoy better health than he ever did. Several times last season the silent one was under the weather because of the trouble that his ailing tonsils gave him.

SIX-METER YACHT CUP RACE ASSURED

Chairman of American Committee Notified of Challenge on Way From British Body.

SEPT. 1, 1924, MAY BE DATE

Series Probably Will Be Held Off Oyster Bay—Great Britain Leads in Victories, Two to One.

International yacht racing in the six-meter class on Long Island Sound next Summer for the British American Cup is apparently assured through the receipt by C. Sherman Hoyt, Chairman of the American Six Meter Committee, of a cablegram from England containing notification of a forthcoming challenge by British yachtsmen for races to be held here in the season of 1924.

The cablegram received by Mr. Hoyt, which was signed by Algernon Maudsley of the British Six Meter Committee, was as follows: "Please inform Seawanhaka Club we challenge for British American Cup 1924. Will have three boats, possibly four. Letter follows."

As there had been some talk of discontinuing the British American Cup series until the season of 1925, the arrival of the challenge was something of a surprise to members of the six-meter team on this side. From the cable it appears that the British yachtsmen have now definitely decided on sending a team of at least three boats over, with a possibility of four, the number that have raced on each side in previous matches.

The holding of international races here will add a good deal of interest to a yachting season which already promises to be a lively one. There is no suggestion in the cablegram of the location where the British desire to race or the date of the match, but it is assumed that about Sept. 1 will be the date, as was the case when the British team came here in 1922, and the location in Long Island Sound, off Oyster Bay, where the 1922 series was sailed. The Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club of Oyster Bay has fostered these international races and its headquarters are therefore appropriate for the racing vessels and crews.

It is believed that the details of the match with the number of challenging boats and names of owners will be outlined in the letter which follows the cablegram. Mr. Hoyt said he believed at least three American yachtsmen would build new six-meter yachts to try to places on the team if the international match is arranged. Six meter yachts of other seasons now laid up here include H. de B. Boardman's Grebe, Johnston De Forest's Priscilla, C. F. Havemeyer's Sandpiper, H. B. Plant's Clytie and Gordon Pirie's Cynara.

All of these boats raced last year and Clytie was taken over on the international team by Clifford Mallory. The other boats on last year's team were Lea, Ingomar and Hawk. These boats were left on the other side and Lea and Ingomar have been sold to foreign owners.

There have been three international matches for the British-American Cup. The match was instituted in 1921 when a team of American boats went to England and was defeated on the Solent. The idea of the match was to have the races sailed in England and on this side in alternate years. In August, 1922, a British team of four came to this country and were defeated by a narrow margin after a series of six races sailed off Oyster Bay. The American quartet lost the series sailed on the Solent last August, which leaves the series standing: Great Britain 2, America 1.

PHILADELPHIA WINS TWO HOCKEY GAMES

First Team Beats Baltimore and Second Wins From Chicago in Girls' Play.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—With Miss Goodman leading the attack, the All-Philadelphia first team today won its second match of the annual inter-city field hockey tournament, defeating the Baltimore girls, 17 to 0. Miss Goodman scored seven goals. Her ability to take the short passes from teammates and spin them past the Baltimore goal keeper was remarkable.

Miss Goodman, however, was not entirely alone in the ability to penetrate the defense of the Baltimore girls for the entire forward line and nine of the backs scored one or more times.

Beats Nine-Year-Old Rival in Waltzing and Ten-Stepping.

Miss Elsie Bauman won both the waltzing and ten-stepping contests in the first figure skating competition of the season last night at the 181st Street Ice Palace. In both events she beat out 9-year-old Dolores De Pierce, who took second honors. Miss Bauman rolled up 204 points in the waltzing competition to Miss De Pierce's 194, and 209 points in the ten-stepping to her young rival's 199. Julia Hogan won third award in the waltzing with 184 points and Evelyn Gunn won third honors in the ten-stepping with 196 points. A field of eight competed in the waltzing and six in the ten-stepping.

NAVY CREW LISTS 4 RACES.

Will Row Princeton and Syracuse in Only Events at Annapolis.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 28.—According to present arrangements, the home schedule of the Naval Academy crew will consist of two races, Princeton on May 3 and Syracuse on May 10. It will be the American Henley, to be rowed at Philadelphia on May 31, and the race which is agreed upon to determine the representative of the United States in the Olympics at Paris in 1924.

Harvard has declined to continue the triangular arrangement with the Naval Academy, but Princeton will row here this season, and it is expected that the Naval Academy will go to Princeton in 1924.

Excess Baggage Charge Made For Mud-Caked Grid Uniforms

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Nov. 28.—The football uniforms used by Grafton High School players in a game at Morgantown last Saturday were so caked with mud that the railroad company charged excess baggage on them, Jasper Colebank, coach of the Grafton outfit, declared today. There was no excess baggage charge on the uniforms from Grafton to Morgantown, he said, but after being used on the muddy gridiron the suits weighed so much that the railroad collected $3 excess on the return trip.

AINSMITH CLAIMS $4,000.

Asks Landis to Establish Right to Collect From Cardinals.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 28.—Eddie Ainsmith, former catcher with the local Nationals, who, following his unconditional release the latter part of last season, signed up with the New York Giants, has filed an application with Commissioner Landis to order the Cardinals to pay him approximately $4,000 he alleges is due him under his 1922 contract.

The contract, it was said, contained a "good behavior" clause, under which the greater part of Ainsmith's pay was to be held until the end of the year. Last September Ainsmith was a day late in returning from Chicago, and his release followed. His application to Mr. Landis is merely to establish his right to the money, it was explained.

Detroit to Play Army in 1924.

DETROIT, Nov. 28.—University of Detroit will play the Army football eleven at West Point on Oct. 11 next year, it was announced today by C. L. Bruce, athletic director of the school here. The Army game is the first contest definitely arranged for Detroit's 1924 schedule.

COWARD IS BEATEN IN SQUASH MATCH

Former Champion Loses Close Contest to Dinges at Princeton Club.

FINK ELIMINATES DAVIDSON

National Titleholder Triumphs by 15-12 and 15-5—Hyde and Bull Also Advance.

Thomas Coward of the Yale Club, the ex-national squash tennis champion, suffered his second defeat of the season yesterday when he was put out of the invitation tournament of the Princeton Club by C. W. Dinges of the Crescent A. C. in a three-game match by the score of 15—7, 7—15, 18—17. The match marked the first appearance of the former title holder since his setback at the hands of Hewitt Morgan in the national Fall scratch tournament at the Harvard Club several weeks ago. Coward, who has been kept out of the game on and off for the last year because of illness, failed to play in the form he showed in winning the championship, and only in the second game did he do justice to himself.

All the brackets in the third round, with the exception of two, were filled yesterday. The two will remain vacant until tomorrow, when play will be resumed, a recess being taken today. R. Earl Fink of the Crescent A. C., the national title holder, advanced by defeating G. G. Davidson of D. K. E. in straight games, 15—12, 15—5. F. Van S. Hyde, former champion, gained his third-round bracket by putting out G. Henderson of the Harvard Club at 15—8, 15—11. Charles M. Bull, second in the Crescent A. C. ranking to Fink, disposed of Morris Phinney of the Harvard Club at 15—12, 15—7.

Kingsley Kunhardt of Columbia eliminated W. Reed Corning of D. K. E. Otis Guernsey of the Ellis advanced at the expense of R. B. Haines of the Columbia Club. R. C. Coburn of the Crimson forces defeated H. G. Larson of the Orange and Black, and C. C. Cooney of the Yale Club put out O. G. Gulliver, a clubmate.

Riley Wins by Default.

Armin W. Riley of the Princeton Club and Hewitt Morgan both advanced by default. A third match went in this manner also, R. H. George of D. K. E. profiting by the non-appearance of Reginald Rooms of the Yale Club. The two matches remaining to be played will bring together John C. Neely of the Princeton Club, who is in charge of the tournament, and G. M. Sidenberg of the Yale Club, and Douglas Bomeister of the Yale Club and A. S. Moses of the Blue and White.

Coward was very much off his game against Dinges from the start. The Crescent A. C. representative played winning squash and earned most of his points with skilful stroking and unique court covering, but quite often he won points on errors that ordinarily Coward never should have made. The Yale man was wild in the opening game, finding it impossible to get his smashes to working properly. His service, too, was the asset whatever, Dinges smashing it back with great pace and returning the ball wherever he desired.

The Crescent A. C. representative worked diligently, getting around the court the most difficult recoveries, and that Coward found it almost impossible to ace him even when his control was good. Dinges used an effective soft ball that added to the other's difficulties, Coward erring on his returning again and again when he sought to smash the soft ball.

The Yale player steadied down in the second game. In addition to keeping his smashes within the confines of the court he made capital of his service, serving aces frequently. The result was that he not only stemmed the tide of defeat, but went into the lead by a big margin and won the game by the same score at which Dinges had won the first. Coward had terrific speed on his smashes, the ball travelling so fast that the other frequently was unable to get to it in time before it had struck the front wall a second time.

Coward Is Wild Again.

The start of the third game was a repetition of the first. Coward was again wild and defeating himself on error. With the score 11—4 against him, he gained control of his game and made a pull-up to 10—11. Dinges took the two next points and then Coward tied the score at 13-all. The game was 5 points and Coward lapsed once more as Dinges took 2 points in a row. The Yale man evened the score at 2-all and again at 3-all. Dinges made the score 4—3 and was three times within a point of winning the game, losing the service on all three without winning the point. Coward tied the count at 4-all and then after two more hands brought the game to an end, hitting out and giving Dinges the match.

Pitfinney played good squash against Bull, but the Crescent star was in his best stroke and played up on his toes, getting all over the court to handle the Crimson player's smashes. Bull also used the angles to good effect, especially in the second game, when Phinney was caught out of position again and again.

Guernsey put up his best squash of the season in defeating R. B. Haines at 15—8, 15—7. He was very accurate in his smashing and an indefatigable opponent in both corners. Haines's service was of no avail to him in this match on a new court. Repeatedly he put his first ball on the line, although his direction was good, and once he made a double fault, an unusual occurrence in squash tennis.

Hyde played well against Henderson, never finding it necessary to call upon his best, and Fink also played well within himself in defeating Davidson.

The summaries:

Second Round—R. Earl Fink, Crescent A. C., defeated G. G. Davidson, D. K. E., 15—12, 15—5; R. H. George, D. K. E., won from Reginald Rooms, Yale Club, by default; Kingsley Kunhardt, Columbia Club, defeated W. C. Decker, D. K. E., 15—7, 15—8; Armin W. Riley, Princeton Club, won from K. K. Smith, Yale Club, by default; Hewitt Morgan, Harvard Club, won from H. E. Tearne, D. K. E., by default; H. V. Crawford, Yale Club, defeated N. F. Torrance, Crescent A. C., 15—13, 15—10, 15—11; Otis Guernsey, Yale Club, defeated R. B. Haines, Columbia Club, 15—8, 15—8; F. H. Keeler, Columbia Club, defeated J. C. Trotwell, Crescent A. C., 15—11, 15—9; R. L. Coburn, Crimson A. C., defeated H. G. Larson, Princeton Club, 15—14, 15—9; F. Van S. Hyde, Harvard Club, defeated G. Henderson, Harvard Club, 15—8, 15—11; C. C. Cooney, Yale Club, beat O. G. Gulliver, Yale Club, by default; C. W. Dinges, Crescent A. C., defeated Thomas R. Coward, Yale Club, 15—7, 7—15, 18—17; W. Reed Corning, Yale Club, defeated Morefield Ale, Yale Club, 15—8, 17—16; Charles M. Bull Jr., Crescent A. C., defeated Morris Phinney, Harvard Club, 15—12, 15—7.

PARIS TEAM WON GAME.

Upset Soccer Predictions by Beating Northern Club, 5-1.

In spite of all predictions, based on comparative scores and individual brilliance, as well as team-work, the Paris soccer club defeated the northern representatives in the annual struggle at Lille, 5 goals to 1. The victory was the most decisive the Paris team has scored this season, and the power of the eleven's attack far surpassed all expectations. The North was represented by a strong team formed of stars taken from the three clubs of Lille, Roubaix and Tourcoenne.

From the start of the game the North obtained a corner. The critics were certain that their predictions were going to be upheld, but the corner was to no avail. Paris then opened a fast attack and the ball was kept in the air before the North guard realized what was happening. He saw the ball speeding straight for the posts, but the sun was in his eyes. It was out his guard and the first goal was scored.

The North defense tightened, but Paris only gained more speed and power and two goals followed in rapid succession. It was not until near the close of the game that the Northern scored. Paris had been in several substitutions and the contest ended soon after the latter scored their one goal.

Athletes Keep Fit by Rowing On Thames River in the Dark

Rowing in the dark is an experiment which experts on the Thames are trying with the ultimate idea of providing Winter practice for all the youth around London who engage in cricket, football and lawn tennis, in order that they may keep fit for the following season in their respective branches of sport. The Thames captain already has reported that rowing at night is quite feasible, even without lights. No doubt exists in his mind that rowing in the dark develops the sense of rowing to feeling, and consequently improves it, but he is looking forward to the day when headlights will be fixed on the boats, thus providing sport for the young all the year.

OLYMPIC SKATERS TO PERFORM HERE

U. S. Team Expected to Appear in Two Meets Before Leaving for Games on Jan. 2.

Speed skating fans in and about the metropolitan district will be given an opportunity to see the men who will represent the United States in speed skating in the Olympic Games at Chamonix, France, before they sail on Jan. 7. The team will, in all probability, appear at an outdoor meet at Yonkers to be held late in December and at an indoor meet in the Iceland Rink in this city, Manager Webb having applied for a date to hold these events.

The International Skating Union has officially announced the men who will compete for the United States; four first string men and two alternates. The New York boy, Joe Moore, has been selected for the first team with Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid and Harry Kaskey and William Steinmets of Chicago. Valentine Stallias of Lake Placid and Richard Donovan of St. Paul are the alternates named. William Taylor, an old-time New York Athletic Club speed-skating star, will have full charge of the team before it sails and during its foreign invasion.

The Lake Placid speedster, Jewtraw, international outdoor champion of 1923, is almost sure to score points in the two shorter distance races. He is considered the fastest man in the sprints ever developed in this country. Jewtraw holds the 220-yard world's record of 18 4-5 seconds, made at St. John, N. B., last year, and the half-mile world's record of 1 minute 17 2-5 seconds, made at Lake Placid in 1922.

Kaskey, the Chicago star, holds both the American and Canadian national championships, and, although he lacks the competitive experience of his three teammates, he can both sprint and go the route. Moore is the holder of the international indoor championship, and finished second to Jewtraw in the international outdoor championships last year. He is consistent in both sprints and long-distance races. Moore holds the quarter-mile world's record of 37 2-5 seconds and the three-quarter-mile world's record. His three-mile world's record, made at Lake Placid last year, has not been officially credited to him as yet.

Steinmets of Chicago, former international outdoor champion and winner of the diamond trophy at Lake Placid in 1922, is another consistent sprinter and distance man. Should any of the events be skated on soft ice he may prove the sensation of the American team. Stallias of Lake Placid and Donevan of St. Paul, the alternates named, are excellent distance skaters, Donevan having held, and, in fact, officially still holds, the world's three-mile record. Neither of these skaters is in the class with the other members of the team as sprinters.

The biggest handicap our American skaters will encounter will arise from the difference in the European tracks from the American and Canadian tracks on which they are used to racing. The Olympic races will be skated with two men competing at a time on the 500-meter circular track. Each man will be forced to skate in a separate lane. At a given point the man having the outside track will take the inside track, while the man on the inside course will alternate to the outside course. Jockeying for position will be out of the question on a course of this kind.

250-MILE AUTO RACE TODAY.

Seventeen Cars Will Start in Contest at Beverly Hills.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—Final touches in motor tuning and adjusting today were put on seventeen racing cars scheduled to start tomorrow morning in the 250-mile Thanksgiving Day motor classic at the Beverly Hills Speedway, near here.

With previous records broken by several of the cars in practice, predictions in racing circles are almost unanimous that the mark of 116.05 miles an hour, set here by Jimmy Murphy in 1921, is likely to be lowered. The event will decide whether Eddie Hearne or Jimmy Murphy will be this year's national racing champion.

HOWARD AGAIN WINS TITLE.

Captures Princeton Tennis Honors for Third Time in Row.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 28.—The singles championship in the annual Fall tennis tournament here was won today by John E. Howard of Baltimore. A.A.U. RACE TO SERVE AS OLYMPIC TRIAL

Cross-Country Team to Be Selected at National Senior Event in Spring.

VAN CORTLANDT SELECTED

New Course to Be Scene of Test in May or Early June—Conflicts to Be Minimized.

As a part of its campaign to produce the best athletes available for the American Olympic team, the Amateur Athletic Union has decided to conduct its national junior and senior cross-country championship races over the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America course at Van Cortlandt Park in the Spring next year, instead of in the Fall, as is customary with the hill and dale title events. Dates for the events will be set either late in May or early in June.

Secretary Fredrick W. Rubien of the A. A. U. announced yesterday that the change had been decided upon because of the fact that the A. A. U. hill-and-dale title tests had been selected as the decisive trials for members of the team which will invade Paris next year for the eighth Olympic Games. The senior event will serve as the final Olympic try-out and, as usual, will follow the junior championship after a lapse of one week.

It is felt that the adoption of this arrangement will give America the strongest cross-country team possible for the European meet. The plan is considered more advisable than the course followed four years ago when the cross-country runners who made the trip to Antwerp as members of the American team were selected from among athletes who had qualified for the team in some other events but who had previously exhibited enough ability at cross-country running to justify their selection for the hill-and-dale squad.

By holding the cross-country try-outs a few weeks before the team sails, the committee appointed to select the cross-country runners will have an opportunity to more closely appraise the ability and condition of the athletes under consideration as eligibles for the squad.

The selection of dates for the title competitions is a matter which will not be determined until every phase of the situation has received careful consideration. The desire of the A. A. U. officials and authorities of the American Olympic Committee is to minimize as far as possible the number of conflicts in athletic events, many of which will be produced because of the necessity for holding championships in various sports in close proximity to each other because of the Olympic try-outs. As far as could be learned yesterday, the tendency is to favor a date in May, perhaps the second or third week in the month, if this idea is adopted conflict will be avoided with the I. C. A. A. A. A. track and field championships and the sectional intercollegiate championships, which generally are held subsequent to the I. C. A. A. A. title meet. If the cross-country competition is delayed until June there is danger of a conflict with the final track and field championships, which have been scheduled for June 13 and 14 at Cambridge.

The adoption of the I. C. A. A. A. A. cross-country course at Van Cortlandt Park was decided upon because of the conviction that the new trail offers greater advantages to the runners attracted to cross-country.

MANY STARS WORK WAY THROUGH YALE

Milstead, Richeson, O'Hearn and Neidlinger Among Players Earning Board.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 28.—That the Yale football players are a crowd of earnest workers off the field as well as they were on it this year is seen in some interesting facts just obtained from the Bureau of Appointments of the university. They show that fifteen members of this year's varsity squad are self-supporting, meaning that they are working their way through college by their own efforts or are contributing to their support by doing odd jobs whenever and wherever they can find them.

Among the men who are entirely self-supporting are Marvin Stevens, the great half back and kicker; Century Milstead, the powerful left tackle and one of the greatest linesmen Yale has had during the days of modern football; Jack Diller, the right guard on the first varsity and W. S. Wallace and R. D. Root, substitutes.

Stevens has perhaps the oddest job of any of the football men. He has been employed in an undertaker's establishment, answering telephones and doing various chores, for which he earned his room rent during the past college year. He is still doing it. Stevens also waited on table and in other ways worked for his board. During the Summer months Stevens acts as a counselor in a boys' camp.

The fact that Milstead has been shoveling coal at the Taft Hotel since the opening of the football training season already has been spread broadcast through the newspapers. Last Summer Milstead acted as night watchman on the Long Island estate of Alan Corey, former Yale quarterback and outfielder, and better known as "Pop."

Diller has had a diversified career as a "working man" in New Haven. During his freshman year he worked for the University Typewriting Bureau and as a shipping clerk. He also worked for his board in his freshman and sophomore years as an assistant manager of an eating place. In his junior year he managed the baseball program and was a monitor and for the past three Summers he has acted as a camp counselor. Diller has also tutored during term time and in the Summer months.

Wallace and Root, the other members of the team who are entirely self-supporting, are working for their board at the Student Laundry. Each season Root worked as a laborer during the Summer, and Root has been an usher at Yale field.

Charlie O'Hearn, football, baseball and hockey player and captain of the last two named teams is one of the greatest piano players that ever came to Yale. He has helped put himself through college by participating in piano and singing entertainments. For the past two years he has acted as a tutor-companion.

Richeson, Yale's great quarterback, has worked for his board during his career at Yale, and Widdy Neale has earned his tuition money as a furniture salesman. He also has worked for his board. Russell Murphy, first substitute quarterback, has been a tutor-companion during the summers of 1922 and 1923, and has been a chapel monitor. Newell Neidlinger has done odd jobs in New Haven for three years. He has been a chapel monitor and for five years has been a tutor-companion.

Hexie Haas, substitute halfback and the captain of the basketball team, has worked for his board during his course at Yale. L. C. Weinecke, substitute quarterback, to another who has waited on table for his board, and "Ed" Greebe, tackle and manager of the track team, has done work for his board during the past year.

C. Gennaro, a Junior, has employed his talents as a magician to good advantage and has been chairman and manager of the Student Entertainment Agency. He also has been one of the active heads in the Student Suit Pressing Company.

Other Yalensts at Yale, in all branches, have found positions and jobs through which they have helped to pay for their education, and it is probable that more than the majority of those who represent Yale on the gridiron, track, baseball field and on the water, are partly self-supporting in their quest for an education.

Once more Grimaldi's sad fate serves as basis for a play of life in the theatre. This time Lionel Barrymore impersonates the clown whom nothing can make laugh, and his mood of sentimental melancholy culminates in fantastic tragedy.

The play is highly original in many of its scenes and situations. Its appeal to the sympathies is genuine and deep. Mr. Barrymore characterizes this pathetic, storm-tossed laughmaker with all of his admirable directness of method, his masculine vigor and emotional power. But the final scene of nerve-racked, half-mad suicide raised a doubt. It is either a bit of thinly veneered theatric artifice or a grisly phantasy of the most compelling power. So far as one could judge, last night's audience seemed to miss the thrill of ultimate tragedy, but its silent passivity may well have been the result of stunned nerves.

The central situation is a very effective doubling of the Grimaldi motive. In the waiting room of a nerve specialist, this clown, Tito, subject to causeless fits of sobbing, falls in with a young viveur who laughs loudly on all occasions and on none. As Tito's malady springs from hopeless love, so Luigi's springs from an excess of wine and women. The prescription is the same for both, a normal, happy love. It is forthcoming in the person of Tito's young partner of the stage, Simonetta, a gracious and affectionate child just budding into womanhood. By the second act she has wrought a cure upon both. They are fast friends, and Luigi has quite cast off his old life of dissipation. But her love for the carrot-topped, grimacing Tito is that of a daughter. For Luigi she comes to feel the fain passion of a woman grown.

The scene that leads up to this discovery is strikingly original and effective. Betrayed by a moment of jealousy, Tito charges Luigi with all imaginable baseness. In the stress of that emotion he bursts again into the sobbing, and his rival into the loud and hollow laughter, to which they were subject when we met them in the physician's waiting room. Few moments of the theatre have ever been more effective than that. A sense of what they have done to each other clears the air; mutual pity restores good sense and good feeling. But it is the young and handsome Luigi who wins Simonetta.

For Tito there is left only sobbing. The final scene finds him alone in his lodgings in the midst of a thunderstorm of the kind that occasioned his first nervous breakdown. He can rouse the whole world to laughter, but who shall make him laugh? Who but him. himself? He fills the room with mirrors and with candles, puts on his clown's make-up and goes through his repertory of tumbles and grimaces. But the only result is a sobbing intensified, and, sobbing, he thrusts a knife to his heart.

It is a passage of the utmost virtuosity and power. In that milieu of grotesque frisking and droll miming Tito's nerves dissolve visibly and are shattered, and visibly his heart breaks. It is a passage made at if by miracle for the demonstration of histrionic prowess, and Lionel Barrymore's performance is without flaw. But not a few in the audience, as it seemed, would have been moved more deeply by a tragedy less complicated in its psychology, less expertly multifarious in its manipulation.

The production is in Mr. Belasco's best manner and the acting throughout consummate in its kind. Irene Fenwick makes an utterly charming and sympathetic Simonetta. The Luigi of Ian Keith is a characterization admirably distinct. His discrimination between his two laughs, that of wholesome youth and that of distracted nerves, is a triumph of unforced subtlety.

There may be those who do not give absolute credence to Mr. Barrymore's final scene, but there will be very few playgoers indeed who will fail to see it.

PAINTLESS GIRL WINS.

Miss Niblock of Toronto Used No Cosmetics in Beauty Contest.

Miss Norma Niblock of Toronto, Canada, an eighteen-year-old home girl, who used no beauty preparations or make-up, was declared by Rodolph Valentino and a jury of 100 the prettiest girl in the United States and Canada at the "pageant of pulchritude" last night in Madison Square. Miss Eugenia Gilbert of Los Angeles, who would have won first place had applause been the determining factor, received second honors. The third, fourth and fifth prize beauties were Miss Reba Owen of New York, Miss Mildred Adam of Baltimore and Miss Gloria Heller of Wichita, Kan.

The winners, selected among the eighty-eight municipal beauties chosen by Valentino in a tour of Canada and the United States, have been the guests of the Beauty Foundation of America, which arranged the contest.

Miss Niblock received a crown of platinum, set with diamonds, and a loving cup. The choice of the 101 pulchritude "experts," which included Special Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Harriss, Hugo Riesenfeld, Sophie Irene Loeb and Toscha Seidel, is not apt to meet with the approval of the blonds. Miss Niblock has black hair, worn in curls down her back dark brown eyes, and what might be described as a smiling, open countenance.

A dance and reception to the Queen of Love followed at the Waldorf-Astoria. It was announced that the B. F. Keith Vaudeville Exchange has offered theatrical engagements to the first sixteen beauties.

MARCONI STIRRED BY TESTS

Predicts Reception of Speeches Broadcast Overseas.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—William Marconi waxed enthusiastic when interviewed by The Evening Standard today concerning the present transatlantic broadcasting experiments.

"The results achieved this week," said Mr. Marconi, "mean that some day we shall be able to hear without effort a speech by the President of the United States and that America will be able to listen to our King or our Premier. When I listened in America this morning it thrilled me almost as much as when in Newfoundland I first heard the Morse signals across the Atlantic."

Signor Marconi expressed the hope that within a comparatively short time it would be possible to put the owners of crystal radio sets into communication with America, and vice versa.

MY DECISION FINAL, SAYS GALLI-CURCI

Her Last Season With Chicago Opera, Where She Is Shown 'No Consideration.'

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, prima donna, announced upon her arrival here today for her début next Monday with the Chicago Civic Opera Company that the break between her and the opera company after this season is final. She recently announced she would refuse to appear with the opera company after this season because the company insisted that she make her début in "Lakme," while she insisted on "Dinorah."

"I shall not reconsider," she said. "My decision is final. This is my last season with the Civic Opera. An artist cannot give of her best if there are turmoil, bickering, quarreling."

She declared that she had been shown no consideration by officials and added, with flashing eyes, "Even a street sweeper is shown consideration if he sweeps well."

Samuel Insull, President of the opera company, had expressed the hope after the controversy that Mme. Galli-Curci "would exercise a woman's privilege and change her mind."

TOM McNAUGHTON DEAD.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Tom McNaughton, the famous comedian, died at a nursing home at St. Albans, just outside of London, tonight. McNaughton had a breakdown several months ago and he returned to England to die.

Tom McNaughton was born July 1, 1867, and in his early career was for many years engaged with his brother Fred in English music halls. He attracted the attention of the late George Ware and in 1890 they appeared together, first as "knockabout comedians," then as boxers, and still later in a variety act.

Since 1909 McNaughton appeared principally in this country. In 1910 he made his appearance in musical comedy in "The Spring Maid" at the Liberty Theatre. He appeared in "Sweethearts," "Suzi," "Fads and Fancies," "Pom Pom," and "The Magic Melody."

He married Alice Loyd.

GIVE "WITHIN THE QUOTA."

Swedish Ballet Dances an American Novelty by Gerald Murphy.

Midway in a week's stay here, the Swedish Ballet gave an American novelty in its performance at the Century Theatre last night, one of the latest it had produced in Paris before sailing last month. The piece was its gesture of greeting to America, as it might well have been last Monday, introducing, not Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty, but a Swedish immigrant landing in New York.

The ballet sketch "Within the Quota" was by Gerald Murphy, a Yale graduate and son of Patrick Francis Murphy of this city. The descriptive music of a day in Harbor and ashore, orchestrated by Charles Koechlin abroad, was sketched originally by Cole Porter, Mr. Murphy's classmate and associate artist now overseas, who wrote a remembered song, "An Old-Fashioned Garden," in one of Raymond Hitchcock's productions of "Hitchy-Koo."

AMERICAN EXPLORERS IN DESERT ACCIDENT

Mrs. Hewett, of Archaeological Expedition, Injured in Syrian Motor Crash.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BAGDAD, Nov. 27.—A serious motor accident in the middle of the desert is reported from Abu Kemal. A local transport company's motor convoy, which had been specially chartered to take a party of American archaeologists by way of Palmyra to Damascus left Bagdad on Nov. 20.

The party included Professor and Mrs. Edgar L. Hewett, Professor Albert T. Clay, Dr. Magnus, two students and a French intelligence officer. It appears that in the course of a descent into a deep gully one car dashed into two others, and an Arab guide is reported to have been killed. Mrs. Hewett was badly injured and has been brought to Abu Kemal, the Irack frontier station on the Euphrates, on camel back. The other travelers were not injured.

As the route taken crosses a wide extent of waterless desert, the members of the party were lucky to escape with their lives.

Professor Albert T. Clay was appointed in 1920 to visit Bagdad and arrange for the establishment of a School of Oriental Research. An authority on Near Eastern archaeology, he had previously been Laffan professor of Assyriology and Babylonian literature at Yale and curator of the Yale Babylonian collection.

Mrs. Hewett is the wife of Dr. Edgar L. Hewett of Santa Fe, N. M., Director of the School of American Research and the Museum of New Mexico.

DUNCAN WILL DIVORCE RUSSIAN POET HUSBAND

Dancer Says "His Crazy Goings On" Interfere With Her Moscow School.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—Isadora Duncan has decided to divorce her Russian peasant-poet husband, Serge Essenin. "He is really too impossible," she told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent. "It was bad enough in America, but here his crazy goings on interfere with the work of my school, which I won't have. So that ends my first experience of matrimony, which I always thought a highly over-rated performance. Fortunately, it seems as easy to get divorces here as to get married.

"Just sign another paper and it's done with."

She admitted she still liked Essenin "quite a lot, and was not unduly distressed by his somewhat flagrant infidelities. "If it were only women, ladies, I wouldn't mind so much," she said; "but Sergey's trouble comes out of the bottle. It is hard enough for me to carry on my school anyway, and with a husband that is always raising cain, it is quite impossible."

She said she was seriously thinking of transferring a score or so of her most promising pupils to Paris or London owing to economy cuts in the appropriation of the Ministry of Education —whose budget includes art, music, dancing and the theatre—she never had any financial help from the Soviet Government save indirectly through free rent of a house until the beginning of last year and a rather insufficient food ration for the children.

"Altogether," she said, "I spent nearly 23,000 of my own money and now that I must pay rent and receive no more food rations it is extremely difficult to make ends meet."

MUSIC

The Philharmonic Society.

By H. C. COLLES.

Mozart and Tchaikovsky provided a stimulating contrast in the first part of last night's Philharmonic concert which Mr. Willem van Hoogstraten conducted at Carnegie Hall. The one was represented by the Sinfonia Concertante in E flat for oboe, clarinet, horn and bassoon with accompaniment for strings, oboes and horns; the other by his pianoforte concerto in B flat minor, Mr. Mitja Nikisch playing the solo part. The program gave no indication as to who were the solo players in Mozart's work.

To modern ears Mozart seems to live in a world where rough manners, haste, noise and vulgarity are unknown, while Tchaikovsky lives in one where all these are necessary ingredients. We must be tolerant thoroughly to enjoy Tchaikovsky, and Mitja Nikisch is too young to be tolerant. That was where his performance, brilliant as it was in many respects, seemed to fail. He has immense energy behind his finished technical equipment. He loves to play things very fast, as witness the battering double octave passage in the first movement, the waltz in the middle of the second movement and the climax of the finale. With it, too, there is thoughtfulness. He has decided exactly what ought to be done with every passage, and he phrases in strongly carved outlines which leave no doubt of what his decision is. But the result was not so stirring as it ought to have been because he never quite let himself go or gave himself to the mood of Tchaikovsky a moment without expressing a judgment on it. In listening to him one recalled a very different performance, one which his father conducted with Mme. Carreño playing the piano, and how the music then seemed carried along by an unswerving impulse.

Mr. van Hoogstraten was responsible for much of the flagging in this performance. Under him the music got divided up into sections, attention was caught by carefully rounded details which one ought not to think about; it all wanted the spontaneity which makes one forgive Tchaikovsky for thus wearing his heart on his sleeve because he is a great heart which he can afford to show.

Mr. van Hoogstraten was much happier in Mozart's rarer atmosphere. The symphonic concerto, or concerted symphony whichever it is, was very beautifully played, and it is to be noted that it was labeled "First time by the Philharmonic." One would have been glad to be able to record the names of the solo players, each one of whom not only showed himself to be a finished artist but contributed to a perfectly blended quartet. After the intermission Debussy's "Faun" and Strauss's rogue, "Till Eulenspiegel" were added to complete the program.

"BUTTERFLY" SUNG AGAIN.

Elizabeth Rethberg Vocally Superb in Role of Cio-Cio-San.

Vocally superb in a glowing musical score of the most popular of modern operas, Elizabeth Rethberg made her delayed first appearance as Cio-Cio-San in Puccini's "Madama Butterfly," repeated at the Metropolitan last night before a house packed to the doors and more than usually brilliant for a holiday eve in its attendance of society in the boxes. Many found a new interest in Mme Rethberg's impersonation, despite a certain hesitancy at dramatic points in the first hearing. She had been prevented by illness hitherto from singing this rôle, as perhaps also was the case last season when she finally did so only at a Summer term of opera at Ravinia Park, near Chicago.

With her last evening were familiar Metropolitan exponents of the Belasco-Long drama in its operatic guise, Martinelli and De Luca sang as the American Navy hero and the Consul, Miss Phradie Wells, a recent newcomer, as the Lieutenant's wife, and Miss Telva, Messrs. Bada, Gustafson and others, among the varied Japanese characters. Mr. Moranzoni conducted a performance of well-wrought ensemble from its gay start to tragic finish.

SONG SUIT DISMISSED.

Experts Say Notes in Infringement Claim Were of Ancient Origin.

The suit of Fred Fisher, Inc., against Charles Dillingham and others for alleged infringement of copyright for using in a musical number called "Kalua" in the comedy "Good Morning Dearie," notes appearing in the song "Dardanella," was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge Knox.

Experts testified that the notes complained of were of ancient origin and appeared in many operas.

Abraham Sopkin, Violinist, Plays.

Abraham Sopkin, violinist, returned last evening from two years abroad to the stage of his former Aeolian début, bringing evidence of a ripening artistry most notably in his performance of the noble sonata of Cesar Franck. He played understandingly, at times harshly in the high strings or with a too rigid bow arm, but with prevailingly good tone and persuasive warmth of feeling. Walter Golde assisted at the piano also in several Bach-Kreisler arrangements, Bruch's concerto and a rondo of Vieuxtemps.

PHYSICIAN LEAPS TO DEATH.

Dr. J. F. Bowman Jumps From Municipal Building Window.

Dr. James Floyd Bowman, an eye and ear specialist of Irvington, N. J., jumped to his death from the ninth floor of the Municipal Building yesterday afternoon. Failing health since an attack of influenza two years ago had caused a highly nervous state, it was said, which had become pronounced the last few weeks. Dr. Bowman, who was 44 years old, formerly had a local office at 220 Broadway.

Police records noted the physician's death as the fourth suicide caused by jumping from a Municipal Building window in a year. No witnesses could be found either of Dr. Bowman's presence in the building or of his leap to the pavement on the uptown side of the structure.

John H. Wehman, a brother-in-law in Irvington, said that Dr. Bowman was a graduate of Columbia University and of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He had lived in Irvington for eighteen years. He is survived by a widow and a 14-year-old son.

Countess Loses Suit for $1,900.

The Countess de Tiefenhausen, member of a Russian noble family, yesterday lost the suit brought by her against Edward D. Bolton, an attorney and investment broker, to recover $1,900, when a jury before Supreme Court Justice Davis gave a verdict for Bolton. The Countess asserted that Bolton had acted as her attorney and that she bought stock from him which proved to be valueless.

FAVOR INCREASE OF PUBLIC FORESTS

WOULD AID STATE PLANS

Will Recommend Appropriation of $1,000,000 Yearly for Fighting Insects and Diseases.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 (Associated Press).—Extension of public forest ownership in areas where special national responsibility is involved and the removal of the hazards and handicaps offending private timber growing will be the outstanding recommendations of the Senate Reforestation Committee. The report of the committee, based on information obtained in a series of hearings throughout the country, will be ready for the Senate within a few weeks.

Recommendations regarding the extension of public forest ownership probably will include:

Enlargement of State and municipal forests.

Completion of purchases contemplated by the Weeks' law for the protection of navigable streams.

Enlargement of Federal purchase policy to include denuded areas in Eastern regions where the principal bodies of such land occur. These purchases to be made within the watersheds of navigable streams, but with a view to timber production as one of their primary objects.

Authorization to accept deeds or grants of land suitable for national forests.

Incorporation in national forests of unreserved public lands and portions of military reservations valuable chiefly for the production of timber or protection of water sources.

The following probably will be among the proposals for the encouragement of commercial reforestation:

Extension of Federal aid in fire protection, in co-operation with States and private owners of forest land to an ultimate maximum representing about one-fourth of the cost, and to be safeguarded by Federal supervision.

Comprehensive Federal investigation of forest taxation and co-operation with States in devising tax laws and methods favorable to reforestation.

Federal co-operation with States in growing and distributing forest planting material.

Federal co-operation with States in educational activities seeking the encouragement of timber growing by farmers and other owners of suitable land.

Liberal Federal provision for the study of destructive forest insects and tree diseases and for aiding local agencies in their control.

Liberal Federal provision for research to promote timber growing and economy in the use of timber.

The committee is expected to recommend an appropriation of $1,000,000 annually to aid in fighting forest insects and diseases and to urge increases in appropriations for fighting forest fires.

LUSITANIA SALVAGER CAN'T SAIL, CAN'T STAY

So He Is Marooned at Philadelphia on Ship—Meant to Seek Sunken Treasure.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—Benjamin Franklin Leavitt, President of the Leavitt Lusitania Salvage Company, which had for its purpose the raising of $10,000,000 from the sunken liner, was today marooned on board his treasure-seeking ship, the Blakely, at the foot of a Philadelphia pier, after spending part of last night in Moyamensing Prison. To reporters he revealed he was a bridegroom, and that the venture was his fourth.

Leavitt was arrested yesterday charged by a widow with fraud in the sale of stock. Fraud was also charged by the widow against "S. Gage MacDougall," Secretary and Treasurer of the salvage company. Leavitt said "MacDougall" was his wife.

The company is now a family affair, Leavitt added. He is President, his bride is Secretary and Treasurer and his son, Harold Allen Leavitt, director.

Leavitt had prepared to sail for Chile to search for gold and copper sunk off the coast when he was arrested. He was in a peculiar predicament today. His boat, the Blakely, must leave before the Neponset, due here from Portland, can dock. But, because of writs of attachments served by Deputy Sheriffs, it is a legal impossibility to move the vessel. Thus, the Blakely can neither leave nor stay.

The company is not selling any more stock, Leavitt declared.

"Private capital is behind us and we can go the limit," he said. "These matters in Philadelphia will be straightened out and we will sail for Chile about Dec. 10."

Big Gain in Red Cross Roll Call.

Red Cross roll call returns for Manhattan totaled $175,000 yesterday. This is $32,000 more than the sum reported on Thanksgiving Day a year ago, and contributions still are being received at the rate of $16,000 to $12,000 a day, according to a report from headquarters.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Confused Movement of Stocks —Decline in European Exchange Rates.

Uncertain and conflicting movements in yesterday's stock market, with the general tendency of prices downward for the day as a whole, occurred simultaneously with decline in the foreign exchange rates. There was no connection between the two markets, although each was probably governed by speculative realising sales after the recent rapid advances. In the case of the Stock Exchange, it is probable enough that the interruption of business by the holiday induced precautionary sales, and with sterling at any rate the reactionary movement might reasonably be ascribed to the near approach of the British general election.

In regard to that event no one in London seems to imagine that a Labor victory is probable. But what will be the division of Parliamentary forces after the triangular contest which is now being conducted with such bitterness, or what will have happened either to the Ministerial majority or to its confused electoral issues, does not appear to be foreseen with any clearness. Sterling fell back 2 cents to the neighborhood of $4.35; it had been $4.40 on Monday, $4.26 a week before and $4.48 at the beginning of the month. Evidently the market has not yet found its bearings.

Yesterday's movements on the Stock Exchange were not particularly edifying. They consisted in a good deal of bidding-up and selling-down of stocks of secondary standing, the hand of the professional manipulator being everywhere visible. Prices consequently moved in confused and purposeless fashion, and there were one or two movements which approached again the line of manipulative scandal. Railway shares and the standard industrials hardly changed in price; it was, on the whole, a negligible market.

Returns of loadings on the railways for the week ended Nov. 17, footing up 991,745 cars, show the decrease in traffic usual at this time of year. The week's total fell below a million cars for the first time since the opening week of September; indeed, except for weeks with a holiday and for the August week in which President Harding's funeral was observed, it is the first interruption to the million-car record since the third week of last May. This last return still runs far beyond the total of any corresponding week on record; but it is following the usual tendency of the season. The question of interest now will be, how rapidly the traffic will decrease. Last year, the decline between this week and the last full week of December was from 967,564 cars to 824,591; in 1920, there was a fall in the same interval from 889,138 to 648,406.

In view of the sudden increase in buying of iron a week ago, and of the significance which revival of activity in that quarter has often possessed, the present week's reports on the market had been awaited with much interest. The midweek reviews of the trade publications state that the fortnight's orders for iron have exceeded a million tons. A week ago, the estimate of one week's purchases was 600,000 to 650,000. These figures show very exceptional activity; not, however, continuing at the pace of the third week in November.

The Iron Age notes the subsiding of the movement, partly because of the higher price, and reports that no visible evidence of the connection of the iron market's activity with the market for finished steel is yet obtainable. Reports from the steel trade, though not unfavorable, are still chiefly taking the shape of orders for early delivery. Meantime the Steel Corporation's mills are working at 90 per cent. of capacity and the independents at something less than 70. Six or seven weeks ago, the ratio was respectively 96 and 75.

MAXWELL MERGER OFF; WILSON QUITS AS HEAD

Negotiations to Combine With Studebaker Fail—New Car to Be Introduced.

The resignation of William Robert Wilson as President of the Maxwell Motors Corporation was announced yesterday. The announcement resulted in the circulation of rumors that the change in the executive head of the company was a direct result of the failure of the proposed merger of the company with the Studebaker Corporation. This was denied in semi-official circles yesterday, it being declared that the resignation of Mr. Wilson merely means that Walter P. Chrysler, now Chairman of the Board of Directors, will take a more active part in the management of the company.

It developed yesterday that the negotiations on the part of the Studebaker Corporation with the Maxwell organization were carried on by only one director of the former company and that when the proposition of a merger was presented at the Studebaker Directors' meeting on Tuesday the influential factors in the larger company strongly objected to the combination and as a result the matter was definitely dropped.

As a result of the failure of the negotiations it is reported that Maxwell Motors Company will introduce a new six-cylinder car before the close of the year, to be known as the Chrysler six and this car is expected to sell around $1,500. The new cars are expected to be produced by the Chalmers division of the company. It is also expected that the company will soon start negotiations toward refunding of the $3,839,000 notes which mature next June.

$4,896,000 In Gold Arrives.

A shipment of 136 boxes of gold valued at $4,896,000 arrived from England on the White Star liner Olympic, it was reported yesterday. Seventy-four boxes of gold valued at $2,664,000 were consigned to J. P. Morgan & Co. and sixty-two boxes valued at $2,232,000 to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Confused Movement of Stocks —Decline in European Exchange Rates.

Uncertain and conflicting movements in yesterday's stock market, with the general tendency of prices downward for the day as a whole, occurred simultaneously with decline in the foreign exchange rates. There was no connection between the two markets, although each was probably governed by speculative realising sales after the recent rapid advances. In the case of the Stock Exchange, it is probable enough that the interruption of business by the holiday induced precautionary sales, and with sterling at any rate the reactionary movement might reasonably be ascribed to the near approach of the British general election.

In regard to that event no one in London seems to imagine that a Labor victory is probable. But what will be the division of Parliamentary forces after the triangular contest which is now being conducted with such bitterness, or what will have happened either to the Ministerial majority or to its confused electoral issues, does not appear to be foreseen with any clearness. Sterling fell back 2 cents to the neighborhood of $4.35; it had been $4.40 on Monday, $4.26 a week before and $4.48 at the beginning of the month. Evidently the market has not yet found its bearings.

Yesterday's movements on the Stock Exchange were not particularly edifying. They consisted in a good deal of bidding-up and selling-down of stocks of secondary standing, the hand of the professional manipulator being everywhere visible. Prices consequently moved in confused and purposeless fashion, and there were one or two movements which approached again the line of manipulative scandal. Railway shares and the standard industrials hardly changed in price; it was, on the whole, a negligible market.

Returns of loadings on the railways for the week ended Nov. 17, footing up 991,745 cars, show the decrease in traffic usual at this time of year. The week's total fell below a million cars for the first time since the opening week of September; indeed, except for weeks with a holiday and for the August week in which President Harding's funeral was observed, it is the first interruption to the million-car record since the third week of last May. This last return still runs far beyond the total of any corresponding week on record; but it is following the usual tendency of the season. The question of interest now will be, how rapidly the traffic will decrease. Last year, the decline between this week and the last full week of December was from 997,564 cars to 834,591; in 1920, there was a fall in the same interval from 869,138 to 648,406.

In view of the sudden increase in buying of iron a week ago, and of the significance which revival of activity in that quarter has often possessed, the present week's reports on the market had been awaited with much interest. The mid-week reviews of the trade publications state that the fortnight's orders for iron have exceeded a million tons. A week ago, the estimate of one week's purchases was 600,000 to 650,000. These figures show very exceptional activity; not, however, continuing at the pace of the third week in November.

The Iron Age notes the subsiding of the movement, partly because of the higher price, and reports that no visible evidence of the connection of the iron market's activity with the market for finished steel is yet obtainable. Reports from the steel trade, though not unfavorable, are still chiefly taking the shape of orders for early delivery. Meantime the Steel Corporation's mills are working at 80 per cent. of capacity and the independents at something less than 70. Six or seven weeks ago, the ratio was respectively 90 and 75.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 28, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money was easier, rate softening to 4½ per cent. at midday, where it ruled until close, from an opening and renewal at 4¾. Dealers in fixed period funds reported unchanged conditions in that market, little new money being on offer, renewals mailing up bulk of business and being moved at 5 and 5¼ per cent. Most merchants' notes discounted at 5 per cent., which interior is accepting, but city institutions are not discounting at less than 5¼ per cent. Market, however, was quiet.

MAXWELL MERGER OFF; WILSON QUITS AS HEAD

Negotiations to Combine With Studebaker Fail—New Car to Be Introduced.

The resignation of William Robert Wilson as President of the Maxwell Motors Corporation was announced yesterday. The announcement resulted in the circulation of rumors that the change in the executive head of the company was a direct result of the failure of the proposed merger of the company with the Studebaker Corporation. This was denied in semi-official circles yesterday, it being declared that the resignation of Mr. Wilson merely means that Walter P. Chrysler, now Chairman of the Board of Directors, will take a more active part in the management of the company.

It developed yesterday that the negotiations on the part of the Studebaker Corporation with the Maxwell organization were carried on by only one director of the former company and that when the proposition of a merger was presented at the Studebaker Directors' meeting on Tuesday the influential factors in the larger company strongly objected to the combination and as a result the matter was definitely dropped. As a result of the failure of the negotiations it is reported that Maxwell Motors Company will introduce a new six-cylinder car before the close of the year, to be known as the Chrysler six, and this car is expected to sell around $1,500. The new cars are expected to be produced by the Cashmere division of the company. It is also expected that the company will soon start negotiations toward refunding of the $5,589,000 notes which mature next June.

$4,896,000 in Gold Arrives.

A shipment of 136 boxes of gold valued at $4,896,000 arrived from England on the White Star liner Olympic, it was reported yesterday. Seventy-four boxes of gold valued at $2,664,000 were consigned to J. P. Morgan & Co. and sixty-two boxes valued at $2,232,000 to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

FIVE CONCERNS PAY AN EXTRA DIVIDEND

Several Others Announce the Payments Due at This Time, While Only One Passes.

EASTERN ROAD PROSPERS

Buffalo & Susquehanna Stockholders Get Bonus of 2½ Per Cent. on Common.

Numerous dividend announcements were made yesterday by industrial and railroad corporations.

Directors of the Stromberg Carburetor Company declared an extra dividend of $1.50 a share and a quarterly dividend of $2 a share on the capital stock, placing the shares on an $8 annual dividend basis against $7 annually paid heretofore. Both the extra and regular dividend declared yesterday are payable Jan. 2 to stockholders of record Dec. 11. In connection with the dividends the company announced that net profits for the first nine months of 1923 amounted to 801,731 after all expenses and taxes, equal to $10.80 a share on the 75,000 shares of capital stock.

The American Bank Note Company announced an extra dividend of 10 per cent. or $5 a share on the $50 par value common stock, payable Dec. 31, to stockholders of record Dec. 17; also the regular quarterly dividend on the preferred stock.

An extra dividend of 4 per cent., in addition to the regular quarterly one of 3 per cent., was announced by the National Bank of Commerce. The dividends are payable Jan. 2 to stockholders of record Dec. 14.

Directors of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad declared an extra dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 1¾ per cent. They also declared the semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. on the outstanding preferred stock. All dividends are payable Dec. 30 to stockholders of record Dec. 15.

Directors of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation declared an initial dividend of 8 per cent. for the year 1923, payable Dec. 15. The company points out that while it operates as an independent banking institution, the General Motors Corporation owns its entire capital stock of $6,000,000, and thus acquires a return from the Acceptance Corporation of $480,000 for the year 1923.

An extra dividend of 25 cents a share has been declared on the Class A stock of the Chicago Nipple Manufacturing Company, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, both payable Jan. 1 to stockholders of record Dec. 15. This is the first dividend paid on the new stock, which was exchanged for the old.

Stockholders of the Yellow Cab Company, according to Chicago advices, approved an increase in the no par value capital stock of the company from 200,000 to 400,000 shares for the purpose of declaring a 100 per cent. stock dividend, action on which is expected at a directors' meeting next Monday.

Producers and Refiners' Corporation passed the quarterly dividend on the common stock. Three months ago the directors reduced the quarterly dividend form $1 to 50 cents a share. Control of this company has recently been acquired by the Prairie Oil and Gas Company.

Directors of the Bush Terminal Company declared the regular semi-annual dividend of $2.50 a share on the common stock and $3 a share on the preferred stock, both payable Jan. 15, to stockholders of record Jan. 2. The regular dividend of $1.75 a share was also declared on the preferred stock of the Bush Terminal Building Company.

Other companies which announced regular dividends included the Gulf States Steel Company, on its common stock, amounting to $1 a share, payable Jan. 2, to stockholders of record Dec. 14; Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company $1.25 on the common and $1.75 on the preferred, both payable Dec. 31, to stock of record Dec. 15, and William Cramp & Sons Ship and Engine Building Company, $1 on the capital stock, payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 15.

NEW HABIRSHAW PROPOSAL.

Stockholders' Protective Committee Issues a Circular of Advice.

Thomas C. Perkins, Chairman of the Stockholders' Protective Committee of the Habirshaw Electric Cable Company and its subsidiaries, who fought recently a reorganization proposal and whose opposition was sustained by the Court, yesterday mailed a circular to stockholders and creditors outlining new plans for reorganization.

Mr. Perkins says that "the next step for every bondholder who deposited with any of the committees it to demand a return of his bonds." Creditors who assigned claims, he said, "should also repudiate their assignment and demand a return of their papers, and "any bondholder or creditor who was misled into joining these committees, or was forced to act without full knowledge of the facts regarding the financial condition of the Habirshaw Company at the time the assignment of bond or claim was made, is clearly entitled to refuse to pay any fee or assessments as condition to the return of his property."

The letter further advises creditors to "keep this statement handy, and if any one—especially the old crowd—offers you a new reorganization plan to approve, don't act until you know what it's going to cost you; and if you don't understand the analysis of financial statistics, then go to your personal banker and ask his help."

The creditors are also presented with an analysis of the financial status of the company and affiliations at the close of business Sept. 29, 1923, prepared by Randolph Whitman for the Special Bondholders' Committee. This statement shows net sales of $5,822,835 for the first nine months of 1923, and net profits of $620,889 after all expenses, interest and other charges, and profit and loss adjustments amounting to $33,658 net. These figures, however, do not include provisions for depreciation, receivership or attorney fees.

BIG PIG IRON SALES KEEP MARKET BUSY

Orders for More Than 1,000,000 Tons Placed Within the Last Two Months.

PRICE SITUATION UNEVEN

Trade Journals See Activity Subsiding—Rail Buying Reported as Heavy.

Heavy buying of pig iron has been the outstanding feature in the iron and steel markets of the last week. More than 1,000,000 tons were placed on producers' books in the last two weeks, according to The Iron Age. The movement has now subsided, says that journal, partly in view of the advance of $1 to $2 a ton in foundry iron prices, but more because most of the largest consumers have provided their needs covering the first quarter of 1924.

"The effect on finished steel of this remarkable activity in the primary product alyet to be measured," it is added. "Users of steel, as is well known, will go over into the new year without change in their policy of scant buying. But the aggregate of current orders for early delivery is far from inconsiderable and on the whole sentiment has grown more favorable.

"The price situation in steel products is somewhat uneven. Over against the firmer stand of some sheet makers are further reports of concessions on plates. Generally speaking, the mills will have shipped most of the low-priced orders on their books by the end of December—that is, bars below 2.40c. and plates and shapes below 2.50c. Thus the real test on prices is looked for in the first month or two of the new year.

"It is expected that operations will fall off considerably in December. The Steel Corporation is now running at slightly over 80 per cent. of capacity, while the average for independent companies is less than 70. By the year-end the rate for the entire industry is likely to be about two-thirds."

The Iron Trade Review says, in part: "Confidence in the early appearance of active steel buying to meet the needs of the sound industrial and commercial situation in this country is growing, but new tonnage still is under restraint. Inventory and taxation considerations at this season apparently are strong curbing factors. The question of price also has a bearing, but this is now less important than in recent weeks.

"Railroad buying still is a market feature. The Pennsylvania rail order for 200,000 tons for 1924 now is released. The Baltimore & Ohio bought 15,000 tons of tie plates. The New York Central is inquiring for 30,000 tons of tie plates and 150,000 kegs of spikes and track bolts. Car orders this week total 2,000, and estimates of those in prospect now are raised to 95,000. Of the latter, about 30,000 are expected to materialize this year."

GERMAN KNIVES IN ENGLAND

Undersell British Cutlery With Unmarked Articles.

German competition has upset the hardware and cutlery trade of England, according to advices received by the Department of Commerce from England. The German articles, it is pointed out, are all unmarked, so that the purchaser is not aware of their origin. Competition is now subsiding to some extent, as Germany is unable to make delivery because of internal conditions.

The invoice prices of imported cutlery, compared with the higher British costs, are seen in the following quotations per dozen articles:

	German price per doz.	British costs per doz.
Pocket scissors, 3½-inch	6s 0d	10s 4d
Do, smaller	6s 0d	12s 4d

The managing director of Vickers' Sheffield works says: "It is possible that we may begin to pick up later on in the year but at the present time there is no indication. A great deal has been made of the Ruhr settlement, but for any settlement we have there will not be beneficial to the steel trade generally of this country."

CAR LOADINGS DECLINE.

Report for Week of Nov. 17 Shows a Total of 991,745.

Reports of car loadings for the week ended Nov. 17 showed a total of 991,745. This is the first drop below the million-a-week rate since May 26 of this year. There were four other weeks in the half-year period when the loadings did not reach the million mark, but in each case it was because of holidays.

The Western district again showed the largest increase in percentage of freight handled as compared with the same week last year, with an increase of 11.6 per cent. The Eastern district showed an increase of 2.5 per cent. and the Southern district 4.9 per cent.

Merchandise and miscellaneous loadings for the week totaled 603,659, which was 19,872 cars less than the preceding week, but 50,927 more than in the same week of 1922.

Car loadings for four weeks, compared with the previous three years, follow:

	1923.	1922.	1921.	1920.
Nov. 17.....	991,745	907,544	786,671	880,126
Nov. 10.....	1,036,067	944,186	755,777	927,886
Nov. 3.....	1,033,778	979,851	837,570	916,615
Oct. 27.....	1,073,985	999,027	860,693	951,242

The record in loadings for all time was made in the last week of September this year, when 1,097,274 cars were loaded.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Sharp Declines Intersperse the List, Particular Pressure Against Sterling—Scandinavians Up.

With the exception of the Scandinavian exchanges, all other European remittances were sharply lower yesterday. Particular pressure was directed against sterling, huge amounts of export bills covering shipments of cotton, grain and oil, sending London checks down 2 cents under Tuesday's closing to $4.35 1-16. French, Italian, Belgian, Swiss and Holland bills were sympathetically lower. In all instances first prices were the best, the improvement which followed initial dealings being negligible and represented profit taking purchases by previous sellers. Weakness originated in London, dealers asserting that the steady stream of offerings from this source, in contrast with the scanty initiative from buyers, was responsible for the break.

The Danish krone improved 10 points to 17.82 cents, and the Norwegian 16 points to 15.02 cents, Swedish selling up 3 points to 26.30. French francs, at 5.33⅛ cents, were 5¼ points down; Italian yielded 2½ points to 4.30⅝ cents, and Belgian was 3½ points lower at 4.59½ cents. Far Easterns were heavy on lower silver prices.

German mark was nominally quoted at 15 cents per trillion, or at the rate of 6,666 billion for one dollar, compared with 4,000 billion a week ago and 8,000 a year ago.

40 RAILROADS NOW SHOW OCTOBER GAIN

Their Combined Net Income Is Reported as $70,149,444 for the Month.

25% INCREASE OVER 1922

Improvement Extends to Northwest, With the Great Northern Setting a New Mark.

Of forty railroads in all parts of the country which have published their October reports to date, the total net income is $70,149,444, equal to an increase of 25 per cent., compared with the total for October a year ago. Gross revenue was $390,396,797 for October, against $365,375,743 in the corresponding month of 1922.

The majority of the reports, added to those already published, showed an increase in net income over September and above October of last year. On the forty railroads the gross income for the ten months' period totaled $3,534,857,903, while the net operating income was $553,609,237, or more than 20 per cent. in excess of the first ten months of 1922.

Outstanding in the reports, as showing that the improvement extends to the Northwestern railroads, was the report of the Great Northern. The net operating income of that road was $5,294,338, the largest in its history. It compares with $2,721,327 in the same month last year, $3,987,774 in 1921 and $2,308,274 in October, 1920. This brings the net income of the Great Northern for the ten months' period this year up to $18,569,505, as compared with $12,805,569 in the same period of 1922.

Despite the fact that the October gross income of the Southern Railroad, amounting to $13,477,443, was the largest for a corresponding month since October, 1920, the net income was only $2,615,771, as compared with $2,711,990 in the same month last year. For the ten months' period the net income was $22,686,481, against $16,613,954 in the corresponding period of 1922.

In the coal carriers the Lehigh Valley shows large gains. A net income of $1,383,260 is reported for October, while the net income for September was less than half a million dollars. For October, 1922, the company reported a deficit of $635,849. The net in October, 1920, was $1,265,514.

The Delaware & Hudson's net income for October was $624,593, a substantial gain over the $119,872 reported in the same month last year.

The St. Louis-San Francisco reports net earnings of $1,489,231.

State Asking Receivership for Bank to Protect Small Depositors of $1,000,000.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 28.—The Cosmopolitan Trust Company was ordered closed at noon today by Bank Commissioner George H. Newhall. This action followed the taking over on Monday last by the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company of the business of the Westminster Bank to save it from forced liquidation.

The Cosmopolitan Trust Company cleared largely through the Westminster Bank. It had nearly a million in small deposits and a large Christmas Club fund, mostly from Italians of small means.

The Cosmopolitan was closed, Commissioner Newhall said, "to protect depositors, since they had a run on the bank this morning." He conferred with Attorney General Herbert L. Carpenter this afternoon, preliminary to filing a petition for receivership.

SEABOARD AIR LINE GAINS.

Railway Expected to Earn Its Full Fixed Charges This Year.

According to an analysis prepared by W. C. Langley & Co., members of the Stock Exchange, the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company will earn its full fixed charges this year, as well as a balance above requirements, for the adjustment 5 per cent. bonds. Interest on these bonds was deferred on Aug. 1, 1921. The road has purchased and rebuilt its equipment and for the eight months ended Aug. 31 there was a reduction of more than $700,000 in the cost of hire of equipment.

Total income for the eight months ended Aug. 31, according to this analysis, was $5,241,353, an increase of $2,346,343 over the same period in 1922. Increases in the company's traffic in cotton and in iron and steel and miscellaneous commodities have been responsible for this increase.

KIRBY CONTROL AUCTIONED.

Majority Interest in Petroleum Company Brings $100,000.

Many blocks of miscellaneous securities were sold at the public auction yesterday by Adrian H. Muller & Co. at 14 Vesey Street. Such sales, which are expected to increase weekly until the close of the year, are generally understood to be for the purpose of establishing a sales record for income tax returns. The securities generally are those which have no immediate market.

The outstanding feature in yesterday's sale of securities was the offering of 401,488 shares of the stock of the Kirby Petroleum Company, representing a controlling interest in the company. The block was sold for $100,000, or less than 25 cents a share, after bids of $40,000 and $52,000. The auctioneers would not divulge the names of the principals. Later in the day 100 shares of the stock sold at $2.12½ a share and 200 shares at $2 a share. This stock sold as high as $44 a share in 1920, and the lowest price recorded previous to yesterday's auction was $1.50 a share.

Another transaction yesterday which attracted attention of the street was the sale of 2,916 shares of Atlantic Lobos preferred at $8 a share.

Sells Five Stores to Liggett Co.

The National Drug Stores Corporation has sold five of its stores to the Louis K. Liggett Company, which is controlled by the United Drug Company. Officials of the National Corporation, which operates twenty-six stores in various cities, said yesterday that the sale did not involve any of its principal stores, as had been reported in the financial district.

Exchange Lists Salvador Bonds.

The recently sold issue of Republic of Salvador 8 per cent. bonds was listed yesterday on the Stock Exchange. The quotation was 100 bid and 100¼ asked, all sales having been at par.

SHIPPING LINE FACES WORLD-WIDE STRIKE

Executive Staffs of Nippon Yusen Kaisha to Quit Dec. 1 to Enforce Demands.

AN INTERNAL STRUGGLE

Clerical Forces Say Technical Workers Have Too Much Control Over Company's Policies.

A world-wide tie-up of the lines operated by Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the largest Japanese steamship company, is threatened owing to the action taken by local executive staffs throughout the world, it was learned yesterday.

According to information reaching the New York offices of the concern at 10 Bridge Street, the managers and clerical staff, acting in concert with the pursers and others who are engaged in paper work on the ships themselves, have handed in their resignations, to take effect from Dec. 1, unless their demands are met.

The threatened strike is the outcome of a two-year fight between the clerical side of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha and the technical side over the question of control of the policies of the company. There is no suggestion of a struggle for control of the finances.

The internecine war began in 1921 when the navigation and engineering staffs were permitted to have an equal say in matters to personnel. Since then the office forces assert, the technical staff has gradually assumed complete control. The underlying bitterness of the dispute comes from the fact that almost without exception the office staffs and ship's clerical officers are graduates of the leading Japanese universities and they resent, it is understood, the interference of those who, while they may be capable of guiding the destinies of a ship, are not qualified by their education to guide the destinies of a big steamship company.

Mr. K. Sawai, the manager of the New York branch, yesterday refused to comment on the proposed strike beyond admitting that the managers of the various offices throughout the world already had tendered their resignations.

It was learned, however, from another source closely in touch with the Japanese shipping situation, that the local managers have informed the main office at Tokio that the executives will cease work on Dec. 1 unless they are granted a greater share in the management.

The Nippon Yusen Kaisha maintains offices at London, Paris, Seattle, Hongkong, Kobe, Nagasaki, Tokio, Yokohama, Shanghai, Singapore, Bombay and Calcutta. It is understood that the clerical staffs in all these cities are involved, together with the clerical staffs on every liner in the Far East passenger service. It is said that altogether about 1,800 employes will go out on strike or hand in their resignations unless they are granted immediate satisfaction.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The first international strike on record has been brought off by the Japanese clerical staff of Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the Japanese shipping company. London Japanese clerks have, as they term it, "withdrawn their services" because they are dissatisfied with the reorganization scheme introduced by the Tokio management on Nov. 14, and Glasgow, Liverpool and Hamburg employes have followed suit. Many of the strikers occupy well-paid and responsible positions, and their grievances concern the type of men elected to fill such posts throughout the world. It is understood here that similar action has been taken by Japanese employes in all the company's offices throughout America, Europe, India and Australia.

Island Oil Stock Stricken.

The Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday ordered stricken from the trading list the stock of the Island Oil and Transport Corporation. Hines to refrain from transferring any patients from Legion Hospital there who desired to remain. COTTON PRICE SOARS AS DEMAND EXPANDS

Rush of Mill Buying Pushes Quotations for Gain of 83 to 112 Points.

The pace of the cotton market was accelerated yesterday with a degree of tension not witnessed in many years. Excitement prevailed on all three Exchanges, starting in Liverpool and spreading to both New York and New Orleans. After an opening rise of over a quarter of a cent, an expanding demand for contracts developed which absorbed extensive realizing sales at steadily rising prices, and final quotations were highest of the session, a cent above Tuesday. For the past 48 hours a rush of mill buying has provided the main price stimulus, contracts being supplied from speculative quarters. Southern spot markets rose half a cent to a cent a pound on sales of 50,000 bales. Prices here gained 83 to 112 points.

As though having digested all the cotton for sale in Liverpool between 20d. and 20.50d., a process that required virtually all of last week's operations, foreign prices resumed the upward movement with violence. But for the first time recently, the opening tone abroad was described as excited. It was not long after the opening that a similar note of tension became discernible on the floor of the local Exchange. Initial quotations showed an advance of 30 to 40 points into new high territory for the season. This carried December, March and May above the 36-cent level and started one of the most active and excited sessions in years. Strength of Liverpool proved so great and demand for contracts at that centre so urgent that for an hour arbitrage transactions reached a large total. Houses with foreign connections bought steadily in New York against sales in Liverpool, thus undoing part of an extensive straddle interest still outstanding between the two markets. Contracts to meet this demand were supplied by commission houses and other interests, blocks of cotton coming out on and immediately after the opening. Each new advance attracted profit-taking from some quarter or other, but the quantity for sale failed to halt the rising tendency. Liverpool closed at the top, some positions showing a gain of over 50 English points, with New York up half a cent at the end of the first hour.

Reports from several dry goods quarters that textiles were being moved more freely at the advanced prices asked and Southern advices reflecting continued activity in spot transactions stimulated the buying movement as the day wore on. Trade calling and price fixing seemed to increase with the rise in values. As though convinced that the steady upward movement had a basis in the relation between supply and demand rather than being attributable to any speculative activity, mills that have persistently delayed purchases entered the market on an extensive scale. The appearance of so many private reports placing the outturn of this season's yield between 9,500,000 and 9,750,000 bales, together with absence of any pressure from spot directions, influenced sentiment in trade quarters. To supply this demand contracts were sold by many holders who bought at lower levels and were disposed to take profits as the result of an unusually rapid advance the last few days. Shortly after midday another half cent had been added to quotations, December selling at 37 cents and even July crossing the 36-cent level. At various stages in the rise, the market ran into blocks of contracts, either January, March or May, but this cotton was all absorbed, and May sold above 36¾ cents. Instead of the usual effects of profit-taking before a holiday in the shape of easing the market, fears of a further violent advance abroad today seemed to fan excitement in the last hour. Prices rose to new high levels and the market closed at highest figures of the session, with the buying movement unabated.

Nearly 10,000 bales reached New York on consignment yesterday and the local stock market has increased materially recently. The running stock is now 73,000 bales, compared with 46,000 a week ago. The amount of certified cotton here is now 24,000 bales and that in licensed warehouses exceeds 33,000.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

NEAR END OF LONG FLIGHT.

Marine Aviators Will Begin Today on Last Leg of 10,953-Mile Trip.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Lieutenants F. O. Rogers and H. D. Palmer, Marine Corps Air Service, will leave the Marine Flying Field at Quantico, Va., tomorrow to complete the last leg of a flight of 10,953 miles, which will land them again in Haiti at the point from which they started Sept. 10.

The aviators and their mechanics have traveled to Washington, St. Louis, El Paso, San Francisco, Omaha, back to Washington and Quantico, and are now to go to Langley Field, Paris Island, S. C.; Miami, Havana, and finally Port-au-Prince, Haiti.

The flight will be the longest by American airmen and the second in distance ever attempted in the world. Its purpose is to demonstrate the mobility of Marine Corps aviation units stationed at distant posts. So far, no forced landing has been necessary, nor have there been any defects in the planes by reason of accidents.

GOLDEN RULE DAY APPEAL.

Promises for Aid to Near East Relief Will Measure Response.

To measure the response of New Yorkers to the olden Rule Day appeal, set for Sunday next, a big "golden rule" was yesterday erected outside the headquarters of the Near East Relief, at 151 Fifth Avenue. Every 1,000 promises to eat a "refugee" meal on that day and send the balance for the support of Armenian and other orphans in the Near East results in the addition of a foot to the rule. Yesterday the length reached thirty feet, and the ruler was ordered removed to the roof, where it could grow unhampered by the walls.

The rule was set up yesterday by twenty girls, employes of the Near East Relief. At first they scorned male assistance, but after a struggle of twenty minutes they were compelled to call the janitor of the building to their aid.

CALLS BOLL WEEVIL A NATIONAL MENACE

Head of New Orleans Cotton Exchange Says Price Increase May Be Result.

FEARS FOR COMPETITION

Declares British Are Already Developing Production Which Will Affect America.

The ravages of the boll weevil constitute a nation-wide problem and the United States will lose its supremacy in the production of cotton unless the pest is checked, according to Edward S. Butler, President of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, who is at the Roosevelt Hospital here convalescing from an operation.

Mr. Butler said that the seriousness of the boll weevil was not fully appreciated in the East, which is as vitally affected as the South when the mounting prices of cotton and cotton goods are considered. He declared the weevil had eaten its way from the Mexican border to the Atlantic Coast, and that since its invasion no State in the Union had been able to produce a normal crop.

Referring to the 37-cent quotation made by cotton yesterday, a new high record since the cotton boom immediately following the war, Mr. Butler said that at that time cotton reached 43 cents a pound and that "it can easily reach that price again." He was optimistic that the weevil could be checked with the help of Washington, he said.

"Prior to the appearance of the boll weevil the American cotton crop has been as high as 16,000,000 bales in one season. In the past seven years six crops have been failures and I do not believe in any one year there has been a crop of more than 13,000,000 bales. In the past three years our crops have been woefully small, approximating 8,000,000 bales in 1921, 9,000,000 bales in 1922, and it is estimated that this year's crop will not be much over 9,000,000 bales. Yet this season the largest acreage was planted to cotton than has ever before been known in this country.

"It is generally believed in the East that the South is prosperous because of the high prices obtained for cotton. This assumption is not correct as the farmer's ruined fields more than offset the high prices he gets for the cotton he has to sell. As an instance, Georgia's cotton crop a few years ago was about 2,500,000 bales. It is now less than 600,000 bales.

"The Sea Island crop which used to average more than 100,000 bales has been reduced to a few thousand. The world is starving for cheap cotton and if it can't get it in America it will go elsewhere. Already rivals are in the making. The British Empire is studying ways and means of increasing the cotton production and the staple is being grown in South Africa and Australia, except which would be a large cotton producer, is again sowing her fields."

VETOES AMERICAN PLAN TO MODERNIZE TOKIO

Reconstruction Board Votes to Rebuild the City Cheaply on Its Old Lines.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

TOKIO, Nov. 28.—The Greater Tokio Reconstruction Board, after laboring sixty days, has produced a plan which is a great shock to those who expected a magnificent new city to take the place of the haphazard old town destroyed by the earthquake of Sept. 1. The board disregarded the advice of Dr. Charles A. Beard, an American planner who outlined a proposal for a new and safe style of metropolis.

Originally there was talk of spending 7,000,000,000 yen (3,500,000,000), but now it has been decided to expend only slightly in excess of 1,500,000,000 yen ($250,000,000). Foreseeing this Dr. Beard left the city discouraged a week ago.

The main results were made at the board meeting yesterday. Home Minister Goto tendered his resignation, but Premier Yamamoto finally persuaded him to remain in the Cabinet.

At every session of the Reconstruction Board there was a clash between the idealists who desired to take advantage of the situation to reconstruct the city along the most modern lines, and business interests, who desired reconstruction to go along the lines of least resistance, that is, the quickest building and the least interference with established physical lines.

The latter apparently won every one present and Tokio is to rise again practically along the old lines, with haphazard streets, leaving every fire danger existent.

The press generally expresses keen disappointment over the situation, but the public is interested only in the earliest possible resumption of former activities.

ALL GRAINS LOWER IN DULL MARKETS

Pending Holiday and December Deliveries Lead to Sales for Small Profits.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—With Saturday first delivery day on December contracts and tomorrow a holiday, longs in December wheat and corn started to liquidate and carried prices off rather sharply. December was ¾ cent and corn 1⅝ cents at the last, wheat going to 8 cents under and corn to 2 cents under the May. Deferred deliveries, however, showed considerable resistance to pressure, especially in corn, which were off only ⅛@¼ cent, while in wheat losses were ⅛@½ cent.

There is an utter absence of news of striking importance in wheat and the market is in a rut, with a majority of traders now operating for very small profits. The day's range was only ⅛@¼ cent, with the close at the bottom. Cash houses bought December and sold May, while longs did the reverse.

Primary arrivals were down to 684,000 bushels, against 1,026,000 the previous week and compared with 2,820,000 last year. Shipments were 1,203,000 bushels, against 865,000 the previous week and 1,820,000 last year.

The visible supply is expected to show only a small increase Monday. Immense wheat shipments are looked for from Fort William and Port Arthur the next few days, and it is estimated that possibly 15,000,000 bushels will be cleared by Monday night. Indications are that deliveries on December contracts here will be light until after the close of navigation. Clearances of 400,000 bushels were made over night for Buffalo.

Local professionals who have been long on December corn started to liquidate their holdings and transfer in the May, causing a sharp break in the nearby delivery. There were also selling of December and buying of May on a liberal scale by a local house to close a big spread. Country offerings and consignments are smaller and the farmer is not selling at all freely, some interior dealers going as far as to predict that the big movement of corn will not come until after the turn of the year. It is understood that Minneapolis sold some corn to exporters during the day, but quotations were not given.

Elevators have started to buy cash corn for deliveries on December trades. Sample values failed to fully reflect the break in futures. Omaha has gone to about w's shipping basis under more Eastern markets, and readjustment is regarded as completed as far as that market is concerned.

Primary arrivals were 1,534,000 bushels, against 1,006,000 bushels the previous week and 1,950,000 bushels last year. Shipments 664,000 bushels, against 478,000 bushels the previous week and 868,000 bushels last year. Oats were off ⅛@¼ in sympathy with corn, while rye closed ⅛@½ cent lower on Northwestern hedging pressure.

EXPECT $50,669,709 FROM GASOLINE TAX

Prospective Record Consumption in 1924 Likely to Be Very Much Higher Next Year.

PREDICT INCREASE IN USE

Also the Number of States Where Direct Levy Is Effective Will Be Larger.

The direct tax on gasoline consumption, which is now being collected in thirty-five States in the Union has met with such success that the respective communities are looking forward to 1924 for even greater collections, based upon expected record-breaking consumption of gasoline next year. At the close of the current year approximately 14,000,000 motor cars and trucks are expected to be in operation in this country.

Taxes collected on gasoline aggregated $8,669,174 in the first six months of the current year, and it is estimated that total collections for the full year will approximate $17,000,000. The smaller total for 1923, as compared with the expected receipts for 1924, is due in part to the fact that many States which now impose taxes did not adopt laws covering such a tax until late this year, while, on the other hand, consumption is expected to be much larger next year, due to the larger number of cars in operation. At the same time, many of the laws adopted recently do not become effective until the new year.

With gasoline selling as low as at present, the tax imposed makes up a considerable part of the wholesale cost of gasoline. The average tank wagon price of gasoline, according to the Row, Jones & Co. review, in thirty representative cities "is now 12.69 cents a gallon, while State taxes range from 1 to 3 cents a gallon. Average tax of the thirty-five States is 1.81 cents, or 14 per cent. of the average tank wagon price. Percentage in some States is much higher. Georgia, for example, having a gasoline tax of 3 cents a gallon, while the tank wagon price in Atlanta is 13 cents a gallon. The tax thus adds 23 per cent. to wholesale cost. With the addition of service station charges, the 1¼ to 4 cents a gallon in various localities, the tax becomes a somewhat smaller proportion of the final cost to the consumer.

"Cars and trucks now in use in the United States are estimated at about 14,000,000, and, based on the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce calculation of 434 gallons of gasoline used a year by each vehicle, domestic consumption of gasoline by motor cars is estimated at 5,936,000,000 gallons in 1923. About one-half of this is in States having gasoline tax laws, and the total yield of gasoline taxes will probably exceed $50,000,000 in 1924, when a number of State tax laws become effective."

PREDICT INCREASES IN RAIL EARNINGS

Net for Common Stock of Many Roads to Show Gain in 1923, Experts Say.

PENNSYLVANIA IN THE LEAD

Total Net Income for Nine Months $68,142,000—Interest in Recapture Clause Explained.

Material increases in the net earnings of a large majority of the principal railroads are predicted for 1923. That the annual rate per share of common stock will be much greater than in 1922 if the present ratio of earnings is maintained for the remainder of the year, is the opinion of the students of railroad problems. Figuring that the ratio of earnings for the remaining months this year should continue at the rate of the first nine months, it is pointed out that twenty-seven out of a group of thirty-five of the leading railroads will show large increases.

These predictions indicate that the earnings of the New York Central, for example, will reach $22.80 a share on the common stock, while the Atlantic Coast Line earns $19.60, Baltimore & Ohio $18.10 and the Chesapeake & Ohio $15.80. All of these figures, it is pointed out, are contingent on the fact that business maintains a ratio in the last three months of this year equal to what it has in the first nine. The amount of traffic handled in November and the early reports for October indicate that this will be the case.

A study of the figures, it is pointed out by men in the financial district, may account for the anxiety with which certain of the railroads have joined together to push the fight on the recapture cause of the transportation act of 1920 in hope of getting that controversy settled before the first of the year. Earnings statements for the first nine months indicate that a number of the roads are likely to come under the provisions of the recapture clause this year.

Reports for the first nine months show that the largest net income was earned by the Pennsylvania, with a total of $68,142,000. The New York Central was a close second, with $66,497,000; the Southern Pacific third, with $37,885,000, and the Baltimore & Ohio fourth, with $34,953,000. The Atchison earned $29,406,000, the Union Pacific $24,212,000, and the Illinois Central $18,112,000.

Despite the large earnings the railroads made unusual expenditures for maintenance. For example, the ratio of maintenance to gross on the average of the thirty-five railroads was 27 per cent. Such figures indicate that the roadbed and the equipment on the average road are in better condition than for many years.

The following table, prepared by the statistical department of Hornblower & Weeks from the figures of the Interstate Commerce Commission, shows the net income of the thirty-five railroads for the first nine months this year, the annual rate based on these returns, the annual rate in 1922, and the ratio of maintenance to gross income:

DENIES FULLER, M'GEE SAW SHOW WITH GUARD

Federal Marshal Brands as a Lie Rumor They Visited Fulton Theatre Tuesday Night.

It was rumored in the theatrical district and in the Federal Court building yesterday that Edward M. Fuller and William F. McGee, members of the bankrupt brokerage firm of E. M. Fuller & Co., occupied front row seats at the Fulton Theatre on Tuesday night under guard of two deputy marshals. This was the performance at which Louise Groody, McGee's wife, opened in a new French musical comedy, "One Kiss." Both prisoners are confined to Governor's Island on charges of contempt of court, having been taken there from Raymond Street jail on Aug. 2.

The rumor of the theatre visit reached United States Marshal William G. Hecht, who said he would make a speedy investigation. Two deputy marshals are assigned to the duty of seeing that Fuller and McGee are detained on Governor's Island until such time as the court changes its order of confinement. At 7o'clock last night Marshal Hecht said over the telephone:

"I have investigated the story and found it to be a lie. There wasn't a word of truth in it."

Asked if his investigation was concluded he replied: "No, it is still going on and I expect a full report in a few days."

In a telephonic conversation last night Fuller denied the report, saying that he had been visited by a corporal of the guard at 10 and 10:30 P. M. on Tuesday and that McGee was with him. This corporal reported to a superior officer last night that he had talked with Fuller and McGee on Tuesday night at about the time stated by Fuller.

COTTON FIRM LOST $1,125,000 IN SHORTS

Scott & Norris, Says Manager, Used Fictitious Accounts to Evade Exchange Rule.

FALSE NAMES ENDORSED

Efforts to Avert Crash Futile, Declares Roundtree, and Firm Failed for $3,000,000.

Carlisle Roundtree, manager of the cotton brokerage firm of Scott & Norris, which failed on Nov. 16 with liabilities estimated at $3,000,000, testified yesterday at a bankruptcy hearing before Referee Harold P. Coffin, 217 Broadway, that in the fifteen days preceding the crash the firm went short of cotton in an effort to recoup its losses. The firm, he said, used fictitious names and accounts to get around the ruling of the New York Cotton Exchange which forbids trading with odd-lot men.

Roundtree was examined by Tracy S. Voorhees, attorney for the receiver. He testified that Scott & Norris went short of 56,000 bales of cotton and that cotton then advanced $25 a bale. He said that some of the short accounts were covered, but estimated the total losses at $1,125,000.

While Scott & Norris were short of the market, Roundtree said, his two brothers, Maxwell and Louis U. Roundtree, of the firm of Peabody & Adams, were long of cotton and made large profits in the same period.

Names Cotton Exchange Firms.

Roundtree told Attorney Voorhees and Referee Coffin that Scott & Norris had a number of transactions with Peabody & Adams and with New York Cotton Exchange firms. All these accounts, the witness said, were in fictitious names. Other member firms of the Cotton Exchange with which, according to Roundtree, Scott & Norris did business were W. E. Hutton & Co., M. H. Rothschild & Co., Lake Brothers, Block, Maloney & Co., J. R. Williston & Co. and Ware & Tenney.

Fictitious names used, he said, were F. L. Bernell, R. L. McLane and V. Powell. Checks in these names, he said, were given to Cotton Exchange firms for margins after the false names had been endorsed on the back of the checks.

"What part did you actually play in this business?" asked Attorney Voorhees.

"I signed the checks for my firm," said the witness.

"What else did you do?" questioned Referee Coffin.

"I also signed the endorsement of the non-existent persons," replied Roundtree.

Orders Checks Produced.

Referee Coffin ordered checks totaling more than $50,000, and said to be payments from Scott & Norris to Peabody & Adams, to be introduced as evidence. It also was brought out that both firms occupied offices in the same suite.

"Did you take any measures to stop the coming crash?" asked Mr. Voorhees.

"It came so quickly," was the answer, "that it was on us almost before we knew about it. Some coverings were made, but they were negligible. When he saw failure was inevitable our furniture was sold to Peabody & Adams for $6,000."

"What happened in the last few days of your speculations?" asked Referee Coffin.

"We had a run on us which we could not stop. Most of the accounts with the members of the Cotton Exchange were closed out because we could not put up the necessary margin. The one with the Hutton firm expired when the Exchange made its ruling about trading 'with the enemy,' as it were."

For three days before the failure, Roundtree said, the volume of business was so great that clerks remained on duty night and day. The records got behindhand, he added, and he himself had to come to the office at 6 in the morning and stay until 3 the next day.

Scott & Norris were closed on the day of their bankruptcy by the Attorney General under a Martin act injunction. The attorney for the receiver said yesterday that the assets, so far as known, were "trifling." He will seek, however, to have declared invalid a number of payments, about $125,000, made a few days before the failure.

TELLS OF HOUSING SURVEY.

Stein Says Bureau Will Have Report for Legislature on Jan. 1.

The Bureau of Housing and Regional Planning will be ready to report to the Legislature Jan. 1 on its four months of activity, it was announced yesterday by Chairman Clarence S. Stein. After that the bureau, which is a permanent body, plans to get down to the task of preparing a real housing program for the State, of the country.

Summing up the four months' work of the bureau Mr. Stein said: "We have conducted the most thorough survey ever made in New York City or elsewhere of the relation between income and rents." About 5,000 families representing various income groups furnished important information, he said.

COAL SUIT THREATENS BIG FEDERAL DAMAGES

Operators Seek to Recover Losses Due to Government Requisition During the Strike.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—Judgments of more than $25,000,000 in favor of bituminous coal operators throughout the country, Government officials said, may hinge upon the outcome of a suit begun in the United States District Court here today. During the strike of 1919-20 the Government requisitioned practically the entire available supply of bituminous coal and diverted it to thirty-nine railroads whose transportation facilities were threatened. The present suit is an outgrowth.

The plaintiff is Archibald McNeil & Sons Company, bituminous coal operators, of New York, with a claim for almost $350,000. The company seeks "reasonable compensation" for the requisitioned coal on the basis of existing market values at the time the commodity was taken. Contending it had the coal ready for export, the company made the further claim that the Government should pay it the prices its foreign customers would have paid.

Liability of the Government, it was said, depended upon whether the coal was sequestered by former President Wilson "for the common defense" or taken from the control of the operators purely for the purposes of the railroads in compliance with orders by the Director General of Railroads.

Joseph L. Kun, Special Assistant United States Attorney General, and Albert Ward, a former official of the Railroad Administration, who is aiding the Government in its present suit, said they believed the case would undoubtedly go to the Supreme Court and that if final action were against the Government it would be obliged to pay bituminous operators between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

Veils Are Selling Better.

Wholesalers here say that, as compared with last year, sales of made veils and veilings show an increase. The demand, however, is spotty, stores in certain sections doing better than others in selling this merchandise. The novelty of the narrow nose veil was a factor in reviving interest and this type continues to be accorded favor. Square scroll made veils have come in for attention recently and some wholesalers are pushing these. There is also a demand reported for the straight drape veil, with novel borders. The desired shades are black, brown, golden brown, beige and gray.

***

Cotton Rise Helps Gray Goods.

The further sharp rise in cotton yesterday had the effect of stimulating demand, but of limiting business through the unwillingness of many sellers to trade with the staple in its present uncertain position. Among the business done, most of which was in printcloths, were January-March sales of 38½-inch 64-60s at 11½ cents. January deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 12 cents, and 39½ cents was paid for 38½-inch 60-48s for similar shipment. The sheeting end of the market was very firm, but not so active as printcloths. Prices were based on 13¾ cents for 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings.

***

Sheer Laces in Request.

Of the laces in demand, the narrow sheer ones from three to twelve inches wide are most favored. The vogue for tier effects is a factor in increasing sales. The call for the wider kinds, according to a leading wholesaler, is not very active. This dealer spoke well yesterday of demi-flouncings, which he believes will go well in the Spring. The favored shades, he said, are black, ivory, pongee and white. While the demand, as a whole, for laces is not all that could be desired, there is a trend toward increased use of them. The comparative cheapness of foreign laces has put the domestic ones on a highly competitive basis.

***

To Be Conservative in Cutting.

Owing to the generally unsatisfactory results of the Fall season, the garment stock houses are planning greater conservation than ever in their cutting operations for Spring. Plans so far developed for the new season contemplate little active cutting until about the turn of the year, although the usual lines for display will soon be available in the showrooms. The mistakes of the Fall season, coupled with the poor selling weather, have shown the importance of avoiding rushing the season with too heavy early stocks. Under conditions which have prevailed during the last six months, it is pointed out, the immediate delivery houses suffered most from the large variety of adverse circumstances, and they have no desire to see their effects repeated in the Spring.

***

Much Latitude in Millinery.

The latitude in millinery styles this season is well illustrated by a window display of one of the best-known local specialty shops. In this window five hats are shown, and no two of them are made of the same material. One of them is made of strip felt braided in a loose weave. Another is made of velour and a third of faille. The fourth claims satin for its basic material, and the fifth is made up of metallic cloth. The trimmings are as varied as the materials, and the finished hats tell a quite accurate story of the unusual situation that buyers are facing in assembling a salable stock. Never before, according to trade authorities, has a season been so puzzling in that it has failed to produce any style that a buyer could "tie to" with safety.

Offers Novel Souvenir Canes.

A local wholesaler of novelty merchandise is now offering to the trade women's swagger canes in various colored woods, with tops and ferrules of bakelite, that are especially designed for souvenirs of fraternal fairs, bazaars or other functions. The heads of these canes bear on their tops colored insignia of the Elks, Masons, Knights of Columbus, Shriners, &c., and they are offered in blue, red, brown and other colors at $18 a dozen. The same wholesaler is planning soon to bring out similar canes designed for Winter resort souvenirs. These will show on their tops the names of the resorts where they were purchased and the seals of the States in which the resorts are located. Canes similar to them will also be offered as souvenirs for college dances and other affairs. The heads of his canes showing the college seal and its colors.

***

Dress Goods Demand Inactive.

Little change is noted in the demand for dress goods. The quiet conditions since the showing of the Spring lines by the mills still prevail, and, if anything, are more accentuated. The buying by the retail stores is the one bright spot in the situation, as their turnover of dress goods is running considerably ahead of last year. Little new buying is being done by garment manufacturers, who are going ahead very cautiously in making commitments for the new season. This applies particularly to the makers of garments in volume. The higher grade dress goods lines are well under order, although the leading mills making these cloths, it is understood, could take on considerably more business. Leading sellers apparently expect no marked change until the holidays are past and Spring garment manufacturing gets actively under way.

***

Holding "One-Day" Sales.

In the efforts of the stores to speed up turnover, the idea of holding "one day" sales in which the merchandise of a certain department is featured is gaining great favor with retailers. Many of them have staged these events during the past few weeks, and merchandise managers say that the results have been so good that an increased number of them will be held in the immediate future. Conspicuous in the merchandise offered at these sales have been ready-to-wear garments, lamps, rugs and radio outfits, but the idea is described as applicable to practically any merchandise. The wholesale market is scoured for the goods, which are offered to the consumer at lower prices, and in certain instances a definite mark is set for the total sales. One chain of ready-to-wear stores on a recent Saturday made $500,000 the figure to be reached, and it is said that this goal was attained.

***

Burlap Users Marking Time.

Users of burlap in this market have assumed an attitude of watchful waiting, and while they are buying no futures they are keeping close watch on the nearby positions and are covering such wants as are absolutely necessary. The quiet of the market is ascribed to the break of about 10 points that has occurred at Calcutta. While dealers here are anxious to do business they are not anxious enough to grant the marked concessions that buyers are asking. Some of them want as much as 25 points off the nominal market prices. Spot and afloat prices here yesterday were quoted at 6.35 and 5.85 cents, respectively, for "lights" and 7.95 and 7.45 cents, respectively, for "heavies." December shipments at Calcutta are held at 5.80 cents for the 8-ounce goods and 7.50 cents for the 10½-ounce cloths. For January-March shipments the respective figures are 5.75 and 7.35 cents.

Many Cancellations Received.

A number of cancellations have been received in the last ten days by concerns handling the more popular-priced lines of jewelry and silverware, due principally to the late arrival of the goods. The rule apparently governing the cancellations, it was said yesterday, was that everything should be cut off that was not in the store by Nov. 15. That the canceling took place promptly was shown by the fact that the cancellations began to appear in numbers as early as Nov. 19. No exceptions for distance were made, it was said, with the result in one case that an important shipment of English goods that was only five days late was thrown back on the importer. A plea by the latter to have this shipment treated more fairly brought the reply that the buyer was willing to make an exception but the merchandise manager was not. The question in the minds of the wholesalers who received the cancellations is whether the hasty action of the retailers will bring them into the market again before Christmas, or whether the business thus lost will stay lost.

No Joint Curtailing in New Bedford.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 28.—The New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association at a meeting today decided against concerted action toward curtailment because of unsatisfactory trade conditions. The question of curtailment was left to the individual plants to meet as they might think best. Some of the mills are working overtime in order to fill orders which must be completed within a limited time.

GOOD MARKET FOR BRONX PROPERTIES

Operators and Investors Buy Apartment Houses in Active Trading.

The greatest activity in many weeks in Bronx real estate was indicated by reports of sales made yesterday, when it was announced that negotiations had been completed and contracts signed for the transfer of several large apartment house holdings. A group of twenty multi-family properties was acquired by one owner in a transaction involving about $1,100,000.

The houses comprise seven six-story walk-ups at 1,328 to 1,340 and 1,355 to 1,367 Brook Avenue, which were sold by Albert J. Schwartzler, the builder. This was the first group, a second group consisting of eleven five-story walk-ups occupying the entire block front on the west side of Clay Avenue, between 167th and 168th Streets, being sold by John J. McKenna. Each of the eleven houses is on a plot 44 by 90 feet.

The third group, also sold by John J. McKenna, consisted of two five-story apartment houses on the southwest corner of 167th Street and Clay Avenue, on a plot 110 feet by 111 feet.

All of the twenty houses were purchased by the Benenson Realty Company as one group. They have accommodations for 363 families, with fifteen stores, and have an annual rent roll of approximately $170,000. They have been held at $1,100,000. Walter Phelps was the broker who negotiated the transaction.

Another important Bronx corner changed ownership when Bertrand & Co. sold to the Tel-Aviv Realty Corporation, M. Dolgin, President, the northwest corner of Walton Avenue and Marcy Place, a five-and-one-half-story tax-exempt apartment, on a plot 115 by 105 feet. The building has a rent roll of $42,000, and was held at $275,000. It was sold for all cash above two mortgages. Negotiations are pending for a resale.

Ennis & Sinnott, operators, sold to a client of Harold M. Silverman, for investment, 1,700 Nelson Avenue, between Erandt Place and 176th Street, a five-story new-law walk-up apartment house, containing suites of three and four rooms, built on plot 75 by 88 by 100 by 53, renting for $19,000 per annum and held at $125,000.

Murray Maran, an operater, purchased two houses, 37.6 by 100 each, at 691 to 695 Eagle Avenue, renting for $19,000 and held at $130,000. John Fetzer and J. L. Greenberger were the brokers and Gold & Maran represented the purchaser in the transaction.

It was held at $126,000.

Thanksgiving at Fieldston in Riverdale-the-Golden
Thanksgiving for the many bounties the Good Lord has given in a prosperous year.
Thanksgiving that the family is together once more around the festal board.
Thanksgiving that Dame Fortune has permitted the family to have its home in such a glorious setting surrounded by dwellings of other congenial ones; where every prospect pleases and man alone is not vile.
If you would spend a pleasant hour, dine early, then, as the shades of night are falling, take the folks in the car and drive through Fieldston.
It is loveliest now at twilight.
Up and down and around its rolling and turning streets. See the beautiful homes; concealed by the foliage through the summer but now revealed and only accented by the bare tree limbs. See the lights gleaming through the casements and throwing shadows of the trees on the fast scaring lawns. The fitful glow of the logs in the open fireplace. The softened and scarcely visible colors of roof and woodwork. The merry laughter of children or perhaps the after-dinner music.
Life is glorious now in Fieldston. It is in truth a transplanted section of Merrie Old England.
Fieldston is on the high ridge between Broadway and Riverdale Avenue. It lies on the northerly side of Spuyten Duyvil Parkway and is crossed in the middle by West 246th Street.

ABBEY PAGEANT PUZZLES LONDON

"Most Noble Order of Crusaders," With Duke of York Present, Holds Service.

SCENE WEIRD AND COLORFUL

Nation's Unknown Warrior Is Adopted by Semi-Secret Society as Its Grand Master.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Westminster Abbey lent itself this afternoon to a new semi-secret society, the Most Noble Order of Crusaders, for a commemoration service, and there is a good deal of wonder as to what it was all about.

The Duke of York was present and gave thereby the approval of the highest quarters, but even that cannot altogether dispel wonder that the national shrine of England and the most sacred of all its memories should be used for purposes of an organization of which until the last week or two the average man had never heard.

The Crusaders were, in fact, started two years ago and have enrolled many hundreds of members. They come from all classes of society, the largest number of them being workingmen and trades people and they are bound by a solemn oath to uphold the King and Constitution.

They are not definitely a religious order, although like the Freemasons, their members must profess belief in a supreme being, but they are pledged to service, self sacrifice and loyalty. They have a ritual, passwords and uniforms and are organized like other secret societies in chapters under a Grand Conclave.

All this would have passed without notice if the Order had not taken over as its Grand Master the "Unknown Warrior" and held its first great service in Westminster Abbey. The ceremony itself was very impressive. The Abbey was thronged with friends of the Order, mainly of the lower middle class. The choir and clergy and some of the Crusaders in their medieval habits proceeded to the high altar where the Pro-Grand Master, receiving an offering of gold from the Almoner, presented it to the Dean.

The Dean solemnly dedicated it and the procession re-formed and as trumpets blew a joyous fanfare passed through the screen to the Chapel of Edward, the Confessor, patron of the Order, to lay the gold on the altar there. Then after a brief address from the Dean and the singing of an anthem hundreds of members of the Order, headed by the choir and clergy, marched in solemn procession around the Abbey, halting to place a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Warrior.

Every member of the Order was in his habit, a white tunic emblazoned with a red cross worn over a long-hooded gown of brown, green, blue or gray, according to the rank of the wearer, the knights wearing long mantles of red with gold edgings and white crosses on the left shoulder. Beautifully embroidered banners and magnificent crosses broke the long line, and symbols of the order—the chest of self-sacrifice, the word of service, the bible of truth, spurs of chivalry, and so on—were borne on cushions by officers escorted by esquires.

As the choir chanted the Sixty-eighth Psalm to a harmonized Gregorian chant, it was perhaps the most impressive procession the old Abbey had seen for centuries. But it did not explain what the ceremony was about.

FINDS WORLD CHANGED AFTER 45 YEARS IN JAIL

Juan Moraleda, Spanish Brigand, Digs Up a Cache of Gold and Decides to Live in Peace.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

TOLEDO, Spain, Nov. 29.—Juan Moraleda, the "Terror of Toledo," one of Spain's most notorious and terrible bandits, has just been released from prison after serving forty-five years.

Originally "The Terror" was sentenced to 120 years, but he got seventy-five years off for good behavior.

Moraleda has been entirely ignorant of the world's progress since his imprisonment. So as he gayly left the jail the sight of an automobile almost paralyzed him and when an airplane rushed into view he was about ready to go back.

"The good old bandit days are done," declared the aged brigand. "I am going to lead a peaceful life, keeping a small general store in the country."

Moraleda's first act upon regaining his liberty was to unearth a treasure of 2,500 gold pesos (about $500) which he buried in his prosperous days.

Moraleda, with his pal, Juan Ilones, terrorized the Toledo district in 1870. The two committed daring night horseback raids against ranchers and innkeepers. They were finally captured. Ilones was executed.

ESCAPES ITHACA SHERIFF.

Burglar Dashes to Liberty a Few Moments After Sentence.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Within a few minutes after he had been sentenced today by County Judge Willard H. Kent to serve three years and eight months in Auburn State Prison for burglary, Claude Hewlett escaped from the Sheriff as he was on his way back to the jail. The prisoner broke away and fled along a near-by street. Sheriff Fay Skilling shot at him, but Hewlett, untouched, continued his dash for liberty.

A posse this afternoon searched the woods north of the city unsuccessfully.

During the excitement attending the man-hunt, two lawyers who had been interviewing clients at the county jail remained locked in cells for several hours until the Sheriff and turnkey returned and liberated them.

ASKS INVESTIGATION OF CONVICT'S BEATING

Philadelphia Grand Jury Reports Fraley a Victim of Eastern Penitentiary Guards.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—The November Grand Jury, in its report to Judge John Monaghan of the Quarter Sessions Court today, requested an investigation of serious injuries alleged to have been inflicted upon James Fraley, a convict, by guards of the Eastern Penitentiary early in October. Fraley was serving a twenty-year term for second degree murder.

During the recent visit to the penitentiary, the Grand Jury reported it was unable to learn either from Fraley or from the guards how he was injured.

"While inspecting the various buildings, we were informed by prisoners in every part of the institution that Fraley had been unmercifully beaten by guards," the jury's presentment said.

"The Grand Jury visited the hospital where Fraley was confined, said to be suffering from a broken jaw and a broken arm, and when he was asked by us whether he had anything to say, he shook his head in denial.

"Then we asked him if he was able to speak and he again shook his head. He was entirely covered by the bedspread up to his eyes and did not seem to want to be questioned. The guards stood close by his bed all the while we were in the hospital."

The chief of guards, the jury reported, said Fraley had been "punished by a guard" for having information and assisting in the escape of four convicts.

The jury also declared it was informed by prisoners that revolvers were carelessly allowed to remain about the Warden's office "so that he might get something on them." Acting Warden Herbert A. Smith was described by the convicts as "always walking around with a chip on his shoulder," the jury said.

HOLD UP BANK IN TENNESSEE

Two Men Disable Woman Bookkeeper and Escape With $6,000.

McKENZIE, Tenn., Nov. 28.—Two men robbed the Bank of McKenzie today of between $6,000 and $7,000 and escaped in an automobile. They eluded their pursuers, according to reports received here tonight.

Reports late today had stated that the men were believed to have been surrounded. They had abandoned their automobile.

The men entered the bank when all the employes except Miss Annie Ray Sedberry, a bookkeeper, were absent. They struck the young woman over the head with a pistol, gathered all of the currency in sight and fled.

Miss Sedberry soon regained consciousness and notified the Sheriff's office. Hastily organized posses started in pursuit.

Arrange Tobacco Financing.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 28.—Announcement was made today that the Connecticut Valley Tobacco Growers' Association had liquidated its entire indebtedness under the 1922 financing agreements, amounting to more than $5,000,000, and will begin next week the financing of the 1923 crop. Arrangements have already been made with Connecticut Valley banks for an open account agreement under which the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company will serve as syndicate agent. This involves a credit of $2,300,000 to be used for preliminary expenses.

TEACHER CHARGES SHE WAS KIDNAPPED

Three Philadelphia Deputy Sheriffs Arrested on Trenton Woman's Complaint.

SEIZED AT SCHOOL HOUSE

Carried Off in an Automobile to Be Served With Judgment, She Alleges.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 28.—Three Deputy Sheriffs of Philadelphia County, Pennsylvania, are under arrest at Philadelphia following the alleged kidnaping here today of Miss Julia R. Schlottenmeir of 1,205 Chambers Street, a teacher at the Franklin School. The Deputy Sheriffs were detained after Acting Chief of Police William P. Walter asked the Philadelphia authorities to hold them for extradition to this State.

Miss Schlottenmeir was seized just as she was entering the school, according to Walter. One of the trio approached her and said that she was wanted at the State House. When the girl hesitated, the three men are alleged to have grabbed her and hustled her to an automobile which was standing near by. It is said that she was given no opportunity to communicate with friends or relatives until the Sheriff's office in the Philadelphia County Court House had been reached.

Miss Schlottenmeir figured in an automobile accident in Philadelphia County more than a year ago. At that time, it is said, she and the other person involved in the crash reached an agreement. Since that time the other person brought suit and secured a judgment of $1,500 against the Trenton teacher.

Judgments in a case of this sort must be served by Deputy Sheriffs. It is necessary before they are served to get the person against whom they are issued into the State where the judgment was awarded.

As soon as Miss Schlottenmeir reached the Philadelphia County Sheriff's office she communicated with her sister here. Her sister, in turn, communicated with John J. Farrell of the Governor's office, a friend of the Schlottenmeir family. Mr. Farrell got in touch with Judge Brennan. Acting Chief Walter was notified and obtained the names of the men from the Philadelphia police. Warrants were issued for their arrest and acting Chief Walter immediately asked that the officers be arrested.

The men accused of the kidnaping are Richard J. Swed, Joseph A. Retterer, and William Orecll.

Miss Connor Loses Bureau Place.

ALBANY, Nov. 28.—Miss Susan Brerton of Green Island was today named Secretary to Royal K. Fuller, Commissioner of Canals and Waterways, succeeding Mary A. Connor of Albany, who had held the position under Edward S. Walsh of Brooklyn. Miss Connor was one of the witnesses in the recent inquiry into the financial administration of the Canal Bureau. She testified regarding the alleged overpayment of supplies furnished by the Mill and Contractors' Supply Company.

100,000 miles and more —

White Truck Owners' Records

144 White Trucks have gone
300,000 miles and more each.
344 White Trucks have gone between
200,000 and 300,000 miles each.
423 White Trucks have gone between
150,000 and 200,000 miles each.
1,451 White Trucks have gone between
100,000 and 150,000 miles each.
2,362 White Trucks, in all, have gone
100,000 miles and more each.

White Trucks, as far back as 1917, had made 100,000 miles a standard of measure for motor truck performance. Hundreds of those veterans have since run on to 200,000 miles, then 300,000 miles—some even more than 500,000 miles. And other hundreds of later White Trucks each year pass the 100,000-mile mark.

Isolated accomplishments are not performance standards. A delivery truck may do 200,000 miles on fine, level roads with ordinary load. Another truck, laboring with heaping load out of a gravel pit many times a day, or snaking its way over cobblestone streets, hauling massive steel girders, may deliver equal truck value long before its actual mileage reaches even 25,000 miles.

But White Trucks—all models—have built up mileages in multiples of 100,000, in all lines of work, under all conditions of road, load and climate.

White Trucks go everywhere—over mountains, through uncut timberlands, through deep snow, over rut-torn or trackless oil fields, through deep sand or clinging mud, in the heat of the tropics or the sub-zero of the frozen North.

There are 2,362 White Trucks of all models recorded in the list of owners whose Whites have run 100,000 miles, 200,000 miles, 300,000 miles and more. This list, published annually, appeared in The Saturday Evening Post November 3rd. There are many additional Whites, not listed, with equal mileages, of which we have no accurate record. The list of owners contains names you know.

Write either of the addresses below and we will send you the list. No other truck manufacturer has ever approached such convincing proof of sustained, continuous transportation.
